Hi,

Before I begin, I would like to thank the committee for working on such an important topic and for taking time and effort to seek feedback from the public.

I would like to share some thoughts for the committee's consideration on tackling fake news as an ordinary citizen working and living in Singapore. I will just share some desired outcomes I would like.

As an ordinary citizen, I have some practical desired outcomes that I want to achieve or maintain going 20 years down the road:

- My parents should not be tricked into making investment and purchase decisions because of fake news
- My wife and I should be able to have intelligent conversations or arguments with the correct information
- My children should be brought up with an objective understanding of what's happening in the world based on true facts
- My friends and colleagues should not be biased and mis-guided into politicking or discriminating against one another
- My foreign friends get a fresh world view when they live in Singapore
- Singapore is run by a competent government with competent office holders, elected fairly with voters presented with right information

Best
