- (a) is, consists of or has as an ingredient a novel food in respect of which no pre-market approval is granted; 5
- (b) is, consists of or has as an ingredient a genetically modified food in respect of which no pre-market approval is granted; or

(2) The Agency may, with the approval of the Minister, by order in the Gazette, declare an edible insect-like species as a catalogued insect-like species where the Agency is satisfied that the insect-like species, where made available for consumption by the general public, is not food of higher regulatory concern. 15

(3) In this section —

“engineered nanomaterial” means any intentionally produced material that has one or more dimensions of the order of 100 nm or less or that is composed of discrete functional parts, either internally or at the surface, many of which have one or more dimensions of the order of 100 nm or less, including structures, agglomerates or aggregates, which may have a size above the order of 100 nm but retain properties that are characteristic of the nanoscale; 20 25

“genetically modified food” means a food coming from an organism that has been altered using any of the following techniques, such that the resulting organism contains a combination of heritable genetic material that could not have occurred naturally or could not have been produced by traditional breeding and selection: 30

(a) in vitro nucleic acid techniques, including recombinant nucleic acids and direct injection of nucleic acid into cells or organelles;

(b) fusion of cells beyond the taxonomic family,

“novel food” means —

(a) a substance (which may consist of, be isolated from or produced from, cell culture or tissue culture derived from animals, plants, bacteria or yeast, fungi, algae or other micro-organism) that has not been used to a significant degree as food for a period of at least 20 years, whether within or outside Singapore;

Meanings of “primary produce” and “unsafe primary produce”

14.—(1) “Primary produce” means —

- (a) food produced by any primary production activity;
- (b) an animal, plant or other organism intended for human consumption as food; 5
- (c) raw material taken from an animal, a plant or any other organism intended for food; or

 - (A) is likely to be consumed by humans or animals; and
 - (B) if consumed by humans or animals — poses a hazard to the humans or animals; and 15
 - (iii) that is prescribed by the Minister, by order in the Gazette, to be primary produce for the purpose of this definition.

(2) However, primary produce does not include a raw material mentioned in subsection (1)(c) unless the raw material is in substantially the same condition as when it was taken from the animal, plant or other organism. 20

Example

A whole apple is an example of a raw material in substantially the same condition as when it was taken from a plant. 25

(3) In this Act, “unsafe”, for primary produce, means —

- (a) if the primary produce is ready for immediate human consumption as food — the primary produce, or food produced by a process involving a substantial change to the primary produce, is likely to cause harm to an individual who consumes the primary produce or food if it is 30 prepared, stored or consumed according to its reasonable intended use; or

- (b) if the primary produce is not ready for immediate human consumption as food — food produced by the production of the primary produce, or another process involving a substantial change to the primary produce, is likely to cause harm to an individual who consumes the food if it is prepared, stored or consumed according to its reasonable intended use.

(4) For the purposes of this section and section 15, the nature of primary produce is substantially changed if —

- (a) any thing done to the primary produce markedly increases its shelf life; or
- (b) any food is added to it.

Meaning of “primary production activity”

- (e) the transporting or delivery of primary produce within premises on which it was grown, raised, cultivated, picked, harvested, collected or caught; 5
- (f) any other activity that is prescribed by the Minister, by order in the Gazette, for the purposes of this definition, but excludes the slaughter of animals to produce meat or meat products, meat processing, production of animal feed and pet food production. 10

(2) However, primary production activity does not include —

- (a) any process involving significantly changing the condition or nature of food (for example, manufacturing or canning), regardless of whether the process is carried out in the premises on which the food was grown, raised, cultivated, picked, harvested, collected or caught; 15
- (b) the sale or service of food directly to the general public; or
- (c) any other food production activity that is prescribed by the Minister, by order in the Gazette, for the purposes of this subsection. 20

(3) In subsection (1)(c), treating of primary produce means —

- (a) enhancing the appearance of the primary produce (such as by washing, waxing or oiling it) without substantially changing its nature; or
- (b) dealing with the primary produce solely — 25
 - (i) to eliminate or control pathogenic organisms, toxins and contaminants in the primary produce; or
 - (ii) to ripen it.

Meanings of “animal feed” and associated terms

16.—(1) In this Act, “animal feed” means —

(a) a live animal; or

(b) a material or a mix of materials (whether processed, 5 semi-processed or raw), which is intended to be fed directly to any food producing animal, and includes any feed additive.

(2) To avoid doubt, “animal feed” excludes pet food.

(3) For the purposes of this Act, an animal feed is not fit for purpose
10 if it —

(a) spreads organisms or pathogenic agents to a level or in a manner that could be harmful to humans;

(b) contains a proscribed substance for the animal feed or any residue of the proscribed substance;

(c) results in food production substances or restricted
15 contaminants in food at a greater level than permitted under any standard, where a maximum level is so prescribed in the standard for that food production substance or restricted contaminant;

(d) is toxic to an extent that causes unnecessary pain or distress
20 to animals that consume it; or

(e) transmits disease, results in physical harm, or causes unnecessary pain and distress to animals that consume it.

(4) In this section —

25 “basic animal feed” means grain, seeds, hay, meat, fish or milk used as animal feed, or in the preparation of animal feed;

“feed additive” means a substance or combination of substances that —

(a) is not normally consumed as animal feed by itself;

(b) is intentionally added as an ingredient to basic animal
30 feed; and

(c) affects the characteristics of the animal feed or animal products, whether or not the substance or combination of substances has any nutritional value or other effect on the animal;

Examples

Micro-organisms, enzymes, pH regulators, trace elements and vitamins.

“pet food” means a material or a mix of materials (whether processed, semi-processed or raw) which is produced for consumption by pets.

(g) A has a relationship with B in a manner prescribed under subsection (3).

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), a person is a relative of an individual if the person is that individual’s brother, sister, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece, lineal ancestor or lineal descendant, treating —

(a) any relationship of the half blood as a relationship of the whole blood, and the stepchild or adopted child of any person as that person’s child; and

Division 2 — Minimum stockholding requirement or MSR

What is minimum stockholding requirement or MSR

20. An entity that is subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product must —

(a) hold each day, at least the quantity of stocks of the MSR product designated for the entity for the day (called the daily MSR); and

(b) hold, for each relevant period, at least the average quantity of stocks of the MSR product designated for the entity for the relevant period (called the average MSR).

Quantity of MSR product to be held

21.—(1) For the purposes of section 20(a), the daily MSR for an MSR product designated for an entity on a day, is the quantity specified in the trigger notice that —

(a) is in force for that day; and

(b) was given to the entity in relation to that MSR product.

(2) For the purposes of section 20(b), the average MSR for an MSR product designated for an entity for a relevant period applicable to an entity, is the quantity that —

(a) is worked out in accordance with section 23(3) for the relevant period and the entity; and

(b) is specified in the trigger notice that —

(i) is in force for the whole of that relevant period; and

(ii) was given to the entity in relation to that MSR product.

Entity subject to MSR

22.—(1) An entity is subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product if —

(a) the minimum stockholding requirement has been triggered for the entity in relation to the MSR product because of section 23; and

- (b) the entity has not ceased to be subject to the minimum stockholding requirement in relation to the MSR product because of section 24.

(2) An entity is also subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product if —

- (a) a determination is made under section 27 that —

- (i) the entity has assumed another entity's minimum stockholding requirement in relation to the MSR product; or

- (ii) another entity's minimum stockholding requirement in relation to the MSR product has been divided with the entity; and

10

- (b) the entity has not ceased to be subject to the minimum stockholding requirement in relation to the MSR product because of section 24.

15

Triggering MSR

23.—(1) The Director-General, Food Security may, by written notice (called a trigger notice) given to an entity, trigger the minimum stockholding requirement for the entity in relation to an MSR product if —

20

- (a) the entity is an agri-food supply chain participant but not an ultimate consumer; and

- (b) in a period prescribed by the Part 2 Rules —

- (i) the entity undertakes any MSR activity in relation to the MSR product; and 25

- (ii) in doing so, the entity exceeds the quantity prescribed by the Part 2 Rules for undertaking the MSR activity in relation to that MSR product.

- (2) The trigger notice must specify —

- (a) the days for which the notice is in force and the quantity of stocks of the MSR product the entity must hold on those days;

30

(b) the relevant periods for which the trigger notice is in force, and the average quantity of stocks of the MSR product the entity must hold for each of those relevant periods; and

(c) the place or places in Singapore where those stocks must be held.

(3) The average quantity of an MSR product in relation to a relevant period applicable to an entity must be worked out by dividing —

(a) the total minimum quantity of stocks of the MSR product which the Director-General, Food Security determines the entity must hold during the relevant period; by

(b) the number of days constituting that relevant period.

(4) Trigger notices may specify different quantities or average quantities of stocks —

(a) in respect of different MSR products or different entities; or

(b) on the basis of different MSR activities undertaken in relation to the same MSR product.

(5) The Director-General, Food Security must determine the quantity or average quantity of stocks of an MSR product in accordance with section 25.

(6) A trigger notice given under this section is in force for the days or relevant periods which occur within the period —

(a) starting the date specified in the trigger notice as the day the trigger notice comes into force which must be a date after the end of the minimum interval applicable; and

(b) ending the day before —

(i) the trigger notice is cancelled under section 24; or

(ii) another trigger notice given under this section to the same entity in relation to the same MSR product comes into force, whichever first happens.

(7) Subsection (6) is subject to section 26(2).

(8) In giving a trigger notice under this section, it is not necessary for the Director-General, Food Security to give any person who may be affected by the trigger notice a chance to be heard before the trigger notice is given.

(9) The quantity or average quantity (as the case may be) of stocks of MSR product may be specified in a trigger notice in any of the following terms:

(a) a fixed quantity;

(b) a rate or formula by which a quantity is to be calculated.

(10) The minimum interval in subsection (6)(a), for any trigger notice, is the following period after the day the trigger notice is given:

(a) 6 months;

(b) another period specified in the Part 2 Rules in substitution of the period in paragraph (a), for a trigger notice or class of trigger notices given on or after the other period as so specified in those Rules.

Ceasing to be subject to MSR

24.—(1) An entity ceases to be subject to the minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product if the Director-General, Food Security cancels the trigger notice given to the entity.

(2) The Director-General, Food Security must, upon being satisfied that the entity has permanently or indefinitely stopped undertaking all MSR activities in relation to that MSR product, cancel the trigger notice given to the entity.

(3) An entity ceases to be subject to the minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product if a determination is made under section 27 that another entity has assumed the entity's minimum stockholding requirement in relation to that product.

Decision-making criteria for triggering MSR, etc.

25.—(1) The Director-General, Food Security must have regard to, and give such weight as the Director-General, Food Security considers appropriate to, all of the matters in subsection (2) —

- (a) in deciding whether or not to give a trigger notice under section 23;
- (b) in determining under section 23(3) the total minimum quantity of stocks of an MSR product that an entity must hold during a relevant period; or
- (c) in determining under section 23(5) the quantity or average quantity of stocks of an MSR product to be specified in a trigger notice.

(2) The matters for the purposes mentioned in subsection (1) are as follows:

- (a) the food security factors;
- (b) the need to enhance resilience of the agri-food supply chain for Singapore;
- (c) the local eating patterns and preferences;
- (d) the local food production capacity.

Temporary suspension of MSR by Minister

26.—(1) The Minister may, by order in the Gazette, suspend section 20(a) or (b) in relation to a specified MSR product for a period (not exceeding 6 months) specified in the order (called a suspension period) if the Minister is satisfied that —

- (a) a disruptive event which directly affects the supply of the MSR product in Singapore is occurring or has occurred, or there is a threat of such a disruptive event; and
- (b) a suspension under this section is necessary to substantially prevent, or substantially assist in mitigating, the impact of the disruptive event or the threatened disruptive event, on the supply of the MSR product in Singapore.

(2) During the period an order made under subsection (1) has effect, entities are not required to comply with section 20(a) or (b) in relation to the specified MSR product.

(3) An order made under subsection (1) has effect for the suspension period specified in it or until the day it is earlier revoked under subsection (4).

(4) An order made under subsection (1) may be revoked at any time by the Minister before the expiry of the suspension period specified in that order.

(5) However, the cessation of an order made under subsection (1) having effect (whether by revocation or expiry of a suspension period) does not prevent a further order being made under subsection (1) by the Minister if the Minister is satisfied that the circumstances warrant it under subsection (1).

Determination of assumption or division of MSR

27.—(1) The Director-General, Food Security may make a determination that he or she is satisfied that an entity's (called the divesting entity's) minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product is being assumed by, or divided with, another entity or entities (called the receiving entity or entities).

(2) The Director-General, Food Security may make the determination on the application of a divesting entity or receiving entity or on the Director-General, Food Security's own initiative.

(3) The determination must specify the effect the determination is to have on trigger notices in force under section 23, including whether a trigger notice is taken to have been given to one or more receiving entities by the determination or that a trigger notice is taken to specify a different quantity or average quantity.

Reporting capacity to hold, etc.

28.—(1) If an entity is subject to the minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product, and the entity intends —

- (a) to undertake another MSR activity in relation to the same MSR product;

(b) to permanently or indefinitely cease undertaking an MSR activity in relation to the same MSR product; or

(c) to cease undertaking an MSR activity in relation to the same MSR product in circumstances in which paragraph (b) does not apply, the entity must give the Director-General, Food Security a written advice in advance in accordance with subsection (2).

(2) The written advice must —

(a) set out details of the situation to which the advice relates;

(b) set out any matters that might affect the entity's capacity to meet any minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product;

(c) be in accordance with any other requirements prescribed by the Part 2 Rules; and

(d) be given to the Director-General, Food Security within the period (if any) prescribed by the Part 2 Rules for the situation.

(3) An entity that intentionally or negligently contravenes subsection (1) shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding $10,000.

Average MSR default — civil penalty

29.—(1) If —

(a) an entity is subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product; and

(b) the entity contravenes section 20(b) by not holding, for a relevant period for which a trigger notice given to the entity is in force, at least the average MSR of stocks of the MSR product designated for the entity for that relevant period, the entity shall be liable to pay an MSR charge of an amount that is in subsection (3).

(2) The MSR charge payable under subsection (1) must be paid to the Director-General, Food Security not later than the 14th day after a written demand to pay that MSR charge is given by the Director-General, Food Security to the entity in question.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1), the MSR charge, for each relevant period which is the subject of the written demand given under subsection (2), is as follows:

$$(M_a \times K_a),$$

where —

(a) M_a is the rate prescribed by the Part 2 Rules for the MSR product concerned and in force on the last day of the relevant period; and

(b) K_a is the MSR product average shortfall for the relevant period, calculated in accordance with subsection (4).

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3), “MSR product average shortfall”, for an entity that is subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product for a relevant period, means the quantity calculated by subtracting —

(a) the average quantity of the stocks of the MSR product actually held by the entity during that relevant period where lower than the quantity in paragraph (b); from

(b) the average quantity of the stocks of the MSR product specified in a trigger notice which the entity is required to hold during that relevant period.

(5) Where an entity subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product becomes liable under subsection (1) to pay an MSR charge for a relevant period, the entity’s liability continues despite the entity ceasing to be subject to that minimum stockholding requirement.

(6) Any liability under this section is in addition to and does not affect any liability under section 30.

(7) This section is subject to a remission under section 39.

Daily MSR default — civil penalty

30.—(1) If —

(a) an entity is subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product; and

(b) the entity contravenes section 20(a) by not holding at least the daily MSR of stocks of the MSR product designated for the entity for any day for which a trigger notice given to the entity is in force, the entity shall be liable to pay an MSR charge of an amount that is calculated in relation to that day using the formula in subsection (3).

(2) The MSR charge payable under subsection (1) must be paid to the Director-General, Food Security not later than the 14th day after a written demand to pay that MSR charge is given by the Director-General, Food Security to the entity in question.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1), the formula, for each day which is the subject of the written demand given under subsection (2), is as follows:

$$(M \times K),$$

where —

(a) M is the rate prescribed by the Part 2 Rules for the MSR product concerned and in force on the day; and

(b) K is the MSR product shortfall for that day, calculated in accordance with subsection (4).

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3), “MSR product shortfall”, for an entity that is subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product on a day, means the quantity calculated by subtracting —

(a) the quantity of the stocks of the MSR product actually held by the entity on that day where lower than the quantity in paragraph (b); from

- (b) the quantity of the stocks of the MSR product specified in a trigger notice which the entity is required to hold on that day.

(5) Where an entity subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product becomes liable under subsection (1) to pay an MSR charge for any day or days, the entity's liability continues despite the entity ceasing to be subject to that minimum stockholding requirement.

(6) Any liability under this section is in addition to and does not affect any liability under section 29.

10

Daily MSR default — offence

- (a) $25,000;
- (b) an amount that is calculated in relation to that day using the formula in subsection (3).

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2)(b), the formula for the day which is the subject of the charge, is as follows:

$$(N \times K),$$

where —

5 (a) N is the rate prescribed by the Part 2 Rules for the MSR product concerned and in force on the day; and

 (b) K is the MSR product shortfall for that day, calculated in accordance with subsection (4).

10 (4) For the purposes of subsection (3), “MSR product shortfall”, for an entity that is subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product on a day, means the quantity calculated by subtracting —

15 (a) the quantity of the stocks of the MSR product actually held by the entity on that day where lower than the quantity in paragraph (b); from

 (b) the quantity of the stocks of the MSR product specified in a trigger notice which the entity is required to hold on that day.

(4) However, subsection (1) does not apply in relation to individuals in an agri-food supply chain so far as they are in the agri-food supply chain by reason of them, or members of their households, being the ultimate consumers. 20

(5) In giving a requirement under this section, it is not necessary for the Director-General, Food Security to give any person who may be affected by the requirement a chance to be heard before the requirement is given.

(6) A requirement under this section is binding on the person to whom it is addressed and given, and that person is bound to state truly what the person is required. 25

Subject information of section 32 requirement

33.—(1) The power in section 32 may be exercised only in relation to any information — 30

(iii) to monitor or analyse markets connected with agri-food supply chains;

(iv) to monitor the resilience of the agri-food supply chain in response to natural or man-made disasters, climate change, severe disturbances in agricultural markets and other disruptions in the supply of food and agri-food production inputs; and

(c) that is —

- (ii) reckless as to whether the disclosure is or is not authorised by this section, the person shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding $5,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years or to both.

(4) In proceedings for an offence under subsection (3), it is a defence for the person charged to prove, on a balance of probabilities, any of the following:

(a) the information was, at the time of its disclosure by the person charged, information that consists of readily observable matter, including information that consists of deductions, conclusions or inferences made or drawn from readily observable matter;

(b) the person charged disclosed or caused the disclosure of information as authorised or required by an order of court.

(5) In subsection (2), “anonymised form”, for any information or particulars, means any form that will not identify, and is not reasonably capable of being used to identify, any person to whom the information or particulars relate.

(6) To avoid doubt, this section does not affect the authorisation to share any information under the control of a Singapore public sector agency with another Singapore public sector agency to the extent permitted by any data sharing direction given under the Public Sector (Governance) Act 2018.

Division 4 — Defence and presumption

Defence of due diligence

67.—(1) In a prosecution of a person for an offence under this Part, it is a defence for the person charged to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that —

(a) the commission of the offence was due to —

(i) an act or omission of another person; or

(ii) an accident or some other cause outside the control of the person charged; and

- (b) the person charged took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to prevent the commission of the offence by the person, or by another person under the control of the person charged.

(2) In subsection (1)(a), another person does not include a person who was at the time of the commission of the offence — 5

- (a) an employee or agent of the person charged; or
- (b) if the person charged is an entity, an officer of the entity.

(3) Section 26H(4) of the Penal Code 1871 does not apply in relation to a strict liability offence under this Part. 10

Presumption as to possession

68. For the purposes of sections 61, 62, 64, 65 and 66, where food is found in any premises that a person uses for —

- (a) manufacturing food of the same kind;
- (b) preparing food of the same kind; 15
- (c) storing, packing or labelling food of the same kind;
- (d) transporting or delivering food of the same kind;
- (e) displaying food of the same kind; or
- (f) selling food, whether or not of the same kind,

then the following presumptions apply: 20

- (g) the food is presumed to be in the person's possession for the purpose of supply until the contrary is proved;
- (h) the person is presumed, until the contrary is proved, to have known that the food is likely to be supplied or offered or displayed for supply. 25

Division 5 — Prohibitions, inspection schemes and holding orders

Prohibited food, prohibited animal feed, etc.

5 69.—(1) The Minister may, by order in the Gazette, prohibit the import of a food, or a brand of food, because the Minister is satisfied —

 (a) that there is uncertainty or concern about the safety and suitability of the food, in light of information about —

10 (i) the nature of the food or the source from which it is derived;

 (ii) the hazards associated with the food;

 (iii) the measures applied during the manufacturing or handling of the food, or during its production if the food is primary produce;

15 (iv) the likelihood of a particular contaminant being present in the food at a level determined as unacceptable in accordance with any applicable standard or any international standard, or any science-based criteria; or

20 (v) the likelihood that the food is unsafe or unsuitable; and

 (b) that categorising the food as prohibited food will assist in managing the risk that the food poses to human health in Singapore.

25 (2) The Minister may, by order in the Gazette, prohibit the import of a regulated food contact article because the Minister is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds to believe that it is particularly dangerous to use with food because of its construction.

Example

30 A container that is made up of materials from which harmful chemicals are likely to migrate into the food at quantities which could endanger human health, whenever the container is used to hold hot and greasy food over short contact times, may be prescribed.

(3) The Minister may, by order in the Gazette, prohibit the import of an animal feed, or a brand of animal feed, because the Minister is satisfied —

- (a) that there is uncertainty or concern about the fitness for purpose of the animal feed, or brand of animal feed, in light of information about —
 - (i) the nature of the animal feed or the source from which it is derived;
 - (ii) the hazards associated with the animal feed;
 - (iii) the measures applied during the manufacturing or handling of the animal feed, or during its cultivation if the animal feed is a live animal;
 - (iv) the likelihood that the animal feed contains a proscribed substance for the animal feed or any residue of the proscribed substance; or
 - (v) the potential adverse impact to primary production activity in Singapore as a result of food producing animals consuming such animal feed; and
- (b) that if it did enter or continue to enter Singapore on import, the animal feed may have a significant adverse impact on any primary production activity in Singapore.

Import prohibition of live food producing animals

70.—(1) Subject to subsection (2), the Agency may from time to time and in accordance with subsections (2), (3) and (4), make directives of general application banning the import of any live food producing animal of a particular kind from a particular country or place outside Singapore as may be necessary to alleviate or minimise any risk of the death of, or a serious physical harm to, any individual who might later consume in Singapore the animal, or any meat, meat product or fish product derived from such an animal.

(2) The Agency must not make any directive under subsection (1) with respect to any relevant live food producing animal, unless it is impracticable, in the circumstances of the particular case, for any order under section 7(1) of the Animals and Birds Act 1965 to be made or amended to effectively alleviate or minimise the risk concerned.

(3) Once a directive is made under subsection (1), the Agency must cause to be published a public notice of the directive —

- 5 (a) in the Gazette; or
- (b) in any manner that will secure adequate publicity for the directive, specifying in the public notice the date the ban takes effect, except that where for reasons of national security it is impracticable to 10 publish the directive according to paragraph (a) or (b), the Agency must notify any person or persons that it thinks appropriate or necessary in the circumstances.

(4) Every directive made under subsection (1) comes into force immediately upon its being published according to subsection (3)(a)
15 or (b) or, where notified by service on any person under subsection (3), immediately upon giving the notice to that person and in respect of that person only.

(5) Any directive made under subsection (1) may be in force for a period not exceeding 90 days unless earlier revoked under 20 subsection (6), and may be renewed by the Agency only once for a further period not exceeding 30 days.

(6) The Agency may, at any time when any directive made under subsection (1) is in force, revoke the directive by publishing a notice of that revocation —

- 25 (a) in the Gazette; or
- (b) in any manner that will secure adequate publicity for the revoking of the directive.

(7) A directive made under subsection (1) prevails so far as the directive is in force even if inconsistent with any provision of —

- 30 (a) this Act;
- (b) the Animals and Birds Act 1965;
- (c) the Control of Plants Act 1993; or

(d) the Wildlife Act 1965.

(8) Without limiting subsection (7), where a directive made under subsection (1) is made and in force —

- (a) every of the following licences, permits or approvals cease to have effect to the extent that the licence, permit or approval is inconsistent with that directive: 5
 - (i) a licence granted under section 8 of the Animals and Birds Act 1965 to import or tranship any animal or bird;
 - (ii) a permit issued under the Control of Plants Act 1993 10 to import any live insect-like species or any mollusc that is not a fish;
 - (iii) an approval granted under section 9 of the Wildlife Act 1965 to import any living wildlife; and
- (b) an application for any of those licences, permits or approvals mentioned in paragraph (a) must be refused where the licence, permit or approval, if granted or issued, will be inconsistent with that directive. 15

(9) In subsection (2), “relevant live food producing animal” means a live food producing animal that is neither — 20

- (a) an insect-like species; nor
- (b) a mollusc that is not a fish.

Regulations for inspection schemes

71.—(1) The Agency, with the approval of the Minister, may make regulations establishing one or more inspection schemes applicable to any controlled item to which this Part applies — 25

- (a) identifying controlled items of particular kinds as controlled items of a kind that if imported, exported or transhipped must be inspected, or inspected and analysed, for the purposes of this Part; 30
- (b) identifying controlled items of particular kinds as controlled items that if imported, exported or transhipped must be covered by a recognised foreign government certificate for the purposes of this Part; or

(c) classifying controlled items of particular kinds into particular categories.

5 (2) Without limiting subsection (1), inspection scheme regulations may —

(a) prescribe conditions in relation to the import, export or transshipment of controlled items to which this Part applies, or the import from or export to a specified country of 10 controlled items to which this Part applies, that are required to be complied with in respect of matters or things related to the controlled items themselves;

(b) specify circumstances in which a controlled item is taken to be failing;

15 (c) specify circumstances in which a controlled item is to be taken to be failing because of its relationship to another controlled item that is found to be failing;

(d) set out the circumstances and manner in which a controlled item, other than a controlled item that is the subject of a holding order, is to be held pending the outcome of an inspection, or inspection and analysis; and

(e) require the keeping and retention of records for a period prescribed in the regulations, where the records are relevant to a matter that is relevant to monitoring or 25 evaluating, compliance with the requirements of this Part.

Inspection advice

72.—(1) After a controlled item that is required under this Part to be inspected, or inspected and analysed, upon import or before export, has been so inspected, or inspected and analysed, an authorised
30 officer or a food inspector must issue a written advice (called in this Act an inspection advice) —

(a) to the owner of the controlled item; and

(b) if the controlled item is under customs control — to the person having possession of the controlled item at the time, stating —

(c) whether the whole or a part of the controlled item dealt with in the advice is identified as failing, and in respect of a controlled item that is so identified, how the controlled item is to be dealt with; or 5

(d) whether the consignment comprising the controlled item dealt with in the advice is identified as not conforming to any identifying detail of the consignment that is stated in the consignment permit, and in respect of a consignment that is so identified, how the consignment is to be dealt with. 10

(2) Without limiting subsection (1), an inspection advice issued under this section may indicate that a controlled item identified as failing — 15

(a) must be destroyed in accordance with the requirements under section 74(3) or (4);

(b) must either be destroyed or re-exported from Singapore in accordance with the requirements under that section; or 20

(c) must, if not treated by the owner in accordance with the requirements under section 74(2) —

(i) be destroyed; or

(ii) be destroyed or re-exported from Singapore, in accordance with the requirements of section 74. 25

(3) Despite subsections (1) and (2), the owner of a controlled item identified in an inspection advice as failing may, in the circumstances specified in the inspection scheme regulations, apply, in writing, to an authorised officer or a food inspector for the issue of a further inspection advice in respect of a part of that controlled item. 30

(4) Neither —

(a) the fact that a controlled item identified as failing under an inspection advice may be the subject of an application under subsection (3) for a further inspection advice; nor

5 (b) the making of an application under subsection (3) for a further inspection advice in respect of the controlled item, causes the controlled item to cease to be failing on the basis of the original inspection advice but, if the original inspection advice indicates that the controlled item must be treated, destroyed or 10 re-exported, the controlled item is not required to be so treated, destroyed or re-exported unless —

(c) the circumstances permitting the application for the further inspection advice cease to exist; or

(d) an application is made under subsection (3) and rejected.

15 (5) If the owner of a controlled item identified in an inspection advice as failing, makes an application under subsection (3) for the issue of a further inspection advice in respect of a part of the controlled item, the owner must, if the controlled item to which the application relates is under customs control, inform the person having 20 possession of the controlled item that the owner had made that application.

(6) If an application is made under subsection (3), an authorised officer or a food inspector must —

25 (a) if he or she is not satisfied that the application is made in accordance with the requirements of the inspection scheme regulations, reject the application and give notice to the applicant of that rejection and of the reasons for the rejection; and

30 (b) in any other case, consider the application and issue to the applicant a further inspection advice in respect of the controlled item the subject of the application.

(7) If a further inspection advice is issued in respect of the controlled item the subject of an application, this Act has effect as if —

- (a) that further inspection advice were substituted for the initial inspection advice issued in respect of that controlled item under subsection (1); and
- (b) subsection (3) were not included.

73.—(1) If —

- (a) an inspection, or inspection and analysis, of examinable matter of a particular kind indicates the examinable matter, or a part of the examinable matter, to be failing;
- (b) an authorised officer or a food inspector is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that an examinable matter of a particular kind would, on inspection, or on inspection and analysis, be so identified as failing; 10
- (c) it is unclear to an authorised officer or a food inspector that an examinable matter of a particular kind is not failing and there are discrepancies, either — 15
 - (i) in the documents accompanying a consignment comprising the examinable matter itself; or
 - (ii) between the documents accompanying a consignment comprising the examinable matter and the examinable matter, 20 that suggest that it may be unwise for the authorised officer or food inspector to rely on the documents; or

- (d) an authorised officer or a food inspector has reasonable grounds to believe that the integrity of the examinable matter covered by an import consignment permit, an export consignment permit or a transshipment consignment permit (as the case may be) cannot be ensured, 25

the authorised officer or food inspector may, by writing, make a holding order — 30

- (e) stating that, until the revocation of the holding order, the following must be held in a place to be approved in writing by the same or another authorised officer or food inspector, until an inspection, or an inspection and analysis, required under the inspection scheme regulations has been completed:

- (i) that consignment comprising the examinable matter;
 - (ii) any controlled item of that same kind as the examinable matter that is imported into Singapore after the making of the holding order;
 - (iii) if the authorised officer or food inspector states that the holding order is being made in connection with the end of another order under subsection (3) — any controlled item of that same kind that is being held immediately before the end of the other order; and
- (f) specifying the circumstances in which the holding order will be revoked.

(2) If the authorised officer or food inspector is satisfied, in respect of a holding order made under subsection (1), that the circumstances specified for its revocation have occurred, the authorised officer or food inspector must, by writing, immediately revoke the holding order.

(3) If —

- (a) an authorised officer or a food inspector is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that a controlled item may, on inspection, or on inspection and analysis, be so identified as failing; and
- (b) the authorised officer or food inspector is satisfied that the risk is serious, the authorised officer or food inspector may, by writing, make a holding order —

- (c) stating that, until the holding order ends, a controlled item of the same kind that is or is to be imported into Singapore or that is to be exported or transhipped (as the case may be) after the making of the holding order must be held in a place approved in writing by an authorised officer or a food inspector;

(d) stating that the holding order ends at the earlier of the following times:

(i) at the end of the period of 28 days beginning on the day the holding order is made or, if that period is extended, the end of the extended period;

(ii) the time when the holding order is revoked; and

(e) specifying the circumstances in which the holding order will be revoked.

(4) The Agency may, by writing, extend the 28-day period mentioned in subsection (3)(d)(i) by a further period of up to 28 days, and the Agency may make more than one extension.

(5) Subsection (1) or (3) does not prevent an authorised officer or a food inspector from giving a person an approval to deal with a controlled item of a kind covered by a holding order under that subsection while the holding order is in force.

Treatment, destruction or re-export of failing food, etc.

74.—(1) This section applies to a controlled item that —

(a) has been identified in an inspection advice as failing; and

(b) is required, under that advice, to be treated, destroyed or re-exported from Singapore.

(2) If an inspection advice, given in respect of a controlled item to which this section applies, permits the treatment of the controlled item so as to bring it into compliance with this Act or to enable its use for a purpose other than human consumption, an authorised officer or a food inspector may, by written notice given to the owner of the controlled item —

(a) require the owner to treat the controlled item in a specified manner or in a manner to be agreed between the owner and the authorised officer or food inspector (as the case may be) so as to enable it to be brought into compliance with this Act or to be so used for a purpose other than human consumption; or

(b) if the owner is unable or unwilling to so treat the controlled item, require either —

(i) the destruction of the controlled item in a manner specified in the notice or in a manner to be agreed between the owner and the authorised officer or food inspector; or

(ii) the re-export of the controlled item.

(3) If an inspection advice requires the destruction of a controlled item to which this section applies, an authorised officer or a food inspector may, by written notice given to the owner of the controlled item, require its destruction in a manner specified in the notice or in a manner to be agreed between the owner and the authorised officer or food inspector.

(4) If an inspection advice requires the destruction or re-export of a controlled item to which this section applies, an authorised officer or a food inspector may, by written notice given to the owner of the controlled item, require either —

(a) its destruction in a manner specified in the notice or in a manner to be agreed between the owner and the authorised officer or food inspector; or

(5) A permission to treat or a requirement to destroy or re-export a controlled item in a written notice under subsection (2), (3) or (4) must specify a period (having regard to the reasons why the controlled item has been identified as failing and to any difficulties associated with arranging for its treatment, destruction or re-export) within which that treatment, destruction or re-export is to be completed.

(6) If the owner of a controlled item that is required in a written notice under subsection (2), (3) or (4) to be treated, destroyed or re-exported arranges for a treatment, destruction or re-export in accordance with the written notice, that treatment, destruction or re-export may be supervised by an authorised officer or a food inspector.

(7) If the owner of a controlled item that is required in a written notice under subsection (2), (3) or (4) to be destroyed or re-exported refuses or fails to arrange for the destruction or re-export of the controlled item in accordance with the written notice, the Agency may —

- (a) carry out or cause to be carried out the destruction or re-export required in that written notice; and
- (b) recover all expenses reasonably incurred by the Agency in the exercise of the powers under this subsection from the person in default.

(8) Without limiting the right of the Agency to exercise any power under subsection (7), the owner of a controlled item that is required in a written notice under subsection (2), (3) or (4) to be destroyed or re-exported commits an offence if the owner intentionally refuses or fails to comply with the requirement to destroy or re-export that controlled item.

(9) A person who is guilty of an offence under subsection (8) shall be liable on conviction —

(a) where the person is an individual —

- (i) to a fine not exceeding $15,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months or to both; or
- (ii) where the individual is a repeat offender — to a fine not exceeding $30,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months or to both; or

(b) where the person is not an individual —

- (i) to a fine not exceeding $30,000; or
- (ii) where the person is a repeat offender — to a fine not exceeding $60,000.

(10) Subsection (8) does not apply if the person has a reasonable excuse.

(11) In this section —

“owner”, in relation to a controlled item that is permitted to be treated or required to be destroyed or re-exported, means a person having a beneficial interest in the controlled item other than a person who has such an interest only because he or she has been given a mortgage or charge, or has a lien, over the goods;

“repeat offender”, in relation to an offence under this section, means a person who —

(a) is convicted, or found guilty, of such an offence (called the current offence); and

(b) has been convicted or found guilty, on at least one other earlier occasion within the period of 5 years immediately before the date on which the person is convicted or found guilty of the current offence, of an offence under this section.

Recognised foreign government certificates, etc.

75.—(1) The Agency may determine, in writing, that a report, certificate or other document —

(a) issued by or under the authority of —

(i) a specified foreign government of a particular foreign country; or

(ii) a foreign food authority of a specified foreign country; and

(b) stating that food of a specified kind meets an applicable standard or a requirement of this Act, is a recognised foreign government certificate.

(2) The Agency may make a determination under subsection (1) in relation to a particular foreign country if the Agency is satisfied —

(a) that there is in force an agreement between Singapore and that foreign country; or

(b) based on an assessment of the food safety systems of Singapore and that foreign country, that —

- (i) Singapore and the foreign country have equivalent food safety systems; or
- (ii) the foreign country has schemes for periodic inspection and evaluation, or does conduct equivalent monitoring, of the food or primary production activities in the foreign country.

(3) The Agency may revoke a determination under subsection (1) if the Agency has reason to doubt the continued reliability of a statement made in any certificate to which the determination relates.

 - (b) paragraphs (b), (c) and (d) of that subsection must be read as if they refer to the entity and its officers. 30
- (4) To avoid doubt, the Agency is not confined to consideration of the matters specified in subsection (2) and may take into account any other matters and evidence that may be relevant.

(5) The Agency may require an applicant for a licence to amend and re-submit a procurement plan, for the purpose of assessing the application by the applicant.

5 (6) In granting a person a licence to import in the course of business an import-controlled item stated in the licence, the Agency accepts the person's procurement plan submitted under subsection (2)(g).

15 (2) When making a decision mentioned in subsection (1), the Agency must have regard, and give such weight as the Agency considers appropriate, to all of the following matters:

- 20 (a) in the case of an import consignment permit, whether the import-controlled item to be imported is a kind of food that is identified under any inspection scheme regulations as one that, if imported, must be covered by a recognised foreign government certificate;

(3) To avoid doubt, the Agency is not confined to consideration of the matters specified in subsection (2) and may take into account any other matters and evidence that may be relevant. 5

(4) If the owner of a controlled item that is required in a written notice under section 74(2), (3) or (4) to be treated, destroyed or re-exported fails to comply with the requirement to treat, destroy or re-export the controlled item, the Agency may refuse to grant a consignment permit in respect of any other controlled item imported or to be imported into Singapore by or on behalf of that owner. 10

Conditions of licence or consignment permit

80. Without limiting section 294, in granting a licence or consignment permit to any person, the Agency may impose conditions — 15

5 (ii) to meet any financial penalty arising out of any regulatory action under section 83 or 84 against the licensed importer or licensed exporter; or

(a) except when it is wholly suspended under section 83(2); and

(b) the consignment covered by the permit has been imported, exported or transhipped, as the case may be.

20 Modifying conditions of licence

82. Subject to Division 4 of Part 14, it is lawful for the Agency to modify the conditions of a licence without compensating the licensed importer or licensed exporter concerned.

Regulatory action concerning licence

 - (e) the licence had been obtained by the licensee by fraud or misrepresentation; or 25
 - (f) the public interest of Singapore requires,
- the Agency may revoke (without any compensation) the licence of the licensed importer or licensed exporter, with or without forfeiting any performance bond, guarantee or other form of security furnished by the licensed importer or licensed exporter (as the case may be) under this Act. 30
- (2) However, the Agency may, in lieu of revoking under subsection (1) the licence of a licensed importer or licensed exporter, do (without any compensation) one or more of the following:

Cancelling consignment permit

84. Subject to Division 4 of Part 14, the Agency may cancel (without any compensation) an import consignment permit, an export consignment permit or a transshipment consignment permit granted to 5 a licensed importer or licensed exporter if —

- (a) paragraph (a) of that subsection must be read as if the paragraph refers only to the officers of the entity instead of the entity;
 - (b) paragraphs (b) and (c) of that subsection must be read as if they refer to the entity and its officers. 30
- (4) For the purpose of determining whether or not a person is a suitable person under subsection (2)(b) for a particular animal feed production licence that is the subject of an application for an animal feed production licence, the Agency must have regard to all of the following matters:

(a) the person's compliance history with all of the following so far as that relates to the production of animal feed in the course of a business:

(5) To avoid doubt, the Agency is not confined to consideration of the matters specified in subsection (2) and may take into account any other matters and evidence that may be relevant.

(6) In this section, "predecessor law" means the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965 as in force before it is first amended by this Act.

Conditions of animal feed production licence

193.—(1) Without limiting section 294, in granting an animal feed production licence to any person, the Agency may impose conditions requiring the animal feed production licensee —

(a) to meet all the applicable standards prescribed in the animal feed regulations, or specified in the licence in so far as the standards are not prescribed, for —

(i) the maintenance, cleanliness and sanitation of the premises where animal feed is produced; and

- (ii) the hygiene of individuals at work in those premises;
- (b) to establish and maintain, and undertake production of animal feed, in accordance with an accepted feed control plan;

- (d) to prepare itself for the following ends:
 - (i) to deal with any disruptive event occurring;
 - (ii) to prevent any intentional engaging in conduct, by any individual, so as to jeopardise the fitness for purpose of animal feed which is produced at the premises occupied by the animal feed production licensee, including any attempt to do so, 10
- by establishing and maintaining procedures and plans directed to those ends, and conducting simulations or other tests of those procedures and plans (where necessary) to give effect to those procedures and plans; and 15
- (e) to furnish or further furnish a performance bond, guarantee or any other form of security of such amount and on such terms and conditions that the Agency considers appropriate. 20

(2) In particular, in granting an animal feed production licence, the Agency may impose conditions requiring the animal feed production licensee concerned to label packages of animal feed produced by the animal feed production licensee as specified by the Agency in the particular case. 25

Validity of animal feed production licence

194.—(1) Every animal feed production licence granted under this Part is to be in the form that the Agency determines. 30

(2) Every animal feed production licence granted under this Part is in force for the period (not exceeding 5 years) specified in the licence —

- (a) except when it is wholly suspended under section 196(2); or
- (b) unless it is earlier revoked under section 196(1).

Modifying conditions of animal feed production licence

- 5 195. Subject to Division 4 of Part 14, it is lawful for the Agency to modify the conditions of an animal feed production licence without compensating the animal feed production licensee concerned.

Regulatory action concerning animal feed production licence

- 10 196.—(1) Subject to Division 4 of Part 14, if the Agency is satisfied that — offence committed during the term of the animal feed production licence or an immediately prior animal feed production licence;

(d) there is or has been a serious failure of the operations of an animal feed production licensee, or there are or have been other matters, that cast doubt on the fitness for purpose of the animal feed produced by the licensee;

(e) an animal feed production licence had been obtained by an animal feed production licensee by fraud or misrepresentation; or

(f) the public interest of Singapore so requires, the Agency may revoke (without any compensation) the animal feed production licence of the animal feed production licensee, with or without forfeiting any performance bond, guarantee or other form of security furnished by the animal feed production licensee under this Act.

(2) However, the Agency may, in lieu of revoking under subsection (1) the animal feed production licence of an animal feed production licensee, do (without any compensation) one or more of the following:

(d) modify any condition of the animal feed production licence;

(e) direct the animal feed production licensee to pay, within a period specified in a direction, a financial penalty of any amount that the Agency thinks fit, but not exceeding $5,000 for each contravention of or failure to comply with any matter in subsection (1)(a) or for each other ground of regulatory action;

(f) direct the furnishing by the animal feed production licensee of any performance bond, guarantee or other form of security, or an additional performance bond, guarantee or other form of security, for all or any of the following:

(i) to secure compliance by the animal feed production licensee with any condition of the animal feed production licence;

(ii) to secure compliance by the animal feed production licensee with any code of practice applicable to the animal feed production licensee so far as that relates to the production of animal feed in the course of business;

(iii) for the purpose of meeting any financial penalty arising out of any regulatory action started or likely to start against the animal feed production licensee.

(f) the use of the plant pesticide product is being or has been advertised in Singapore by a registrant in a manner that is false, misleading or deceptive.

(b) the person —

(i) used a registered plant pesticide product at a concentration or rate lower than that specified in the relevant instructions on an approved label for the plant pesticide product (provided that the lower concentration or rate was not prohibited by the relevant instructions); and

(ii) otherwise complied with the relevant instructions on the approved label.

(2) To avoid doubt, this section does not affect section 26H(4) of the Penal Code 1871 or any other exception in Chapter 4 of that Code.

Obligation to give information

258.—(1) A person is not excused for not complying with a requirement imposed under a relevant provision of this Act to give any information on the ground that the person is subject to a duty of confidentiality or privacy under any prescribed written law, any rule of law, any contract or any rule of professional conduct, that prevents or restricts the person from complying with the requirement.

(2) Subject to subsection (4), a requirement imposed under a relevant provision of this Act to give any information has effect despite any obligations as to secrecy or other restrictions upon the disclosure of information imposed by any prescribed written law or any requirement imposed thereunder, any rule of law, any contract or any rule of professional conduct.

(3) No civil or criminal action, other than proceedings for an offence under section 256 or 257, shall lie against any person —

- (a) for answering questions, if the person had answered the questions in good faith in compliance with a requirement imposed under a relevant provision of this Act;
- (b) for giving any document, information or material to a food security officer, an authorised officer, a food inspector, a Part 9 enforcement officer or an outsourced enforcement officer, if the person had given the document, information or material in good faith and in compliance with a requirement imposed under a relevant provision of this Act; or

Self-incrimination

259.—(1) A person is not excused for not complying with a requirement imposed under a relevant provision of this Act to give any information on the ground that the disclosure of the information would have a tendency to expose the person to a criminal charge for an offence under this Act, a repealed law or other written law.

(2) Where a person claims, before giving any information that the person is required under any relevant provision of this Act to give, that the disclosure of the information might tend to incriminate the person for an offence under this Act, a repealed law or other written law —

15

(a) that information;

20

(b) the giving of the information; and

(c) any information, document or thing obtained as a direct consequence of the giving of the information, is not admissible in evidence against the person in any criminal proceedings for an offence under this Act, the repealed law or other written law other than proceedings for an offence under section 256 or 257 or any written law in respect of the falsity of the information, document or thing.

(3) For the purposes of any proceedings for an offence under this Act, the making of a statement by an accused person made pursuant to a requirement mentioned in subsection (1), is not to be regarded under section 258(3) of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010 as caused by any inducement, threat or promise merely because the investigator had earlier informed the accused person that the accused person was not excused from disclosing information on the ground that the disclosure of the information might tend to incriminate the accused person, if the investigator believed in good faith, when so informing the accused person, that —

(a) the accused person was concerned in an offence under this Act; or

(b) a reasonable complaint has been made, or credible information has been received, or a reasonable suspicion exists, that the accused person was concerned in an offence under this Act.

(2) Any information on the outside or inside of any package of food, or on the label of a package of food, that identifies the person who imported, produced, sold, or manufactured the food in the package is presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved. 5

Presumption as to supply of food

261.—(1) For the purposes of this Act, when any food or food contact article is supplied or displayed or offered for supply, the food or food contact article is presumed to be supplied or exposed or offered for supply for human consumption as food or use as food, until the contrary is proved. 10

(2) For the purposes of this Act, a person who supplies or intends to supply any article of which food is a constituent, is presumed until the contrary is proved that the person supplied or intended to supply the food. 15

(3) The purchase or supply of a sample of any food under this Act for the purpose of analysis or examination is presumed to be a purchase or supply of the food for human consumption as food or for use as food, unless the supplier proves that the bulk from which the sample was taken was not offered, exposed or intended for supply for human consumption as food or use as food. 20

Presumption as to sample 25

262.—(1) This section applies to a sample of food, primary produce or animal feed —

(a) taken from an identified quantity of food, primary produce or animal feed;

(b) taken as required by a requirement of this Act; and 30

(2) The sample is presumed to be representative of the quantity of food, primary produce or animal feed from which the sample was taken until the contrary is proved.

5 (3) The sample is also presumed to be representative of the lot, or production run, from which the identified quantity was taken until the contrary is proved.

10 (4) Each of the parts into which a sample of any food, primary produce or animal feed is divided in accordance with this Act is presumed, until the contrary is proved, to be of uniform composition with the other parts.

Presumption as to import for purpose of supply

15 263. For the purposes of this Act, the import of any food or prepacked food additive in a quantity that is more than that which is imported for private consumption must, unless the contrary is proved, be treated as an import of the food or prepacked food additive for the purpose of supply.

Proof of exemptions or reasonable excuse

20 264. In a prosecution of a person for an offence under this Act, the onus of proving that —

(a) at the time of the alleged offence a person was exempted from a provision of this Act; or

(b) anything was done or omitted to be done with lawful excuse or authority or reasonable excuse,

25 lies upon the person making that assertion.

Disclosure by witnesses

30 265.—(1) In any proceedings for an offence under this Act, a witness for the prosecution is not compelled to disclose the fact that the witness received information, the nature of the information received or the name of the person from whom the information was received.

(2) An authorised officer, a food inspector or a Part 9 enforcement officer appearing as a witness in any proceedings is not compelled to produce any document containing any confidential matter made or received in his or her capacity as an authorised officer, a food inspector or a Part 9 enforcement officer, as the case may be.

(3) Despite subsections (1) and (2), a court hearing proceedings for an offence under this Act may order the disclosure of any matter, or the production of a document, referred to in those subsections if the court considers that it is necessary in the interests of justice.

Court may order corrective advertising, etc.

266. A court by which a person (called in this section the offender) is found guilty of an offence involving advertising may make one or both of the following orders upon convicting the offender:

(a) an order requiring the offender to disclose in a particular manner —

(i) to the general public;

(ii) to a particular person; or

(iii) to a particular class of persons in the general public, information specified in the order, or information of a kind specified in the order, which the offender possesses or to which the offender has access;

Liability of person charged for certain expenses

267.—(1) When any person is convicted of an offence under this Act, the court may order that all fees and other expenses for or incidental to the analysis of any food or thing in respect of which the conviction is obtained, and any other reasonable expenses incurred by the prosecution, be paid by the person convicted.

(2) All those fees and expenses are recoverable in the same manner as a fine is recoverable.

Handling of seized items

268.—(1) Subject to subsection (2) and sections 269 and 270 —

- (a) all seized items are liable to forfeiture by a court; and
- (b) sections 370, 371 and 372 of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010 relating to the handling of property seized by a police officer apply, with the necessary modifications, to any seized item.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to a seized item which is a conveyance that —

- (a) is of more than 200 tons net; or
- (b) is an aircraft or a train belonging to a person carrying on a regular passenger service to and from Singapore by means of that aircraft or train.

Forfeiture, etc., of seized items by court in criminal proceedings

269.—(1) A court may, in any criminal proceeding against a person for an offence under this Act, order that any item seized in connection with the offence be forfeited if —

- (a) where the seized item is a conveyance — the person is convicted of the offence and the conveyance is proved to have been used in the commission of the offence; or
- (b) where the seized item is not a conveyance — the court is satisfied that an offence under this Act has been committed and that the seized item was the subject matter, or used (or intended to have been used) in the commission, or constitutes evidence, of the offence.

(2) The court may consider the question of forfeiture under subsection (1) on its own motion if no party raises the question in the proceedings before the court.

(3) A conveyance mentioned in subsection (1)(a) must not be forfeited under that provision if its owner establishes that the conveyance was unlawfully in the possession of another person without the consent of the owner.

(4) The court may make an order under subsection (1)(b) for the forfeiture of any seized item even though no person is convicted of an offence.

(5) If the court does not order the forfeiture of a seized item under subsection (1), the court may —

(a) order the release of the seized item to the owner of or the person entitled to the seized item; or

(b) where the owner of or the person entitled to the seized item cannot be ascertained or found — make any order or give any direction that the court thinks fit in relation to the disposal of the seized item.

(6) However, no order of forfeiture may be made under this section in respect of a seized item that is a conveyance which —

(a) is of more than 200 tons net; or

(b) is an aircraft or a train belonging to a person carrying on a regular passenger service to and from Singapore by means of that aircraft or train.

- (ii) is injurious to human health;
- (iii) is hazardous;
- (iv) is decayed or putrefied; or
- (v) for any other reason is desirable to dispose without delay.

(2) If within 48 hours after the seizure no complaint under subsection (3) has been made with respect to the item seized, the Agency may cause the seized item, if of the nature described in subsection (1)(a) and (b), to be —

- (a) if the item is a living thing, detained and treated if not incurably diseased or injured and then disposed of at once in any manner that the Agency thinks fit; or
- (b) destroyed or otherwise disposed of at once in any manner that the Agency thinks fit.

(3) A person may, no later than 48 hours after the seizure under this Act of any of the following, complain of the seizure to a Magistrate's Court:

(i) any other thing.

(4) The complaint may be heard and determined by the Magistrate's Court, which — 5

(a) may either —

(i) confirm or disallow the seizure in whole or in part; or

(ii) order any seized item to be returned to the owner or the person entitled to the seized item; and

(b) may order payment to be made to the owner of or the person entitled to the seized item of any amount that the court considers will compensate the owner or the person for any loss or depreciation resulting from the seizure. 10

(5) A certificate signed by the Director-General is to be accepted by a court as sufficient evidence that any item seized under this Act was of a nature described in subsection (1)(a) and (b) at the time of seizure. 15

(6) No order of forfeiture may be made under this section in respect of a seized item that is a conveyance which —

(a) is of more than 200 tons net; or 20

(b) is an aircraft or a train belonging to a person carrying on a regular passenger service to and from Singapore by means of that aircraft or train.

(7) Where the owner of any item seized under the provisions of this Act by an authorised officer or a food inspector, consents in writing at any time to its disposal, the Agency may cause the item to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of at once in any manner that the Agency thinks fit. 25

(3) A person mentioned in subsection (2) may rely on a defence that would be available to the corporation if it were charged with the offence with which the person is charged and, in doing so, the person
30 bears the same burden of proof that the corporation would bear.

(4) To avoid doubt, this section does not affect the application of —

(a) Chapters 5 and 5A of the Penal Code 1871; or

shall be guilty of the same offence as is the unincorporated association or partnership (as the case may be) and shall be liable on conviction to be punished accordingly. 15

(3) A person mentioned in subsection (2) may rely on a defence that would be available to the unincorporated association or partnership if it were charged with the offence with which the person is charged and, in doing so, the person bears the same burden of proof that the unincorporated association or partnership would bear. 20

(4) To avoid doubt, this section does not affect the application of —

This Bill seeks —

- (a) to consolidate and amend the law relating to food safety in connection with the production of primary produce, the supply of food and the provision of drinking water;
- (b) to improve food security in Singapore;
- (c) to promote the general public's health through better diet and nutrition; and
- (d) to make consequential and related amendments to certain other Acts.

Singapore's existing legislative framework for primary production activities, food safety, food security, trading in food and agri-food production inputs, and food business activities has developed over 50 years and is currently set out in 9 Acts, including the Price Control Act 1950, the Animals and Birds Act 1965, the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965, the Fisheries Act 1966, the Sale of Food Act 1973, the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 (Parts 4 and 9), the Control of Plants Act 1993, the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999 and the Wildlife Act 1965.

While there is a robust system in place aimed at preventing and reducing foodborne illnesses, the several Acts that deal with similar subject matter with differences based on product-lines and markets presently form a complex web for the food industry to navigate and comply with. The several overlapping powers and duplicative requirements may be imposing a regulatory burden which is disproportionate to the outcomes of preventing incidents of foodborne illnesses and mitigating the public health risks associated with the provision of food.

Next, food security issues are presently being addressed primarily through legislation with origins in the post-World War II years. These mechanisms are no longer fit for purpose in the face of growing trade volumes, consumption patterns, market volatility, and food supply chain risks which have widened beyond trading risks to cover financial system risks, climatic risks and risks of or from disease or pollution.

The Bill seeks to consolidate these laws so that there is a commodity-neutral and improved legislative framework to regulate the agri-food supply chain (colloquially known as “farm to fork”) from primary producers, through intermediary food processors to retailers such as supermarkets and food establishments, so as to minimise and manage the risks to human health with the ultimate individual consumer in mind, and to improve the food security situation in Singapore.

The Bill also seeks to avoid overlapping and duplicative requirements in the areas of importing and rearing of food producing animals and the cultivation of edible plants.

The Bill therefore also repeals and replaces the Sale of Food Act 1973 and the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999, and makes related amendments to the Animals and Birds Act 1965, the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965, the Fisheries Act 1966, the Environmental Public Health Act 1987, the Control of Plants Act 1993 and the Wildlife Act 1965. Other Acts will also be amended consequentially.

The Bill further contains provisions to better manage the public health risks associated with the provision of food, by —

- (a) increasing trader and food business accountability to source and produce safe food and to handle food safely;
- (b) expanding the range of regulatory tools to monitor and manage food safety risks, respond to lapses in meeting food safety requirements and improve incident response;
- (c) striking a better balance between securing public health and safety outcomes, regulatory effort and any burden imposed by the system of regulation and compliance costs for businesses;
- (d) establishing differentiated enforcement provisions that enable a calibrated approach to non-compliance and support appropriate, proportionate and consistent enforcement; and
- (e) improving the monitoring and management of new and emerging food safety risks (such as unconventional foods and outdated food) and activities beyond the selling of food, like donating or distributing food, relying on science-based principles.

Part 1 introduces the fundamental concepts used in the Bill and sets out the purposes of the Bill.

Part 2 sets out measures specially directed at ensuring food security in Singapore. It is intended that through the schemes and exercise of powers under this Part, domestic food stocks and stocks of material essential to domestic food production can be maintained to meet domestic food needs and thereby increase Singapore's resilience during any future disruptions to the agri-food supply chain.

Part 3 regulates trading in food, certain food contact articles, animal feed and other controlled items, contains offences relating to trading in such things, enables food and other controlled items to be held at the border where there is uncertainty about their fitness, and introduces record-keeping duties on importers to ensure that imported food and other import-controlled items are traceable and can be recalled efficiently and effectively.

Part 4 deals with food businesses and sets out requirements on business operations of persons licensed to carry on licensable food businesses so that there are strict requirements that must be satisfied in relation to this regulated activity.

Part 5 deals with unconventional food (called defined food) and provides for pre-market approval for certain defined foods.

Part 6 sets out the requirements to ensure safe non-packaged drinking water.

Part 7 contains a range of measures directed at addressing food safety lapses which present or could present a danger and at mitigating biosecurity threats that undermine or could undermine food production in Singapore.

Part 8 sets out offences relating to food safety.

Part 9 covers health promotion initiatives and is under the administration of the Ministry of Health.

Part 10 sets out offences relating to marketing of food and regulated food contact articles.

Part 11 sets out requirements on the use of plant pesticides on edible plants and on business operations of persons licensed to produce animal feed for food producing animals.

Part 12 contains provisions for appeals to be made to the Minister against decisions under the Bill, except for Part 9, of the Singapore Food Agency (the Agency), the Director-General, Food Security or the Director-General, Food Administration.

Part 13 prescribes the monitoring powers and investigating powers needed for the proper administration of the Bill.

Part 14 is a general Part dealing with administrative matters, including the appointment of a Director-General, Food Security and a Director-General, Food Administration for the Bill.

Part 15 lays down the various types of subsidiary legislation which may be made under the Bill.

Part 16 contains general provisions and the power to grant exemptions.

Part 17 makes consequential and related amendments to other Acts. Together with the Second Schedule, Part 17 also contains final provisions on the repeal of certain Acts, and saving and transitional provisions.

PART 1

PRELIMINARY

Part 1 introduces the concepts and expressions used in the Bill and sets out the purposes of the Bill.

Clause 1 relates to the short title and commencement.

Clause 2 states the purposes of the Bill, namely —

- (a) to improve food security in Singapore through maintaining in Singapore a minimum quantity of stocks of certain foods and agri-food production inputs, and measures to mitigate the impact of agri-food supply chain disruptions on Singapore;
- (b) to increase production of primary produce on a sustainable basis in Singapore so as to contribute to food security in Singapore;
- (c) to ensure that food and non-packaged drinking water in Singapore are safe for human consumption;
- (d) to improve traceability systems to enable food to be more efficiently and effectively recalled due to food safety concerns;
- (e) to ensure provision of adequate information relating to food to enable consumers to make informed choices and to prevent misleading conduct in connection with the supply of food;
- (f) to provide for the compliance of imported food and other import-controlled items with Singapore's standards and requirements of public health and safety;
- (g) to ensure that any export-controlled item that is exported meets relevant importing country requirements to enable and maintain overseas market access for export-controlled items exported from Singapore;
- (h) to minimise and manage the risks to human health in the production of primary produce arising from the use of plant pesticides and the production of animal feed for sale; and
- (i) to support national nutritional standards and dietary recommendations directed at preventing diet-related non-communicable diseases among the general public or at promoting health and wellbeing at all ages.

Clause 3 contains definitions of terms used in several Parts of the Bill, and signposts references to expressions that are explained in Part 1 or defined elsewhere in the Bill.

A notable definition is that of “FSSA authorisation”, which is defined to refer to the different licences, permits, registration, certificates, appointments and pre-market approval that may be granted under the Bill.

Clauses 4 to 17 consist of definitions of key concepts grouped thematically. There are also provisions that explain certain other expressions otherwise than by means of definitions.

Clause 4 defines “food” for the purposes of the Bill.

Clause 5 defines “food business” for the purposes of the Bill. It means a business or an undertaking or activity that involves the production of primary produce, the handling of food intended for supply or for export, or the supply of food, regardless of whether the business, undertaking or activity concerned is of a commercial, charitable or community nature. The clause further provides that an undertaking or activity is still a food business even if it involves the handling or the supply of food on one occasion only.

Finally, as defined, a “food business” includes a food business carried on as a home business or that is an occupation carried on by an individual within the individual’s private residence.

The definition is broader than the existing term in the Sale of Food Act 1973 as it includes primary production activities and an enterprise or activity that involves the handling of food intended for supply, not only just for sale.

Clause 6, together with the First Schedule, define what a licensable food business is for the purposes of the Bill. These are food businesses which are required to be covered by a current food business licence. The listing of food businesses in the First Schedule reflects a tiered regulatory approach, where more stringent controls are imposed in Part 4 on these food businesses which are assessed as presenting higher risk.

The Bill therefore has a much more limited application to food businesses which are not licensable food businesses, for example, those whose activities pose a low or negligible risk to the public. However, proprietors of non-licensable food businesses will be required to handle food safely in accordance with the Bill.

Licensable food businesses in the First Schedule generally exclude home businesses. Licensable food businesses may be retail in character (see Part 1 of the First Schedule, which covers businesses ranging from restaurants and certain supermarkets to takeaway kiosks) or non-retail (see Part 2 of the First Schedule, which covers manufacturers, farms, abattoirs, and an operator of a commissary kitchen or centralised commercial kitchen).

However, a food business providing food (whether or not for consideration) in the course of providing services to patients in hospitals, hospices and other residential care facilities like nursing homes, to children or other individuals in the care or custody of the provider by virtue of any Act, or to prisoners or inmates in prisons or other places for the detention of individuals under any Act, are not licensable.

The First Schedule is a list of food businesses which present a higher risk from the perspective of preventing and reducing foodborne illnesses. The list incorporates newer business models in the food industry.

For example, a food business that provides facilities, tools and equipment for hire to another food business to undertake any food preparation activities for the purpose of selling food by retail.

A licensable food business includes a food business that sells, through any food vending machine, food that is potentially hazardous, or non-prepacked food that is the result of any of the following processes by the machine:

- (a) juicing of any fruit or vegetable or both;
- (b) cooking;
- (c) mixing or combining of ingredients, not all of which are prepacked.

A food vending machine is a food premises as defined in clause 3(1). The definition also tries to address recent technological developments in food vending machines, which are capable of driving itself or moving from point to point. However, productivity innovations like a food delivery robot used to carry ready-to-eat or cooked food from the kitchen to the dining area would not be a vending machine.

The Minister is empowered to vary the list of licensable food businesses in the First Schedule by an order in the Gazette. However, before amending the First Schedule with respect to any class of food business, the Minister has to take into account certain factors, which include —

- (a) the risk to public health and the need to prevent or reduce the possibility of a serious danger to public health if the class of food business is not specified in the First Schedule;
- (b) whether there are other sufficient safeguards under this Act or any other written law, or by other means, to minimise any risk to public health if the class of food business is not specified in the First Schedule;
- (c) the kind of food handled or likely to be handled, and the manner and scale of food handling, when carrying on the class of food business;

- (d) the components ordinarily operated as part of that class of food business; and
- (e) the type and number of ultimate consumers ordinarily sold or supplied food by or from the class of food business.

Clause 7 defines “publishing in Singapore” and “advertising” for the purposes of the Bill. The clause covers both traditional and non-traditional forms of advertising. The clause is of particular relevance to the marketing controls contained in Parts 9 and 10 of the Bill, where the offences involving non-compliant advertising are directed at health promotion and at ensuring food safety.

To “advertise” is defined as publishing, or causing or authorising to be published, content in Singapore. Publishing in Singapore means communicating, distributing, or making available or making known, the content to the general public in Singapore.

Where content is communicated, distributed or made available or known in electronic or digital form using a social media service, telecommunication service (like SMS or MMS) or relevant electronic service (like an online instant messaging service or by email), the content is taken to be published in Singapore if it originates from a point in Singapore or is between a point and one or more other points, where the firstmentioned point is outside Singapore and at least one of the other points is inside Singapore.

Clause 7 takes into account the developments in labelling and in digital marketing which have gone beyond advertising methods that the last set of amendments in 2017 to the Sale of Food Act 1973 could take into account.

For example, website marketing today employs ‘user experience’ (UX) design to help induce customer purchases of a product. Then, there is social media marketing with its interactive elements mimicking communication which would ordinarily not be regarded as advertising, except that social media can include a business paying for advertising on social networks. Finally, there is search engine marketing, which seeks to increase business visibility on a search engine (such as Google or Bing) and therefore encourages or drives traffic to a product or business website. There is also search engine optimisation, which can ‘organically’ rank the business or product website higher in search results.

Clause 7 makes clear what newer digital methods of marketing constitute advertising for the purposes of the Bill.

However, to avoid overreach, some persons who engage in certain modes of digital communication on electronic services would not be treated as advertising.

Examples of persons who are excluded are —

- (a) an individual food blogger who voluntarily and without reward posts his or her opinion about an eatery he or she just patronised or a food he or she just ate;
- (b) an individual forwarding or sharing, without reward, any online material produced entirely by another person, without altering the content;
- (c) a person providing a search engine service; and
- (d) 2 or more persons communicating content between themselves that is of a private or domestic nature.

Clause 8 defines “sell” and “supply” for the purposes of the Bill. These terms are used extensively in the Bill in connection with food, food contact articles and animal feed, and apply in several offences in the Bill.

In addition to activities usually perceived as those of selling food, the Bill covers activities such as offering food as a prize, supplying a meal to staff, bartering or displaying with a view to sale, and giving food away for advertising purposes.

Given the breadth of the definition of “sell”, a number of exclusions have been provided for in clause 8. The effect of excluding certain activities from the definition of “sell” or “supply” is to exclude those activities from the operation of the Bill.

The terms “sell” and “supply” do not apply to the preparation and supply of food at a private residence to a person employed at that residence, for example, preparing and supplying meals to a live-in domestic worker.

Clause 9 defines the expression “handling” in relation to food for the purposes of the Bill.

Clause 10 defines the expressions “manufacturing” and “preparing” of food for the purposes of the Bill. The clause lists certain activities that constitute manufacturing and preparing of food. Generally, preparing refers to activities in a retail setting. The clause therefore clarifies that “manufacturing” does not include certain activities, like preparing and packing sandwiches at a fast food outlet for retail sale at the fast food outlet.

Clause 11 defines the expression “unsafe” as it relates to “unsafe food” for the purposes of the Bill. The definition is substantially unchanged from the definition of “unsafe” in section 2C of the Sale of Food Act 1973. Basically, food is unsafe if it would be likely to cause physical harm to a person who might later consume it.

This definition takes into account what happens after a consumer buys or acquires food. For example, if a person bought raw meat and then left it unrefrigerated for an extended period, the raw meat would not be unsafe when sold. Also, food is not “unsafe” just because it may cause an adverse reaction to a minority of persons.

Clause 12 defines the expression “unsuitable food” for the purposes of the Bill.

Like the present definition of “unsuitable” in section 2D of the Sale of Food Act 1973, the clause provides that food is unsuitable if, for example, it is damaged or deteriorated to such an extent that affects its reasonable intended use. For example, bulging canned food or mould on grapes or cherries.

However, clause 12 extends the meaning of “unsuitable” to cover outdated food and food containing an ingredient that is outdated food. The word “outdated” is defined in relation to the date marking requirements in subsidiary legislation to be made under the Bill.

Food is “outdated” if it is unused or not consumed within the period recommended by the manufacturer of the food, or before the end of the period that is required by the date marking requirement in those subsidiary legislation.

The clause provides greater clarity to one of the limbs of the present definition, which refers to food containing “a biological or chemical agent, or other matter or substance, that is foreign to the nature of the food and the presence of which would be unexpected and unreasonable in food prepared or packed for sale in accordance with good trade practice”.

Clause 12 makes explicit that food is unsuitable if it contains a food production substance which is not an approved food production substance for that food, or contains an approved food production substance at a greater level than permitted under the standards where a maximum level is so prescribed for that food production substance. An example of a food production substance is a food additive or veterinary drug or its residue.

Food is also unsuitable if it contains a proscribed contaminant or any residue of a proscribed contaminant, or a restricted contaminant at a greater level than permitted under the standards where a maximum level is so prescribed for that restricted contaminant. A contaminant is a substance not intentionally added to the food but is present in the food as a result of its manufacture or preparation, or production if the food is primary produce, or its transport or the environment. An example of a contaminant is mercury, which accumulates in fish as a result of absorption from the water.

Finally, the clause defines food as unsuitable if it contains any thing which is inedible or is otherwise alien to the particular food. For example, food containing inedible, non-sharp materials like hair, human nail clippings, rubber bands, plasters or paper. The consumer is unlikely to fall ill if it is swallowed and will likely find the thing first before consuming it, given that it is inedible.

If a matter in food has a potential to cause physical harm when the food is consumed, like a porcelain chip, staple, metal wire or other sharp object, the food would be unsafe by definition.

Clause 13 defines the expression “defined food” for the purposes of the Bill. This expression covers the range of food which is of higher regulatory concern, the lawful supply of which in Singapore for human consumption as food will require prior approval.

There are 3 categories of defined foods. They are —

- (a) novel food;
- (b) genetically modified food; and
- (c) insect-like species as food. These are forms of animal life within the biological classification Insecta, Arachnida, Myriapoda or Clitellata, and include insect-like species at a particular stage of its development, like the larvae or pupae.

Of the 3 categories of defined food, insect-like species that are edible are defined food until they are declared by subsidiary legislation to be a catalogued insect-like species.

The subsidiary legislation is to be made by the Agency under clause 13(2) with the Minister’s approval. The subsidiary legislation may be made only where the Agency is satisfied that the insect-like species is no longer of higher regulatory concern. The list of catalogued insect-like species can expand or reduce over time by changes to the subsidiary legislation. This is envisaged to be a positive list.

Unless it is catalogued, an insect-like species, even if edible, cannot be imported or supplied for human consumption in Singapore; see Part 5.

However, food that just contains an unapproved insect that is not a catalogued insect-like species (or part of such an insect) is not defined food. For example, a plate of chicken rice with a black soldier fly would be considered “unsuitable”, as the fly is alien to that particular food. To be defined food, the food has to be, consist of or have as an ingredient, the insect-like species.

Insects for animal feed purposes, such as black soldier fly larvae, will not be catalogued but will be treated as animal feed for live food producing animals and the rearing and production of feed from these insects will be regulated separately via a licensing framework for the production of animal feed.

The other 2 categories of defined food viz. novel food and genetically modified food, remain defined foods until the Agency grants pre-market approval under Part 5. Pre-market approval is granted on application and is case-specific.

The term “genetically modified food” is defined by clause 13(3) to mean a food coming from an organism that has been altered using certain techniques, such that the resulting organism contains a combination of heritable genetic material that could not have occurred naturally or could not have been produced by traditional breeding and selection. Those techniques are —

- (a) in vitro nucleic acid techniques, including recombinant nucleic acids and direct injection of nucleic acid into cells or organelles; and
- (b) fusion of cells beyond the taxonomic family.

Any food that is, consists of or has as an ingredient, an insect-like species which has been so altered will be treated as genetically modified food. If the insect-like species has not been so altered, the food remains defined food until the insect-like species is a catalogued insect-like species.

The expression “novel food” is defined to mean any of the following:

- (a) a substance (which may consist of, be isolated from or produced from, cell culture or tissue culture derived from animals, plants, bacteria or yeast, fungi, algae or other micro-organism) that has not been used to a significant degree as food for a period of at least 20 years, whether within or outside Singapore;
- (b) a food that has been manufactured, prepared or preserved by a process that has not been previously used in food production for a period of at least 20 years, whether within or outside Singapore;
- (c) a food consisting of, isolated from or produced from material of mineral origin that has not been previously used in food production for a period of at least 20 years, whether within or outside Singapore;
- (d) a food that contains or consists of engineered nanomaterials.

Food that is, consists of or has as an ingredient, an insect-like species in any form is not novel food.

The policy intention is to take into account the history of consumption of food anywhere in the world, when determining whether or not food is novel food.

Clause 14 defines the expression “primary produce” for the purposes of the Bill, and defines when primary produce is unsafe.

Clause 15 defines the expression “primary production activity” for the purposes of the Bill.

Clause 16 defines the expression “animal feed” for the purposes of the Bill, and the circumstances where animal feed is not fit for purpose.

Unlike the definition in the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965, “animal feed” is defined for the purposes of the Bill to mean a live animal, or a material or a mix of materials (whether processed, semi-processed or raw), which is intended to be fed directly to any food producing animal. A feed additive is included in the definition of “animal feed”.

However, “animal feed” for the purposes of the Bill excludes pet food. Pet food continues as the subject of regulation under the amended Feeding Stuffs Act 1965; see Division 6 of Part 17.

Clause 17 deals with the concept of “associate”, which is relevant in the licensing provisions in Parts 3, 4 and 11.

As defined in the Bill, a person is an associate of another if the person is the spouse or relative of the other. Being an employer or employee of another or being in partnership with another also makes a person an associate of the other. The Minister may make rules in the Gazette providing that any person or class of persons is an associate of another person for the purposes of clause 17(1)(g). An applicant may be refused a licence if the applicant has an associate who is or was disqualified from holding the licence applied for.

STRENGTHENING RESILIENCE OF FOOD SUPPLIES IN SINGAPORE

Part 2 consists of 4 divisions aimed at improving Singapore’s resilience to agri-food supply chain disruptions (which could include events such as natural disasters or disruptions to international markets). The measures in Part 2 will be complemented by other requirements in the Bill aimed at addressing the potential impact of disruptive events.

The Director-General, Food Security is responsible for the administration of Part 2 and is vested with powers under the Part. He or she will be supported by food security officers appointed under clause 275(1). The term “Director-General, Food Security” is defined in clause 3(1) to mean an individual appointed by the Minister under clause 274(1).

Most powers in Part 2, which are vested in the Director-General, Food Security, are delegable to food security officers. The exception are powers in clauses 23, 24, 27 and 32. These are exercisable either by the Director-General, Food Security personally or by food security officers in the name of the Director-General, Food Security, only. The latter food security officers must be specially chosen by the Director-General, Food Security.

Division 1 of Part 2 contains an interpretive provision. Clause 18 explains the definitions of terms used only or mainly in Part 2.

Clause 18(1) read with clause 20 define the term “minimum stockholding requirement” (or “MSR”, for short). The MSR is to promote the resilience of essential food supplies and agri-food production inputs by requiring certain industry participants to hold a certain level of such foods or agri-food production inputs in Singapore to mitigate the risk of agri-food supply chain disruptions.

An “MSR product” is defined in clause 18(1) to mean —

- (a) any food that is prescribed by the Minister in the Part 2 Rules, to be an MSR product; or
- (b) any agri-food production input that is prescribed by the Minister in the Part 2 Rules, to be an MSR product.

Clause 3(1) defines “agri-food production input” broadly to cover all forms of substances used in agriculture or aquaculture to improve growth, including fertiliser. Among the other items listed as agri-food production input are plant pesticides, any seed, spore, bulb, root, cutting or other part of a plant from which plants grow or further plants grow, and veterinary biologics or vaccines, antitoxins or other preparations made from living organisms, which are suitable for use in diagnosing, treating or immunising animals.

Clause 18(1) defines the term “agri-food supply chain”, where a person in it is called an “agri-food supply chain participant”. The latter is a key term used in Part 2 because such a participant can become subject to MSR and the information obligations in Part 2.

“Agri-food supply chain” is defined to mean a supply chain for providing individuals (ultimate consumers) with items of food for personal consumption where the items of food either —

- (a) consist of or include; or
- (b) have been produced using (directly or indirectly, and whether or not exclusively), the whole or part of any food, any primary produce, any creature or other thing taken from the wild or any agri-food production input.

The products in the agri-food supply chain include any plant products grown (cereals, fruit and vegetables) as well as animal products for consumption (meat, dairy and eggs) including plant and animal products taken from the wild (for example, truffles and venison).

The agri-food supply chain may be colloquially known as “farm to fork”, from primary producers, through intermediary food processors to retailers such as supermarkets and ultimately individual consumers.

An “agri-food supply chain participant” is defined to mean any ultimate consumer, any person engaged in the production of primary produce, any person engaged in taking any animal, plant or other thing from the wild for the purposes of human or animal consumption, and any person in Singapore in the agri-food supply chain between the ultimate consumers and persons earlier mentioned. The latter can include —

- (a) any person engaged in producing, manufacturing, preparing or processing any food or agri-food production input in Singapore (such as a food factory proprietor or a veterinary vaccine manufacturer);
- (b) any person selling, distributing, transporting, supplying or storing any food or agri-food production input in Singapore (such as a supermarket chain, a food warehouse operator or a cold chain logistics business); and
- (c) any person making any food or agri-food production input available in Singapore, or providing the food or agri-food production input to another person in Singapore (such as an importer of food, animal feed, veterinary biologics or plant pesticide).

There is also a definition of “food security factors” in clause 18(1), which is defined to mean all of the following:

- (a) global food availability;
- (b) supply sources for food, including the range of supply sources and the availability to the ultimate consumers of food from local and other sources;
- (c) the resilience of the agri-food supply chain in response to natural or man-made disasters, climate change, severe disturbances in agricultural markets and other disruptions in the supply of food;
- (d) food safety and consumer confidence in food.

These food security factors are among the criteria for decision-making before imposing MSR and in fixing the MSR quantity.

Another common expression used in Part 2 in connection with entities is “subject to a minimum stockholding requirement”. This is related to clause 22 to refer to an entity that has triggered the minimum stockholding requirement.

Division 2 of Part 2 relates to the MSR. The Division contains 12 clauses, which altogether establish an obligation for entities (not individuals) that undertake certain activities (like importing and manufacturing) in relation to certain food or agri-food production inputs, to hold a minimum quantity of those foods or agri-food production inputs in Singapore, so that nationally there are stocks thereof.

What it means to hold stocks, and where and when holding an MSR product can or cannot be counted towards meeting an entity’s MSR is covered in detail in clause 19, which is in Division 1. This is because importers, manufacturers and other participants in the agri-food supply chain use a variety of arrangements for holding and accessing food and agri-food production inputs.

Under clause 19(2), the entity that owns the stocks which are stored in Singapore by the entity or by another entity, where no other entity is the holder of the stocks by virtue of that provision, is treated as the holder of those stocks.

Under clause 19(2), only stocks stored in Singapore are countable. The limitation to stocks stored in Singapore is intentional so as to ensure counting only of stocks that can reasonably be considered to improve food security in the unlikely event of no imports under limited conditions.

Under clause 18(2), stocks are stored in Singapore if they are on land, on a vessel in a port in Singapore, or waiting to enter a port in Singapore.

There is also power for the Minister to make rules prescribing additional circumstances where the storage of a food or agri-food production input would be taken to fall within the meaning of stored in Singapore. For example, stocks held privately may include stocks held at a dormitory facility for use in the operation of that facility. For now, these are excluded but it may be appropriate for these stocks to count towards meeting an entity's MSR in future.

However, if more than one entity would be the holder of the same stock of MSR product, clause 19(3) requires that which of those entities is the holder of the stock, and the share of the stock each entity is the holder of, must be as agreed between the entities. In the absence of any such agreement, the Director-General, Food Security must determine the issue in accordance with the method prescribed by the Minister in the Part 2 Rules. The complexity and changing nature of these arrangements means these details are appropriately dealt with in rules.

Joint ventures between entities can give rise to uncertainties as to which entity is the holder of an MSR product. Therefore, clause 19(3) seeks to ensure MSR products in Singapore are only counted once for the purposes of the MSR scheme and not double-counted. Clause 19 is not intended to capture the effects of mortgages and other security interests.

Finally, clause 19(1) states that if the stocks stored in Singapore are being used exclusively for the Singapore Armed Forces or visiting forces of a foreign country, then these stocks are not countable towards meeting an entity's MSR as they do not improve domestic food security and confidence in domestic food supplies, having already been allocated for other purposes.

Likewise, stocks that are being used for private or household domestic consumption are also excluded by clause 19(1) as these would never be large enough to matter for food security, and it would be challenging to monitor for compliance purposes. For the same reason, any stock being stored in a seagoing vessel for the consumption of crew or passengers is also not countable towards meeting an entity's MSR.

Also not counted is any stock of food that is an MSR product which is unsuitable, unsafe or a defined food.

Clause 20 defines what the MSR is.

It is basically an obligation on an entity that is made subject to the requirement (called an MSR entity) in relation to an MSR product to hold at least a quantity of stocks of the MSR product designated for the entity. The obligation operates at 2 different points in time:

- (a) each day (called the daily MSR), where the holding must be at least the quantity of stocks of the MSR product set out in a trigger notice;
- (b) for each relevant period, where the average holding of the MSR product in that period must be at least the average quantity of stocks of the MSR product set out in a trigger notice (called the average MSR).

The daily MSR and the average MSR quantities will be set out in a trigger notice given to the MSR entity. The level is intended to mitigate the impact of supply disruptions in the kind of food or agri-food production input.

If there is any increase in the price of an MSR product because of the daily MSR and average MSR, that would be offset by consumers benefitting from having a resilient agri-food supply that is robust enough to respond to disruptions should they occur.

Under the scheme, it is possible for an MSR entity to be given more than one trigger notice for different MSR products.

Clause 21 read with clause 20 state that the quantity of stocks of MSR product which an MSR entity has to hold daily, is the quantity specified in the trigger notice under clause 23 in force for the day that was given to the MSR entity in relation to that MSR product.

Clause 21 read with clause 20 also state that the average MSR for an MSR product designated for an entity for a relevant period applicable to the entity, is the quantity that is worked out in accordance with a formula in clause 23(3) for the relevant period and the entity. The quantity of average MSR must be specified in the trigger notice given to the entity in relation to that MSR product.

The relevant period will be set at a particular frequency (but at least one month) as determined by the Director-General, Food Security according to principles set out in rules made by the Minister.

The trigger notice may express the quantity in terms of a specific amount, or a formula or rate by which the amount is to be worked out. The quantity of MSR product for each entity will be fixed by the Director-General, Food Security having regard to food security factors and other factors as outlined in clause 25.

Clause 22 provides for the conditions which, if met, means an entity will be subject to the MSR. The conditions are that the Director-General, Food Security has given a trigger notice under clause 23 to the entity that the MSR has been triggered in relation to an MSR product and that the entity has not stopped engaging in all MSR activities in relation to the MSR product.

Clause 22(2) covers the conditions where the Director-General, Food Security has made a determination under clause 27 to deal with circumstances where entities have split, merged or been acquired, and the stocks of MSR products are transferred between entities.

Clause 23 provides the conditions which, if met, empowers the Director-General, Food Security to give an entity a trigger notice that will trigger the MSR for the entity in relation to an MSR product stated in the trigger notice.

A trigger notice in relation to an MSR product may be given —

- (a) only to an entity which is an agri-food supply chain participant in relation to the MSR product; and
- (b) only if the entity, during a period prescribed by the Part 2 Rules made by the Minister, undertakes an MSR activity in relation to the MSR product and, in doing so, exceeds the quantity prescribed by the Part 2 Rules for undertaking the MSR activity in relation to that MSR product.

The threshold in MSR activity involving an MSR product is to ensure that the MSR scheme binds entities that could significantly affect domestic levels of food or agri-food production inputs. It is also for this reason that a trigger notice can never be given to an ultimate consumer.

Clause 18(1) defines “MSR activity”, which must relate to an identified MSR product. The activity must be one undertaken in the course of business and involving an MSR product.

That can be importing an MSR product or manufacturing an MSR product, or some other activity, where prescribed by the Part 2 Rules made by the Minister in relation to the MSR product. The definition needs to be elaborated upon by subsidiary legislation because there could be significant changes to agri-food supply chains, which may necessitate expanding who should be made an MSR entity subject to a trigger notice.

Every trigger notice must specify the quantity of stocks of the MSR product the MSR entity given the trigger notice must hold on the relevant days for which the notice is in force, and the place or places in Singapore where those stocks must be held.

Those places may be spaces at a centralised storage facility made available by the Government, or at the MSR entity's own warehouses. To meet this obligation to hold MSR products onshore, it is expected that some MSR entities may need to change the way they manage their stock to reduce fluctuations in their stock levels.

The trigger notice stating the quantity of stocks of the MSR product remains in force for the relevant days occurring from the day the trigger notice comes into force and ending the day before the trigger notice is cancelled or a subsequent trigger notice regarding the same MSR product comes into force.

A trigger notice comes into force at least 6 months after the day the notice is given. This ensures an MSR entity is advised, at least 6 months in advance of the compliance period, the amount of MSR stock it will be required to hold on the particular relevant days. This is included to ensure MSR entities have sufficient time to prepare and vary any of their stock levels as required to meet the upcoming MSR compliance period.

The minimum interval of 6 months before a trigger notice comes into force can be varied subsequently in the Part 2 Rules made by the Minister.

Clause 23 does not fix the method of calculating the quantity. The Director-General, Food Security is vested with the discretion to determine the MSR quantity after taking into account these factors outlined in clause 25.

An MSR entity which is given a trigger notice may appeal against the notice to the Minister, under Part 12.

Clause 24 sets out when an MSR entity ceases to be subject to the MSR in relation to an MSR product. This can occur where the Director-General, Food Security is satisfied that the entity has permanently or indefinitely stopped undertaking all MSR activities in relation to that MSR product and the Director-General, Food Security cancels the trigger notice given to the entity.

Clause 25 sets out the criteria which the Director-General, Food Security has to apply —

- (a) in deciding whether or not to give a trigger notice under clause 23;
- (b) in determining under clause 23(3) the total minimum quantity of stocks of an MSR product that an entity must hold during a relevant period; or
- (c) in determining under clause 23(5) the quantity or average quantity of stocks of an MSR product to be specified in a trigger notice.

Those criteria are —

- (a) the food security factors (which is defined in clause 3(1));
- (b) the need to enhance resilience of the agri-food supply chain for Singapore;

- (c) the local eating patterns and preferences; and
- (d) the local food production capacity.

Clause 26 deals with a situation where the MSR may be temporarily suspended by the Minister in relation to a specified MSR product for a period (not exceeding 6 months). The suspension has to be by legislative instrument by an order in the Gazette, because this is tantamount to temporarily cancelling the effect of clause 20 enacted by the Legislature.

The suspension may be ordered only if both conditions below are met:

- (a) there is a disruptive event which directly affects the supply of the MSR product in Singapore occurring or which has occurred, or a threat of such a disruptive event;
- (b) the suspension under this clause is necessary to substantially prevent or substantially assist in mitigating the impact of the disruptive event, or the threatened disruptive event, on the supply of the MSR product in Singapore.

Clause 27 covers circumstances where entities have split, merged or been acquired. The Director-General, Food Security will need to make a determination under clause 27 regarding the MSR product quantity that will be transferred between entities. This aims to ensure MSR stock levels are not significantly impacted when mergers or acquisitions occur, to protect domestic food security.

Clause 28 imposes reporting obligations on an MSR entity in relation to an MSR product. This is to support food security planning by the Director-General, Food Security since there is no advance notice of when a key MSR entity might stop engaging in the essential business, even if the MSR entity may be licensed under Part 3 or 4.

An MSR entity has to give the Director-General, Food Security a written advice in advance if the entity intends to do any of the following:

- (a) undertake another MSR activity in relation to the same MSR product;
- (b) permanently or indefinitely cease undertaking an MSR activity in relation to the same MSR product;
- (c) cease undertaking an MSR activity in relation to the same MSR product in any other circumstances.

The advance period will be specified in the Part 2 Rules made by the Minister.

The advance advice has to be in writing, and at a minimum, must contain details of the situation to which the advice relates, and set out any matters that might affect the entity's capacity to meet the MSR in relation to an MSR product.

An MSR entity that intentionally or negligently contravenes this obligation shall be guilty of an offence. Failure to comply with this reporting obligation would likely result in inaccurate and misleading data leading to errors in calculating the appropriate level of in-country stocks and the MSR for different entities and MSR products, and has the potential to seriously undermine the integrity of the MSR scheme.

Clause 29 deals with the immediate consequences if an MSR entity does not meet the average MSR set for an MSR product under clause 20(b) (which requires the MSR entity to hold in Singapore a minimum average quantity of an MSR product for a relevant period).

Clause 29 makes the MSR entity in default of the average MSR for a relevant period liable to pay to the Director-General, Food Security an MSR charge. The MSR charge is an amount calculated by applying a multiplier prescribed by the Part 2 Rules to the MSR product shortfall for the relevant period. The MSR charge must be paid to the Director-General, Food Security not later than the 14th day after the written demand is given.

Clause 30 deals with the immediate consequences if an MSR entity does not meet the daily MSR set for an MSR product under clause 20(a) (which requires the MSR entity to hold in Singapore a minimum quantity of MSR product each day).

Clause 30 makes the MSR entity in default of the daily MSR liable to pay to the Director-General, Food Security an MSR charge. The MSR charge is an amount calculated by applying a multiplier prescribed by the Part 2 Rules to the MSR product shortfall for the relevant day. The MSR charge must be paid to the Director-General, Food Security not later than the 14th day after the written demand is given.

An MSR entity may find itself liable to pay an MSR charge for defaulting on the average MSR for a relevant period even though the entity meets the daily MSR throughout the same relevant period. Alternatively, an MSR entity may find itself liable to pay an MSR charge for defaulting on the daily MSR for any day in a relevant period and not accrue any liability for not meeting the average MSR for the relevant period that that day falls within.

It is also plausible for an MSR entity to find itself liable to pay 2 MSR charges for defaulting on the average MSR and the daily MSR.

Clause 31 is about the offence of contravening the daily MSR in clause 20(a) (which requires an MSR entity to hold in Singapore a minimum quantity of MSR products each day).

The offence is committed by an MSR entity if the entity intentionally or recklessly does not hold at least the quantity of stocks of the MSR product designated for the entity on the relevant day.

The maximum penalty reflects the seriousness of the contravening conduct and the risk that the conduct may pose to Singapore's food security. For a criminal breach of the daily MSR, the total maximum penalty is a fine not exceeding $25,000, or an amount that is calculated according to clause 31, if higher.

To determine that amount of maximum fine, clause 31 provides a formula using a multiplier prescribed by the Part 2 Rules which may be greater than that prescribed in clause 30 for the MSR charge.

Division 3 of Part 2 consists of 5 provisions dealing with the obligation on agri-food supply chain participants and those closely connected with an agri-food supply chain to provide information on request to the Director-General, Food Security. The scope of subject matter may extend beyond food and agri-food production inputs as defined in the Bill. The veracity and accuracy of such data will also be crucial to the integrity of the proposed MSR scheme in Division 2.

Clause 32 empowers the Director-General, Food Security to require a person who is an agri-food supply chain participant, or who is closely connected with an agri-food supply chain, to provide information to the Director-General, Food Security, within a reasonable period specified in that requirement. The person need not be subject to an MSR requirement but must come within a class of persons prescribed in the Part 2 Rules for the purposes of this section.

These requirements will permit the Director-General, Food Security to collect more detailed information on stocks of different food and agri-food production inputs at national level, international supply chains and contingency arrangements connected with food and agri-food production inputs. This will allow for a more accurate assessment of Singapore's food resilience, help identify opportunities to improve food resilience, and monitor compliance with the proposed average MSR and daily MSR.

Clause 32(2) defines which persons are considered to be "closely connected" with an agri-food supply chain. This will include those persons (individuals and companies) providing either goods or services for use in the agri-food supply chain. In relation to animal products, this will include (but is not limited to) veterinarians and any other persons providing animal health or welfare services. This category will also include persons who manufacture, sell or distribute machinery or general primary production equipment, to those engaged in agriculture or animal husbandry.

Clause 32(2) also extends to any person performing activities capable of affecting activities in the agri-food supply chain. This may include, for example, persons keeping animals (such as those in zoos, or hobby chickens) where those animals could be a risk to, or at risk from, animals in the food chain in the event of a disease incursion or outbreak. This is just one example of how a person could be "closely connected" with the agri-food supply chain.

Excluded from clause 32 are individuals in an agri-food supply chain so far as they are in the agri-food supply chain by reason of them, or members of their households, being the ultimate consumers.

Clause 33 sets out what information may be required under clause 32.

The information required has to be about matters connected with a person's activities connected with the agri-food supply chain so far as the activities are in or relate to Singapore, and which is within the knowledge of the person to whom a requirement under clause 32 is given or is in the custody or under the control of that person.

It is therefore a defence to a charge of not providing information if the information required under clause 32 is beyond the control or knowledge of the agri-food supply chain participant, or person who is closely connected with an agri-food supply chain.

The information also has to be required under clause 32 for certain purposes only. This is information that the Director-General, Food Security considers necessary —

- (a) to determine whether to declare a food or agri-food production input an MSR product or an MSR activity for an MSR product, and holdings of MSR products. For example, an MSR entity may be required to update on changes in the location of their holdings of an MSR product;
- (b) to determine whether there are grounds to give a trigger notice, or to reduce the MSR for an MSR entity temporarily or otherwise, or to exercise any other power under any provision of the Bill directed at mitigating the impact on Singapore of agri-food supply chain disruptions or the impact of disruptive events on the supply of food or agri-food production inputs in Singapore;
- (c) to monitor or analyse markets connected with agri-food supply chains. This may include general commodity price levels or sectoral output statistics, which can be used to inform the use of food security measures under the Bill; and
- (d) to monitor the resilience of the agri-food supply chain in response to natural or man-made disasters, climate change, severe disturbances in agricultural markets and other disruptions in the supply of food and agri-food production inputs.

Finally, the information requirement imposed on a person under clause 32 does not apply to so much of the information as the person would in legal proceedings be entitled to refuse to provide on grounds of legal privilege.

Clause 34 states that every clause 32 requirement for information must specify the purposes behind the request for the data. The purposes for which information may be required must be in, or be included within, at least one of the purposes stated in clause 33.

Clause 34 also sets out other requirements that a clause 32 requirement must satisfy to be properly given. These are largely procedural requirements as to stating the form in and time by which information is to be provided. The clause 32 requirement must also state that the failure to meet the clause 32 requirement is an offence.

Clause 35 imposes a statutory restriction on disclosure of information collected by virtue of a requirement under clause 32 to persons outside of the Singapore public sector. This does not limit the general permissibility of sharing of data within the Singapore public sector, as authorised under the Public Sector (Governance) Act 2018.

If any information provided in response to a clause 32 requirement is proposed to be disclosed to the general public or to a person who is not another Singapore public sector agency, the information must be disclosed only in an anonymised form.

Clause 36 sets out the offence of not providing the information required under clause 32 or not providing the information in a timely manner. The offence of providing information which is false is dealt with separately in Part 13.

The offence is necessary because failure to comply with the information reporting obligation under clause 32 would likely result in inaccurate and misleading data leading to errors in food security planning.

Clause 36 also provides that a person required to give information to the Director-General, Food Security pursuant to a clause 32 requirement does not have a defence that doing so is a breach by the person of a duty of confidentiality or privacy under any prescribed written law, any rule of law, any contract or any rule of professional conduct. Clause 258 confers immunity on the person if the person gives the information in good faith in compliance with the requirement under clause 32. The obligation to give information to the Director-General, Food Security pursuant to a clause 32 requirement does not override the privilege against self-incrimination.

Division 4 of Part 2 consists of 5 provisions dealing with general matters.

The vast majority of entities liable to pay the MSR charge are likely to pay their liabilities without problem or delay, guided by the information sent by the Director-General, Food Security in the trigger notice and the written demand under clause 29 or 30, as the case may be. However, where there are problems in collecting the MSR charge, it is important that the Director-General, Food Security has the means to penalise late payment and recover the amounts in arrears.

Clause 37 provides that if any MSR charge is not paid before the end of the time delimited for payment by or under clause 29 or 30, interest at the rate prescribed by the Part 2 Rules (made under clause 40) of the amount unpaid is payable by the MSR entity to the Director-General, Food Security.

Clause 38 requires all MSR charges and late payment interest collected or recovered under the Bill, to be paid into the Consolidated Fund. Clause 38 further deems any MSR charge, when it becomes due and payable, to be a debt due to the Government. Any MSR charge and late payment interest that is unpaid may therefore be recovered as a debt in any court of competent jurisdiction by the Agency.

Clause 39 empowers the Minister to remit, in whole or in part, any MSR charge accrued under clause 29 or 30 and any late payment interest imposed under clause 37, where the Minister is satisfied of certain conditions. These are —

- (a) that payment of any MSR charge payable is likely to cause substantial hardship to an entity; or
- (b) that payment of any MSR charge payable by a particular entity is not compatible with the purposes of Part 2 having regard to the peculiar facts of the case.

Clause 40 empowers the Minister to make rules (called the Part 2 Rules) for the purposes of Part 2.

The Part 2 Rules may prescribe requirements in respect of legally enforceable arrangements to provide clarity to MSR entities and the Director-General, Food Security for the purposes of clause 19. It is intended that the Rules will help avoid incorporating any arrangements, such as security interests in the stocks, that are not intended to make the holder of the security a holder of the stocks for the purposes of Division 4.

The Part 2 Rules may prescribe a method that determines how MSR products can be counted towards meeting an entity's MSR if more than one entity owns the stock, and the conditions for when entities are considered to be holders of the stocks, or the holder of a proportion of stocks. Having this addressed by the Part 2 Rules allows flexibility to consult with the industry and to adjust if required because of new ownership arrangements adopted by the industry.

The Part 2 Rules may contain procedures that an MSR entity must comply with, in order to ensure the safety or efficacy of the MSR product when it is held. This extends to requirements to ensure suitability for consumption as food. For example, prescribing standards as to the manner of storage, and the maximum length of holding of the MSR product before supplying it in Singapore. The Part 2 Rules may also contain surveillance requirements in relation to the MSR product, so that it is secure from loss, theft, sabotage or unauthorised access.

Clause 41 is a saving and transitional provision aimed at preserving and transferring the present stockholding arrangements under the Price Control Act 1950 as regards rice to the MSR scheme that is in Division 2 of Part 2.

Broadly, an entity that is holding a licence to import under the Price Control Act 1950 when Part 2 comes into force, will be given a trigger notice and thus continue with immediate effect as being subject to an MSR requirement. Whether a licence to import is also granted under the Bill to the entity is immaterial. Unlike persons first given a trigger notice after Part 2 comes into force, those given a trigger notice under the transitional arrangements will not have a right of appeal against the trigger notice. This is to ensure a seamless transition from the scheme under the Price Control Act 1950 to the Bill.

IMPORT, EXPORT AND TRANSHIPMENT

Singapore imports most of its food today. Food importers today must make sure that the food they are planning to import is safe and suitable and fit for human consumption, and there are systems in place for border testing of food imports. There are also requirements to ensure so far as is practicable that all imported animal feed for food producing animals in Singapore is fit for its intended purpose.

The regulation of foods for export by Singapore's Government is presently a prerequisite for the acceptance of those foods by importing countries.

However, Singapore's existing legislative framework for food trading has developed over 35 years across commodity-specific lines across 3 different Acts. Today's regulatory systems differ, depending on the provisions in the Animals and Birds Act 1965, the Control of Plants Act 1993 or the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999. Penalties for offences involving foods of animal origin are apparently higher because of their greater potential to transfer animal diseases, harmful organisms, chemical residues, or other contaminants. The import of animal feed for all animals is presently regulated under the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965 and the Animals and Birds Act 1965, which is duplicatory.

Furthermore, increasing globalisation of food supply and increasingly complex supply chains have made it harder to manage imported food safety risks. Local consumer tastes regarding food have grown and the increased imports of a wider range of food further raise the risk of foodborne disease. The daily volume of trade here makes impracticable maintaining as a primary enforcement approach, that of relying on border inspection of incoming and outgoing consignments to detect point-in-time defaults.

Only a small portion of food in a lot can be tested and a negative result does not guarantee that the entire lot is safe. When food is tested for the presence of foodborne pathogens and certain kinds of chemical hazards, these may not be evenly distributed throughout a food lot or consignment. For some foodborne pathogens and hazards, there are no practical tests that can be applied at the border (for example, it is difficult to test for viruses in foods such as norovirus and hepatitis A virus).

Border testing alone is also recognised among many countries as insufficient to provide assurance of an imported food's safety. Many countries require preventative controls throughout the supply chain to manage imported food safety risks.

Recognising that some foods will scientifically present a greater risk to consumers and public health, Part 3 will enable import inspection schemes (which are regulations) to be established, identifying foods and other controlled items which require prior clearance for import or export, what is needed for this clearance, and which are monitored via different levels of inspection for specific hazards. This seeks to reduce administrative burden on compliant licensees and enable faster clearance at the border through better targeting and a focus on higher risk commodities and licensee conduct.

The controlled items which require clearance and/or prior inspection are termed “examinable matter” in clause 42(1).

For the types of food where at-border testing alone is insufficient to provide assurance of food safety, Part 3 will require traders to provide assurance of food safety as part of the applicable standards which must be met. Among the newer standards required is evidence from importers to demonstrate that they have effective food safety controls in place throughout their supply chain.

In line with current practice, other items may also be imported under a foreign government certification arrangement, where the Agency can unilaterally or through mutual agreements with another national competent authority of a country exporting food to Singapore, recognise their food safety certifications as adequate for the purposes of the Bill. Consignments of import-controlled items accompanied by a recognised foreign government certificate may be inspected and tested at a reduced rate, thereby helping minimise delays in border clearance.

Recognised government certification is not new and is currently mandatory for meat and meat products.

The Bill will require the integrity of controlled items imported, exported or transhipped as well as the accuracy of descriptions and official marks that are applied to them.

In essence, Part 3 will require food importers to source safe and suitable food, keep the food safe during storage and transportation, keep good records and have procedures in place to recall food if it is unsafe or unsuitable, or becomes unsafe or unsuitable. Likewise for other import-controlled items like animal feed.

Part 3 comprises 7 Divisions, which regulate the import, export and transshipment of controlled items, contain offences relating to trading in controlled items, enable food and other controlled items to be held at the border where there is uncertainty about their fitness, and impose record-keeping duties on food importers so that they have the ability to trace food imported one step forwards and one step backwards.

Division 1 of Part 3 consists of 3 interpretive provisions.

Clause 42 contains definitions which are used only or mainly in Part 3. A key concept is that of controlled items, as trading in these is regulated. There are 3 groups of controlled items.

Import-controlled items make up the largest range viz. food (except a food additive as such), a prepacked food additive preparation, a regulated food contact article, an animal feed, and any agri-food production input that the Minister declares, by order in the Gazette, to be an import-controlled item.

Unlike the rest of the Bill, “agri-food production input” in Part 3 excludes the following even if essential in undertaking any primary production activity:

- (a) any animal reproductive material from a food producing animal;
- (b) any young of a food producing animal;
- (c) any seed, spore, bulb, root, cutting or other part of a plant from which plants grow or further plants grow;
- (d) any veterinary biologics, or any vaccines, antitoxins or other preparations made from living organisms, which are suitable for use in diagnosing, treating or immunising animals.

This is to minimise overregulation of the industry. The licensing of the import of these matters is and will continue to be covered under the Animals and Birds Act 1965, the Wildlife Act 1965 and the Control of Plants Act 1993, which are administered by the National Parks Board.

Transshipment-controlled items consist of certain food only viz. eggs, any meat or meat product, and any fish or fish product. The definition may be extended by the Minister to any other food or any agri-food production input through an order in the Gazette.

Export-controlled items are either any transshipment-controlled item or rice.

Clause 43 defines the scope of the application of Part 3. Part 3 does not apply to controlled items imported, exported or transhipped before Part 3 comes into force.

Next, all imports of import-controlled items are subject to the provisions of Part 3 with a few exceptions. The exceptions relate to matters which are not significant in terms of threat to public health. For example, ship’s or aircraft’s stores which are for the use of passengers or crew, and food imported for private consumption.

Clause 44 defines what imported for private consumption means.

Food (other than a food additive as such) or any prepacked food additive preparation of a particular kind or different kinds is taken to have been imported for private consumption if on the particular occasion of its bringing into Singapore, all the following conditions are met:

- (a) the food or prepacked food additive preparation has not been imported as a trade sample or for use in any food business;
- (b) the food or prepacked food additive preparation has not been imported for the purpose of donating it to other persons in Singapore;
- (c) the food or prepacked food additive preparation does not exceed the maximum quantity threshold;
- (d) the food or prepacked food additive preparation is imported by not more than one individual.

The quantity threshold is —

- (a) a total weight of not more than 15 kilograms (inclusive of any eggs), or another total volume or total weight that is prescribed at the time of that occasion by the Minister by subsidiary legislation; or
- (b) if any of the food is eggs — a clutch of not more than 30 eggs, or another number of eggs that is prescribed at the time of that occasion by the Minister by subsidiary legislation.

However, some foods present a greater risk to consumers and public health. These are classified as foods of higher regulatory concern. Even small quantity import of any food of higher regulatory concern must be done by a licensed importer and covered by a consignment permit, because these foods require specific food safety clearance and monitoring for specific hazards.

Examples of food of higher regulatory concern are any puffer fish, or any fish product wholly or partially derived from puffer fish, any live fertilised or embryonated egg, any raw or unpasteurised liquid milk, any edible insect-like species which is not catalogued, and any novel food in respect of which pre-market approval under Part 5 has not been granted.

Division 2 of Part 3 lists trading activities which are offences.

As in all other Parts of the Bill, the offences are divided generally into those which have a mental element and attract a higher punishment upon conviction, and those which are “strict liability”, where the prosecution is only required to prove the physical elements of the offence in order for the defendant to be found guilty.

The strict liability offences attract a lower punishment on conviction, for this reason.

Part 3 contains several proposed strict liability offences as there is a strong public interest in managing imported food safety risks appropriately, and in preventing foodborne illness which is a serious and costly public health and safety issue. Strict liability offences have been retained also because it can be reasonably expected that the potential defendants for offences in Part 3 would be aware of their duties and obligations. Strict liability offences are not inconsistent with the presumption of innocence.

Penalties are also divided based on whether the offender is an individual or an entity, with a custodial punishment for individuals, and a higher maximum fine for offenders which are entities. There is also a stepping up of the maximum punishment for repeat offenders.

Clause 45 contains the offence of importing a prohibited food, a prohibited food contact article or a prohibited animal feed, when the importer knows, or ought reasonably to know, that it is a prohibited food, a prohibited food contact article or a prohibited animal feed, as the case may be.

Clause 46 is the strict liability offence involving importing of a prohibited food, a prohibited food contact article or a prohibited animal feed.

What is a prohibited food, a prohibited food contact article or a prohibited animal feed is decided by the Minister in exercise of the powers set out in clause 69. These are food, a food contact article or an animal feed the import of which is banned.

Clause 47 makes it an offence if a person imports an object or a thing which is an import-controlled item, when the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the object or thing is an import-controlled item subject to the provisions of Part 3, and the person does not hold —

- (a) a current licence to import that import-controlled item; and
- (b) a current import consignment permit for the consignment of that import-controlled item.

For example, a motorist attempting to smuggle, in concealed compartments in his or her vehicle, 37 kilograms of beef patties intended for a food business.

Food imported for private consumption is not subject to the provisions of Part 3; see clause 43.

It is however not an offence if the person is either exempt from clause 47 under clause 320 or 321 in relation to the import of that import-controlled item, or is a person on whose behalf an import licence holder is importing the import-controlled item.

Clause 48 is the strict liability offence involving the unlicensed import of an import-controlled item.

The offences in clauses 47 and 48 are not entirely new. They replace the commodity-specific offences as follows viz.:

- (a) section 7(4) of the Control of Plants Act 1993 for importing fresh fruits and vegetables without a licence under that Act;
- (b) section 8(3) of the Control of Plants Act 1993 for importing fresh fruits and vegetables without a permit under that Act;
- (c) section 5(2) of the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999 for importing any meat product or fish product without a licence under that Act;
- (d) section 6(4) of the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999 for contravening section 6(1)(a) of that Act involving any meat or meat product or any fish or fish product;
- (e) section 8(3) of the Animals and Birds Act 1965 for importing any egg that is food without a licence under that Act.

The difference is that a breach of a licence condition or permit condition is decriminalised under clauses 47 and 48. Under the Bill, a breach of a licence condition or permit condition is instead the subject of regulatory action under clauses 83 and 84.

Clause 49 makes it an offence if a holder of a current import consignment permit imports a consignment comprising any import-controlled item and the consignment does not conform to the import consignment permit in any of the following ways, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the consignment is non-conforming in that way:

- (a) the maximum mass or weight of the import-controlled item;
- (b) the place outside Singapore from which the import-controlled item originates;
- (c) the composition, method of manufacture or production, grade or quality of the import-controlled item;
- (d) the import-controlled item having the approval of a specified foreign government of a particular foreign country or a foreign food authority of a specified foreign country.

Clause 49 does not apply if the import-controlled item is failing. That is covered by another clause.

Clause 50 is the strict liability offence involving importing of a non-conforming consignment of an import-controlled item. The prosecution does not need to prove that the person charged knew, or ought reasonably to have known, that the consignment is non-conforming.

For example, 2 tonnes of vegetables of a particular kind are found in a consignment when brought into Singapore by a transporter contracted by the importer to transport the vegetables, where the consignment permit granted on application states only one tonne of that vegetable.

Clause 51 is an offence similar to that in clause 47 except that clause 51 concerns exporting and export-controlled items. Clause 51 makes it an offence for a person to export an object or a thing which is an export-controlled item when the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the object or thing is an export-controlled item, and the person is not a holder of a current licence to export and an export consignment permit for that export-controlled item or is not a person on whose behalf a licensed exporter is exporting the export-controlled item.

It is also not an offence if the person is exempt from this clause under clause 320 or 321 in relation to the export of that export-controlled item.

Clause 52 is the strict liability offence involving unlicensed export of an export-controlled item.

Clause 53 contains an offence similar to that in clause 49 except that it relates to exporting a non-conforming consignment of export-controlled items. Clause 53 makes it an offence if a holder of a current export consignment permit exports a consignment comprising any export-controlled item and the consignment does not conform to the export consignment permit in any of the following ways, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the consignment is non-conforming in that way:

- (a) the maximum mass or weight of the export-controlled item;
- (b) the place outside Singapore to which the export-controlled item is to be exported;
- (c) the composition, method of manufacture or production, grade or quality of the export-controlled item;
- (d) the export-controlled item having the approval of the Agency, a foreign government or foreign food authority as is required by any inspection scheme regulations.

Clause 53 does not apply to an export-controlled item which is failing because there is another offence.

Clause 54 is the strict liability offence involving exporting of a non-conforming consignment of an export-controlled item.

Clause 55 makes it an offence for a person to tranship a consignment comprising any transshipment-controlled item when the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the consignment comprises the transshipment-controlled item, and the person is not granted a transshipment consignment permit covering the particular consignment.

It is not an offence if the person is exempt from clause 55 under clause 320 or 321 in relation to the transshipment of that consignment.

Clause 56 is the strict liability offence involving transshipment of a consignment comprising any transshipment-controlled item without a transshipment consignment permit covering the particular consignment.

Clause 57 makes it an offence for a person to enter an object or a thing for export or transshipment, or to export or transship an object or a thing, if that object or thing needs an inspection advice under the Bill, and no such inspection advice has been issued in respect of the object or thing, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that an inspection advice has not been issued in respect of the object or thing.

An object or a thing is entered for export or transshipment if, in the course of the preparation or production of the object or thing for export or transshipment, the object or thing is presented to, or information about the object or thing is given to, an officer of customs, or an authorised officer, acting for the purpose of the officer exercising a power or performing a function in relation to the object or thing under any written law regulating the export or transshipment of goods.

Clause 58 is the strict liability offence involving entering an object or a thing for export or transshipment, or exporting or transshipping an object or a thing, being an object or a thing that needs an inspection advice under the Bill, where no such inspection advice has been issued in respect of the object or thing.

Clauses 59 to 66 are offences which deal with import-controlled items only.

Clause 59 sets out the offence of importing a controlled item knowing it does not meet applicable standards, or is not covered by a recognised foreign government certificate where the inspection scheme regulations identify the import-controlled item as one that, if imported, must be covered by a recognised foreign government certificate, and the person importing knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the import-controlled item does not meet an applicable standard or is not covered by the requisite recognised foreign government certificate.

A higher penalty is prescribed if the prosecution proves that the controlled item imported was unsafe food or was a type of regulated food contact article that had or may have contaminated any food or caused or may have caused food to no longer be safe, and the defendant knew, or ought reasonably to have known, that those circumstances applied with respect to the import-controlled item when imported.

Clause 60 is the strict liability offence of clause 59. This involves importing a controlled item which does not meet applicable standards or is not covered by a recognised foreign government certificate where the inspection scheme regulations identify the import-controlled item as one that, if imported, must be covered by a recognised foreign government certificate.

For example, importing of any food product without labelling of allergens, which is a present requirement and will continue to be required under regulations made under the Bill.

Similarly, a higher penalty is prescribed if the prosecution proves that the controlled item imported was unsafe food, or was a type of regulated food contact article that had or may have contaminated any food or caused or may have caused food to no longer be safe.

For example, importing of vegetables found to contain the pesticide residue carbofuran, at levels with acute toxicity concerns.

Clause 61 contains an offence of intentionally dealing with an imported object or thing which is examinable matter without the prior approval of an authorised officer, when the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the object or thing was imported, and that an inspection advice has not been issued in respect of the object or thing.

The term “deal with” in relation to any thing is defined in clause 3(1) to non-exhaustively refer to moving, altering or interfering with the thing in any physical manner, or supplying the thing or otherwise entering into a transaction whereby the ownership of the thing, or of any beneficial interest in the thing, passes from one person to another.

Clause 62 is an offence of intentionally dealing with an imported object or thing which is examinable matter without the prior approval of an authorised officer, when an inspection advice has not been issued in respect of the object or thing.

Clause 63 contains the offence of intentionally dealing with an import-controlled item which has been identified in an inspection advice as failing, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the import-controlled item was imported and has been identified in an inspection advice as failing, and the person does not have the approval of an authorised officer to deal with the import-controlled item in that manner.

Clause 64 makes it an offence for a person to have in possession an imported object or thing knowing that it is being or is likely to be supplied or offered or displayed for supply, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the object or thing is imported and is a prohibited food, a prohibited food contact article or a prohibited animal feed.

Clause 42(1) defines what is “failing”. This refers to any examinable matter that, as a result of an inspection, or inspection and analysis, under any inspection scheme regulations, is found to be one of the following:

- (a) a food that —
 - (i) does not meet an applicable standard (which includes a labelling requirement) for that food;
 - (ii) is unsuitable food, unsafe food or a defined food; or
 - (iii) if imported, is not covered by a recognised foreign government certificate where the inspection scheme regulations identify the food as one that, if imported, must be covered by a recognised foreign government certificate;
- (b) a regulated food contact article that does not meet an applicable standard for that regulated food contact article;
- (c) an animal feed that does not meet an applicable standard for that animal feed, or is not fit for purpose;
- (d) an agri-food production input that does not meet an applicable standard for that agri-food production input;
- (e) a prohibited food, a prohibited food contact article or a prohibited animal feed.

Clause 42(1) defines “applicable standard” in relation to the different controlled items. Where food is concerned, the definition extends beyond the composition or nature of food and includes labelling requirements. The standard also covers the handling and method of handling of food, so that there can be effective food safety controls in place throughout the supply chain (see clause 309).

Clause 65 makes it an offence if a person has in possession any object or thing knowing that it is being or is likely to be supplied or offered or displayed for supply, when the object or thing is an import-controlled item that was imported and does not meet an applicable standard or has been identified in an inspection advice as failing, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the import-controlled item was imported and does not meet an applicable standard or has been identified in an inspection advice as failing.

A higher penalty is prescribed if the prosecution proves that the controlled item imported was unsafe food, was a type of regulated food contact article that had or may have contaminated any food or caused or may have caused food to no longer be safe, or was an animal feed not fit for purpose, and the defendant knew, or ought reasonably to have known, that those circumstances applied with respect to the import-controlled item.

Unlike clauses 59 and 60, the defendant in clause 65 is not limited to the importer and may extend to persons who acquire items from importers.

However, clause 65 does not extend to a prohibited food, a prohibited food contact article or a prohibited animal feed and does not apply if the person had the approval of an authorised officer to possess the import-controlled item in that manner.

Clause 66 provides that an offence is committed where a person has in possession any import-controlled item knowing that it is being or is likely to be supplied or offered or displayed for supply, and the person knows or ought reasonably to know that the import-controlled item was imported, and the import-controlled item does not meet an applicable standard or has been identified in an inspection advice as failing.

A higher penalty is prescribed if the prosecution proves that the controlled item imported was unsafe food or was a type of regulated food contact article that had or may have contaminated any food or caused or may have caused food to no longer be safe.

However, clause 66 does not extend to a prohibited food, a prohibited food contact article or a prohibited animal feed and does not apply if the person had the approval of an authorised officer to possess the import-controlled item in that manner.

Clause 67 sets out a defence with respect to an offence under Part 3, under which the defendant has to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that —

- (a) the commission of the offence was due to an act or omission of another person (who is not an employee, agent or officer of the defendant), or an accident or some other cause outside the defendant's control; and
- (b) the defendant took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to prevent the commission of the offence by the defendant, or by another person under the defendant's control.

The general defence in section 26H(4) of the Penal Code 1871 is disapplied so as to avoid legal confusion.

Clause 68 contains a rebuttable presumption as to possession of food for the purpose of supply, and knowledge that the food is likely to be supplied or offered or displayed for supply. The presumption does not extend to other controlled items.

Division 5 of Part 3 contains 7 clauses relating to prohibitions, the creation of inspection schemes for border checks of controlled items and the giving of inspection advice and holding orders.

Clause 69 empowers the Minister to declare, by an order in the Gazette, a prohibited food, a prohibited food contact article or a prohibited animal feed, which are things which are prohibited from import.

Under clause 69(1), the Minister may prohibit the import of a food, or a brand of food, because the Minister is satisfied that there is some uncertainty or concern associated with the food and that categorising it as prohibited food will assist in managing the risk that the food poses to human health in Singapore.

The uncertainty or concern is about the risk to the safety and suitability of the food, in light of information about —

- (a) the nature of the food or the source from which it is derived;
- (b) the hazards associated with the food;
- (c) the measures applied during the manufacturing or handling of the food, or during its production if the food is primary produce;
- (d) the likelihood of a particular contaminant being present in the food at a level determined as unacceptable in accordance with any applicable standard or any international standard, or any science-based criteria; or
- (e) the likelihood that the food is unsafe or unsuitable.

The Minister does not need to be satisfied in every case that the food is actually unsafe or unsuitable.

Under clause 69(2), the Minister may, by order in the Gazette, prohibit the import of a regulated food contact article because the Minister is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds to believe that it is particularly dangerous to use with food because of its construction.

For example, a container that is made up of materials from which harmful chemicals are likely to migrate into the food at quantities which could endanger human health, whenever the container is used to hold hot and greasy food over short contact times, may be prescribed as a prohibited food contact article.

Finally, clause 69(3) empowers the Minister, by order in the Gazette, to prohibit the import of an animal feed, or a brand of animal feed, because the Minister is satisfied that there is some uncertainty or concern associated with the animal feed and that if the animal feed did enter or continue to enter Singapore on import, it may have a significant adverse impact on any primary production activity in Singapore.

The uncertainty or concern must be about the fitness for purpose of the animal feed, or brand of animal feed, in light of information about —

- (a) the nature of the animal feed or the source from which it is derived;
- (b) the hazards associated with the animal feed;

- (c) the measures applied during the manufacturing or handling of the animal feed, or during its cultivation if the animal feed is a live animal;
- (d) the likelihood that the animal feed contains a substance that is proscribed under the animal feed regulations; or
- (e) the potential adverse impact to primary production activity in Singapore as a result of food producing animals consuming such animal feed.

Clause 70 confers a power on the Agency to ban the import of any live food producing animal of a particular kind from a particular country or place outside Singapore where it is necessary to alleviate or minimise any risk of the death of, or a serious physical harm to, any individual who might later consume in Singapore the animal, or any meat, meat product or fish product derived from such an animal.

A ban made under clause 70 may be in force for a period not exceeding 90 days (called the freeze period) unless earlier revoked. While the freeze period cannot exceed 90 days in the first instance, it may be renewed only once by the Agency for a further period not exceeding 30 days.

As the import of live animals and birds is licensed under the Animals and Birds Act 1965, the Control of Plants Act 1993, or the Wildlife Act 1965, clause 70 provides that the ban must prevail over the provisions of those other Acts. Consequential and related amendments to those other Acts are made in Part 17 for this reason.

Clause 71 empowers the Agency, with the approval of the Minister, to make regulations establishing one or more inspection schemes applicable to any controlled item. The regulations may —

- (a) identify controlled items of particular kinds as controlled items of a kind that if imported, exported or transhipped must be inspected, or inspected and analysed;
- (b) identify controlled items of particular kinds as controlled items that if imported, exported or transhipped must be covered by a recognised foreign government certificate;
- (c) classify controlled items of particular kinds into particular categories;
- (d) prescribe conditions in relation to the import, export or transhipment of controlled items, or the import from or export to a specified country of controlled items, that are required to be complied with in respect of matters or things related to the controlled items themselves;
- (e) specify circumstances in which a controlled item is taken to be failing;

- (f) specify circumstances in which a controlled item is to be taken to be failing because of its relationship to another controlled item that is found to be failing;
- (g) set out the circumstances and manner in which a controlled item, other than a controlled item that is the subject of a holding order, is to be held pending the outcome of an inspection, or inspection and analysis; and
- (h) require the keeping and retention of records relevant to monitoring or evaluating compliance with the requirements of Part 3 for a period prescribed in the regulations.

Clause 72 is about the giving of inspection advice concerning consignments as part of border checks after checks are completed. After a controlled item that is required to be inspected, or inspected and analysed, upon entering Singapore or before leaving Singapore, has been so inspected, or inspected and analysed, an authorised officer or a food inspector must issue an inspection advice in writing —

- (a) to the owner of the controlled item; and
- (b) if the controlled item is under customs control — to the person having possession of the controlled item at the time.

The inspection advice has to state —

- (a) whether the whole or a part of the controlled item dealt with in the advice is identified as failing; or
- (b) whether the consignment comprising the controlled item is identified as not conforming to any identifying detail of the consignment that is stated in the consignment permit.

In either case, the inspection advice must state how the failing controlled item or non-conforming consignment is to be dealt with.

If a consignment is failing, the relevant inspection advice will be given and if an offence is disclosed, this may be followed up with enforcement action.

The results of the border checks may provide information to decide if a recall to remove the failed controlled item from the domestic market or subsequent consignments from the same source is necessary.

Clause 73 provides that an authorised officer or a food inspector may issue holding orders (this would usually be done electronically) to hold controlled items or non-conforming consignments until the analysis required under the inspection scheme regulations has been completed.

Where an earlier consignment of controlled items from a source has been determined to be failing, a holding order may also be issued with respect of any controlled item of that same kind that is or is to be imported into Singapore after the making of the holding order from the same source. This is because where there is a known or suspected food safety issue with an imported food, it is critical that the Agency must be able to temporarily suspend the further import or distribution of the affected food, identify importers of the unsafe food and where in the supply chain unsafe food has been distributed and work cooperatively and effectively with other relevant public sector agencies and the industry to manage the food safety risk and communicate that risk to the general public.

Consignments will only be cleared upon passing of the Agency's testing. If the consignments pass inspection and testing, authorised officers will issue the inspection advice under clause 72 to inform importers on the outcome of the inspection and analysis.

Clause 74 provides for the treatment, destruction or re-export of failing controlled items, whether for import, export or transshipment. A failed consignment or item could be ordered for destruction in a manner specified in the inspection advice (which reflects the manner agreed between the owner and the Agency) or for re-export from Singapore.

Clause 75 is about foreign government certificates.

Division 6 of Part 3 consists of 10 clauses relating to licensing of traders.

Clause 76 outlines the types of licences and permits which may be granted under Part 3 by the Agency.

There are 2 renewable licences which the Agency may grant under Part 3:

- (a) to import in the course of business an import-controlled item stated in the licence;
- (b) to export in the course of business an export-controlled item stated in the licence.

These licences replace the commodity-specific licences to import and export meat and fish, and to import fresh fruits and vegetables, under the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999 and the Control of Plants Act 1993, respectively.

There are also 3 types of consignment permits which the Agency may grant under Part 3. These are non-renewable and are as follows:

- (a) an import consignment permit for each consignment of import-controlled items stated in the permit;
- (b) an export consignment permit for each consignment of export-controlled items stated in the permit;
- (c) a transshipment consignment permit for each consignment of transshipment-controlled items that is stated in the permit.

These permits replace the commodity-specific licence to import and export eggs under the Animals and Birds Act 1965, and the commodity-specific permits to import and export meat and fish and to import fresh fruits and vegetables, under the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999 and the Control of Plants Act 1993, respectively.

Clause 77 incorporates the general licensing procedures in Division 4 of Part 14 for the purposes of application for a licence or consignment permit that may be granted under Part 3.

Clause 78 outlines the criteria for the grant and renewal of any licence to import or export-controlled items in the course of business or for imposing licence conditions or modifying a condition of the licence.

Among the factors the Agency is empowered to have regard to is whether the applicant for the licence or licence renewal, or licensee, or an associate of the applicant or licensee, is or was disqualified by clause 298 from holding the licence applied for.

A person is disqualified from holding a licence under Part 3 when the person's previous licence under Part 3 is revoked. An associate is defined in clause 17.

Clause 79 outlines the criteria for the grant of an import consignment permit, an export consignment permit and a transshipment consignment permit.

Clause 80 outlines conditions which may be imposed on a licence or consignment permit granted under Part 3.

Clause 81 deals with how long a licence granted under Part 3 may be in force. The maximum validity of such a licence is 5 years. The validity of an import consignment permit, an export consignment permit and a transshipment consignment permit is also covered by clause 81.

Clause 82 provides the Agency with power to unilaterally modify licence conditions. The steps in doing so are set out in the general licensing procedures in Division 4 of Part 14, and these are incorporated by clause 82.

Clause 83 sets out the grounds that the Agency can rely on to take regulatory action concerning a holder of a licence granted under Part 3. The procedure that must be followed when taking regulatory action is set out in Division 4 of Part 14.

Some defaults (like breach of licence conditions) which are today offences, are decriminalised, and licensees may face a regulatory sanction instead under clause 83.

Regulatory action is not a criminal proceeding for an offence committed. Regulatory action is by the Agency, from whom the privilege to hold the licence is granted, and encompasses at the most extreme, the revocation of the licence granted. The Agency may respond to a licensee's defaults in other less extreme ways in lieu of licence revocation, such as —

- (a) suspend (in whole or in part) the licence for not more than 6 months;

- (b) direct the licensed importer or licensed exporter to do, or to refrain from doing, any thing that is specified in a direction to rectify any contravention or non-compliance that constitutes the ground for regulatory action;
- (c) modify any condition of the licence; or
- (d) direct the licensed importer or licensed exporter to pay, within a period specified in a direction, a financial penalty of any amount that the Agency thinks fit, but not exceeding $5,000 for each contravention of or failure to comply with any specified matter or for each other ground of regulatory action.

Clause 84 sets out the grounds that the Agency can rely on to take regulatory action concerning an import consignment permit, an export consignment permit and a transshipment consignment permit. The procedure that must be followed when taking regulatory action is set out in Division 4 of Part 14.

Clause 85 deals with the effect of revocation, or suspension, etc., of a licence or permit granted under this Part.

Division 7 of Part 3 consists of 4 clauses, which impose requirements to ensure that imported food and other import-controlled items are traceable and can be recalled efficiently and effectively.

Today, there are no traceability requirements even though food recalls or food contact article recalls may be directed by the Director-General, Food Administration to be carried out by importers or food businesses under section 10F of the Sale of Food Act 1973. As not all importers that only operate at the border have effective traceability systems, there are challenges with confirming with these importers if they have sourced implicated lots of the food and if they have, where this food has been distributed to.

Clause 86 provides that Division 7 applies only to licensed importers, who import import-controlled items except agri-food production inputs. These are —

- (a) any food;
- (b) any prepacked food additive preparation;
- (c) any regulated food contact article; and
- (d) any animal feed.

Division 7 also only applies to import of any of the above import-controlled items made on or after the date of commencement of the Division.

Clause 87 outlines the information that a licensed importer must keep or have ready access to and for how long.

The information a licensed importer is required to keep or have ready access to is information which will enable the importer to trace food or the other import-controlled items one step backwards and one step forwards. The information relating to the food or an import-controlled item imported into Singapore must be retained for a period prescribed in regulations made under the Bill.

Contravention of any requirement in clause 87 is a strict liability offence, as records may be required during a food safety incident, and the consequences of not retaining the records may be severe.

Clause 88 provides that a licensed importer must have procedures and accurate information for identifying and locating imported import-controlled items to which Division 7 applies, and for tracing imported import-controlled items so that the imported controlled item can be traced one step backwards and one step forwards. The information must also be sufficient to allow an effective recall to be carried out under a direction given under Part 7.

This means that for every consignment of food imported, the importer must have the ability to identify the immediate supplier and the immediate customer.

Under clause 88, a licensed importer has to conduct simulations or other tests of those procedures if required by the Agency. A licensed importer must also establish and use the procedures for recalling —

- (a) food (other than a food additive as such) or any prepacked food additive preparation supplied in Singapore that the importer considers to be unsafe or unsuitable or whose safety or suitability is in doubt;
- (b) regulated food contact articles supplied in Singapore that the importer considers to be or might be dangerous to use with food; or
- (c) animal feed supplied in Singapore that the importer considers to be not fit for purpose or whose fitness for purpose is in doubt.

If the licensed importer decides to recall any imported import-controlled item on the ground that —

- (a) the food (other than a food additive as such) or any prepacked food additive preparation is or might be unsafe or unsuitable;
- (b) the regulated food contact article is or might be dangerous to use with food; or
- (c) the animal feed is or might be not fit for purpose, the importer has to notify the Agency as soon as practicable, but no later than 24 hours after making the decision, about the import-controlled item affected by the recall, and the reason for the recall.

Clause 89 makes it an offence for failing to provide information or failing to provide information in a timely manner when requested to do so by a food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector about the matters in clause 87(1). A licensed importer is bound to state truly what the licensed importer is requested, and must give information in a readily accessible format, and within 24 hours after the request, or within any reasonable shorter period specified by the food security officer, authorised officer or food inspector, as the case may be. This is to allow an assessment of risk to be efficiently and effectively undertaken in circumstances where the records relate to food that may pose a serious risk to human health.

It may be vital that the Agency can quickly obtain information from importers in order to prevent unsafe or unsuitable food from entering the domestic supply chain, and so the offence is intended to deter persons refusing or failing to provide information needed to prevent a serious risk to human health. For this reason, an individual would not be able to rely on the privilege against self-incrimination to not disclose the required information. See clause 259.

Any delay in confirming importers of a potentially unsafe food and its distribution in the supply chain, means there will be a delay in taking appropriate risk management action, such as a food recall. This increases the likelihood that more consumers could become ill.

FOOD BUSINESSES

Food presents a major risk to the health of humans because of the potential of food to transfer harmful organisms and contaminants to humans. It is vital that the Bill contains an efficient and effective regulatory regime that manages domestic food safety and suitability issues and requires persons who deal with food to take responsibility for the safety and suitability of food.

Part 4 therefore continues to provide for the licensing of proprietors of food businesses. However, there are key changes in the regulatory framework and approach from present law.

The continual need for efficient regulation in the face of fast-evolving business practices and models, and food production and handling technology, needs to be balanced by minimising compliance costs. Part 4 therefore adopts a risk-based approach and requires licences to be taken out only by proprietors of the food businesses specified in the First Schedule to the Bill as licensable food businesses. See clause 6.

Part 4 regulates both retail and non-retail food businesses and primary production activities, in a single framework. It is important to ensure that regulatory requirements are applied consistently and in a coordinated way across food business sectors and groups, depending on factors such as risk and science-based standards. This is unlike the present law, which regulates these sectors under 5 separate Acts viz. the Animals and Birds Act 1965, the Control of Plants Act 1993, the Environmental Public Health Act 1987, the Fisheries Act 1966 and the Sale of Food Act 1973. Under Part 4, food businesses which are licensable should not have to take out so many licences.

Part 4 also moves away from the traditional food safety philosophy, which emphasises end-point inspection of the food or detection of point-in-time defaults in food handling. In lieu of prescriptive food regulation, Part 4 moves more towards emphasising preventative measures devised by the food business licensees themselves for ensuring food safety and hygiene along the licensee's entire food handling process.

Two new regulatory tools are made mandatory in Part 4 viz. a farm management plan for every food business licensee undertaking primary production activities, and a food control plan for licensable food businesses with more stringent requirements expected of some licensable food businesses given the higher risk assessment by the Agency. These terms are relevant in clause 91 (applications for or to renew food business licences).

Under this new approach, it is the food business licensee itself that designs and implements the farm management plan or food control plan unique to the requirements of that particular business, and carries the responsibility for ensuring that documented processes in the plan are followed. See more details under clause 93.

The farm management plan or food control plan has to be specifically tailored to the specific food business and accepted by the Agency. Non-compliance with the farm management plan or food control plan accepted by the Agency is a ground for regulatory action.

This object is to place greater responsibility on licensees to have in place enough preventative measures which minimise risks and assure the safety and suitability of the food in their production process.

The new regulatory tools will not completely replace existing food hygiene or food safety regulations. For example, while the plans have to detail how hygienic and safe conditions for the food or primary produce are to be maintained by the specific licensee, and must contain details about the provision of training for the licensee's staff for this purpose, the regulations made under the Bill will set baseline requirements applicable to all food businesses.

Clause 90 contains definitions of terms which are used exclusively or mainly in Part 4.

Division 2 of Part 4 contains provisions on the licensing of licensable food businesses, set out in the First Schedule. The scheme here replaces the 2 business licensing schemes in the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 and the Sale of Food Act 1973 which are divided along retail and non-retail lines. Primary production activities to produce food will also be folded within Part 4, replacing the commodity-specific licensing schemes dispersed between the Animals and Birds Act 1965, the Control of Plants Act 1993 and the Fisheries Act 1966, respectively. Part 17 contains consequential and related amendments to those Acts to carve out primary production activities from regulation under those Acts.

Clause 91 incorporates the general licensing procedures in Division 4 of Part 14 for the purposes of application for a food licence that may be granted by the Agency under Part 4.

Clause 92 outlines the criteria for the grant and renewal of any food business licence or for imposing licence conditions or modifying a condition of a food business licence.

Among the factors the Agency is empowered to have regard to is whether the applicant for the food business licence or licence renewal, or food business licensee, or an associate of the applicant or licensee, is or was disqualified by clause 298 from holding the licence applied for.

A person is disqualified from holding a licence under Part 4 when the person's previous licence under Part 4 is revoked. An associate is defined in clause 17.

Clause 93 outlines conditions which may be imposed on a food business licence. Among the new conditions imposed on a food business licensee is that of preparing itself to deal with any disruptive event occurring, and to prevent any intentional engaging in conduct, by any individual, so as to jeopardise the safety of food or primary produce which is manufactured, prepared or otherwise handled or produced by the licensee.

A food business licensee is also subject to a licence condition to carry on the licensable food business authorised by the licence in accordance with an accepted farm management plan or an accepted food control plan.

The farm management plan or food control plan has to identify significant food safety hazards to that business and state how those hazards are to be monitored and controlled. The licensee has also to detail in its farm management plan or food control plan how to maintain hygienic and safe conditions for primary production or food handling and include provisions on the training of staff for this purpose. In order to maintain public confidence in this new approach which contains elements of self-regulation, and as an aid to the licensee concerned in designing and complying with the plan, there may be included a need for regular audits by the licensee of its operations.

Clause 94 deals with how long a food business licence granted under Part 4 may be in force. The maximum validity of such a licence is 5 years.

Clause 95 provides the Agency with power to unilaterally modify food business licence conditions. The steps in doing so are set out in the general licensing procedures in Division 4 of Part 14, and these are incorporated by clause 95.

Clause 96 sets out the grounds that the Agency can rely on to take regulatory action concerning a holder of a licence granted under Part 4. The procedure that must be followed when taking regulatory action is set out in Division 4 of Part 14.

Some defaults (like breach of licence conditions) which are today offences, are decriminalised, and licensees may face a regulatory sanction instead under clause 96.

Regulatory action is not a criminal proceeding for an offence committed. Regulatory action is by the Agency, from whom the privilege to hold the licence is granted, and encompasses at the most extreme, the revocation of the licence granted. The Agency may respond to a food business licensee's defaults in other less extreme ways in lieu of licence revocation, such as —

- (a) suspend (in whole or in part) the licence for not more than 6 months;
- (b) direct the food business licensee to do, or to refrain from doing, such things as are specified in a direction to rectify any contravention or non-compliance that constitutes the ground for regulatory action;
- (c) modify any condition of the licence; or
- (d) direct the food business licensee to pay, within a period specified in a direction, a financial penalty of any amount that the Agency thinks fit, but not exceeding $5,000 for each contravention of or failure to comply with any specified matter or for each other ground of regulatory action.

Clause 97 deals with the effect of revocation, or suspension, etc., of a food business licence.

Division 3 of Part 4 consists of 4 clauses, which impose requirements to ensure that selected food business licensees adopt measures that ensure their food products are traceable and can be recalled efficiently and effectively.

Today, there are no traceability requirements even though food recalls or food contact article recalls may be directed by the Director-General, Food Administration to be carried out by food businesses under section 10F of the Sale of Food Act 1973. As not all food businesses today have effective traceability systems, there are challenges with confirming with these food businesses if they have produced or distributed implicated lots of the food and if they have, where this food has been distributed to.

Clause 98 provides that Division 3 applies only to a licensable food business that is prescribed by the Minister, by order in the Gazette, as subject to the Division (called the relevant food business licensee).

Clause 99 outlines the information that a relevant food business licensee must keep or have ready access to and for how long.

The information a relevant food business licensee is required to keep or have ready access to is information which will enable the licensee to trace food one step backwards and one step forwards. The information relating to the food must be retained for a period prescribed in regulations made under the Bill.

Contravention of any requirement in clause 99 is a strict liability offence, as records may be required during a food safety incident, and the consequences of not retaining the records may be severe.

Clause 100 provides that a relevant food business licensee must have procedures and accurate information for identifying and locating food, and for tracing food so that the food can be traced one step backwards and one step forwards. The information must also be sufficient to allow an effective recall to be carried out under a direction given under Part 7.

This means that for every food supplied, the relevant food business licensee must have the ability to identify the immediate supplier and the immediate customer.

Under clause 100, a relevant food business licensee has to conduct simulations or other tests of those procedures if required by the Agency.

If the relevant food business licensee decides to recall any food on the ground that the food is or might be unsafe or unsuitable, the food business licensee has to notify the Agency as soon as practicable, but no later than 24 hours after making the decision, about the food affected by the recall, and the reason for the recall.

Clause 101 makes it an offence for failing to provide information or failing to provide information within a specified time when requested to do so by an authorised officer or a food inspector about the matters in clause 99(1). A relevant food business licensee is bound to state truly what the food business licensee is requested, and must give information in a readily accessible format, and within 24 hours after the request, or within any reasonable shorter period specified by the authorised officer or food inspector, as the case may be. This is to allow an assessment of risk to be efficiently and effectively undertaken in circumstances where the records relate to food that may pose a serious risk to human health.

It may be vital that the Agency can quickly obtain information from food business licensees in order to prevent unsafe or unsuitable food from entering or further moving along the domestic supply chain, and so the offence is intended to deter persons refusing or failing to provide information needed to prevent a serious risk to human health. For this reason, an individual would not be able to rely on the privilege against self-incrimination to not disclose the required information. See clause 259.

Division 4 of Part 4 sets out 3 principal offences relating to the carrying on of a food business.

Clause 102 makes it an offence if a person, being an owner or an occupier of any premises, uses, or allows the premises to be used, to carry on a licensable food business, and the person is not a holder of a current food business licence to carry on that licensable food business at those premises or is not exempt under clause 320 or 321 from the requirement to hold a licence.

Clause 103 contains offences which may be committed by a food business licensee in connection with food workers.

A “food worker” is defined in clause 3(1) to mean an individual who is or is to be employed by, or works or is required to work with or for, a proprietor of a food business in any capacity involving any of the following activities in the course of the operations of the food business:

- (a) manufacturing food;
- (b) preparing food;
- (c) dishing up or plating (and not merely serving) food;
- (d) any other activity that is prescribed by the Minister, by order in the Gazette, for the purposes of the Bill.

As defined, a driver delivering ready-to-eat food and a waiter or waitress or cashier is not automatically a food worker. These may be included in future where there is a need, by way of a ministerial order.

It is an offence if the food business licensee for a licensable food business causes or allows an individual to carry out any work as a food worker in the course of the operations of the licensable food business and the individual is not registered as a food worker, generally or in respect of that licensable food business, and the food business licensee knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the individual is not registered as a food worker, generally or in respect of that licensable food business.

Where the food business licensee is a sole proprietor like a stall-holder running his or her own licensable food business, it is also an offence if the food business licensee carries out any work as a food worker in the course of the operations of the licensable food business and he or she is not registered as a food worker, generally or in respect of that licensable food business and he or she knows, or ought reasonably to know, that he or she is not registered as a food worker, generally or in respect of that licensable food business.

Clause 104 is an offence connected with a food business which is not a licensable food business specified in the First Schedule.

It is an offence for a proprietor of such a food business —

- (a) to engage in conduct, or cause or permit an individual to engage in conduct, in the course of carrying on the food business at any premises, which is prescribed in any regulations as prohibited conduct for that food business; or
- (b) to engage in conduct, or cause or permit an individual to engage in conduct, in certain circumstances in the course of carrying on the food business at any premises, which are prescribed in any regulations as disallowed circumstances for that food business.

An example of prohibited conduct would be the preparation for sale or supply of raw fish and it is envisaged that such activities will be prescribed in regulations made under Part 15.

PART 5

DEFINED FOOD AND PRE-MARKET APPROVAL

Clause 105 defines the expression “pre-market approval”. This is an approval granted by the Agency, on application, with respect to either a novel food or a genetically modified food for the food to be available for consumption by the general public in Singapore.

A pre-market approval with respect to a novel food or a genetically modified food may be granted after the Agency assesses the public health and safety considerations having regard to —

- (a) the potential for adverse effects in humans;
- (b) the composition or structure of the novel food or genetically modified food;
- (c) the process by which the novel food or genetically modified food has been prepared;
- (d) the source from which the novel food or genetically modified food is derived;
- (e) the likely patterns and levels of consumption of the novel food or genetically modified food; and
- (f) any other relevant matters.

Clause 106 sets out the offence of supplying defined food in Singapore when the person supplying knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the food is a defined food. It is immaterial whether the food concerned is safe.

Clause 107 sets out the offence of supplying defined food without a fault element in clause 106. This is a strict liability offence and attracts a lower maximum punishment. It is immaterial whether the food concerned is safe.

Clause 108 sets out a defence of due diligence for the offences in clauses 106 and 107.

Clause 109 provides for applications for pre-market approval.

Clause 110 deals with the grant of pre-market approval. The Agency may, at the request of an applicant for pre-market approval in respect of a novel food or a genetically modified food, grant the pre-market approval subject to an exclusive use condition.

A refusal by the Agency to grant pre-market approval is an appealable decision, and the unsuccessful applicant may appeal to the Minister against that refusal. Please see Part 12.

Clause 111 provides that a pre-market approval is valid until it is either cancelled under clause 112, or in the case of a novel food, it earlier ceases to be a novel food. There is no expiry date for a pre-market approval.

Clause 112 sets out the circumstances where a pre-market approval may be cancelled by the Agency. These circumstances can be one of the following:

- (a) the pre-market approval had been obtained by fraud or misrepresentation;
- (b) any condition of the pre-market approval is contravened or not complied with;
- (c) after the grant of the pre-market approval, there has been a material change to —
 - (i) the method by which the novel food or genetically modified food is manufactured, prepared, preserved, packaged or stored; or
 - (ii) any other information relating to the novel food or genetically modified food which was provided in connection with the application for the pre-market approval;
- (d) the public interest of Singapore requires the cancellation of the pre-market approval.

Due process needs to be observed before a pre-market approval is cancelled. A cancellation by the Agency of a pre-market approval is an appealable decision. The holder of the cancelled pre-market approval may appeal to the Minister against that cancellation. Please see Part 12.

Clause 113 provides for the transfer of pre-market approval, subject to the approval of the Agency.

PART 6

PROVISION OF NON-PACKAGED DRINKING WATER

Part 6 consists of 4 clauses which deal exclusively with the safety of drinking water supply in Singapore. The provisions incorporate with some changes the scheme in Part 9 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987.

Part 9 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 will be repealed by Part 17 as a consequence.

Drinking water in Part 6 refers to piped or non-packaged drinking water.

Clause 114 contains definitions of terms used specially in Part 6. The key terms are “drinking water producer”, “drinking water production” and “drinking water service”.

A drinking water producer is defined to mean a person who carries on drinking water production in the course of business. The Public Utilities Board (PUB) is an example of a drinking water producer.

Drinking water production refers to an undertaking that involves —

- (a) water harvesting or collection (including, for example, water storage by means of a tank or other infrastructure), recovering water from a water resource not supplied by a reticulated water system (like a reservoir), or extracting groundwater (such as via a well) or water from the air; and
- (b) treating or recycling the water harvested, collected, recovered or extracted to obtain drinking water.

As Part 6 applies to a drinking water producer who provides a drinking water service, clause 114 also defines “drinking water service”. This means a service that involves first, drinking water production and then, supplying to another the drinking water obtained from drinking water production by either or both methods, viz. —

- (a) by a reticulation system; or
- (b) in bulk.

This is unlike Part 9 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987, which regulates the providers of drinking water to the public or a section of the public.

However, certain supply of drinking water is excluded from being a drinking water service. These include a supply of drinking water regulated under other written law, and the supply of drinking water solely to the PUB by another drinking water producer e.g. desalination works under the Design-Build-Own-Operate scheme. However, if any of these drinking water producers supply the drinking water produced also to their employees or guests, then the drinking water producer will be treated as providing a drinking water service.

Finally, a supply to another of drinking water obtained directly from a drinking water producer without any altering of the drinking water is also not to be regarded as a drinking water service.

By clause 114(1), drinking water is not treated as altered if it is chilled or its temperature is otherwise changed, or the drinking water is fluoridated to the extent which is solely to promote good oral health, or where impurities enter drinking water solely from the passage of water in the network infrastructure. The application of water conditioning devices to drinking water, like alkaline water units, and purification devices (which may include filters, ultraviolet light or remineralisation units) are also not treated as altering the water.

Clause 115 provides that a drinking water producer providing a drinking water service commits an offence if any drinking water supplied in the course of providing that service is unwholesome.

However, it is a defence for the person charged to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that the person charged took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of the offence by the person charged and by any person under the control of the person charged.

Drinking water is defined as unwholesome unless the water conforms to the prescribed requirements in any Part 6 Regulations concerning the quality, purity and general appearance of drinking water, and does not, based on any prescribed methodology or assessment in any Part 6 Regulations, contain any contaminant, substance or organism, either alone or in any combination, at a concentration or value that constitutes a potential danger to human health.

The Agency's power to make Part 6 Regulations is outlined by clause 312.

Clause 116 empowers the Director-General, Food Administration to respond to incidents where drinking water supplied, or to be supplied, by a drinking water producer as part of a drinking water service is unwholesome, or may be the means by which an illness is being, or has been, or will be, transmitted.

The Director-General, Food Administration is also conferred power to avert, eliminate or minimise a risk, or a perceived risk, to human health among the general public in relation to drinking water.

The response will be in the form of written directions given to all or any of the following:

- (a) a proprietor of a food business, whether or not a food business licensee;

- (b) a drinking water producer providing a drinking water service;
- (c) a person who supplies drinking water that has been directly obtained from the PUB or another drinking water producer;
- (d) condominium management corporations, Town Councils and like persons who control, manage and administer any common property comprising any network infrastructure for distributing drinking water to occupants of premises in a subdivided building.

The written directions to any of the above persons can range from stopping certain activities or taking remedial steps to restore water quality, to requiring a drinking water producer providing a drinking water service to notify affected consumers that drinking water supplied by the drinking water producer as part of its drinking water service should be boiled, or treated in some other way, before drinking.

Clause 117 makes it an offence for a person given a direction under clause 116(1) to intentionally carry on an activity in contravention of the direction, to neglect or refuse to comply with the direction, or to fail to comply with a condition specified in the direction.

There is generally a right of appeal to the Minister under Part 12 against a clause 116 direction. Exception is made for circumstances where the direction must be complied with immediately.

PART 7

FOOD SAFETY AND SUSTAINABLE PRIMARY PRODUCTION MEASURES

Foodborne illness continues to be recognised as a serious and costly public health and safety issue for the Government, industry and society. Part 7 contains a variety of measures to reduce or swiftly address the incidence of foodborne illnesses to prevent or reduce the possibility of a serious danger to public health or to mitigate the adverse consequences of a serious danger to public health, and to effectively manage biosecurity risks that threaten adequate and sustainable food production in Singapore.

There is generally a right of appeal to the Minister under Part 12 against a Part 7 direction. Exception is made for circumstances where the direction must be complied with immediately.

Directions aimed at ensuring food safety are in Division 2 of Part 7 whereas directions aimed at protecting primary production activities from biosecurity threats and ensuring sustainable food production are in Division 3 of Part 7. The directions in Division 2 are presently set out in Part 2A of the Sale of Food Act 1973.

The powers in Part 7 are mostly vested in the Director-General, Food Administration instead of the Agency. The Director-General, Food Administration is required to exercise these powers subject to any general or special directions of the Agency; see clause 277(2). The powers in Part 7 are non-delegable.

Clause 118 therefore provides that the powers in Part 7 must either be exercised by the Director-General, Food Administration personally or by an authorised officer duly appointed by the Director-General, Food Administration to act in his or her name. This ensures direct accountability of the Director-General, Food Administration for the exercise of powers under Part 7.

Clause 119 lists whom may be given a direction under Part 7. It provides that the Director-General, Food Administration may give a direction, individually or as a class, to persons listed in clause 119(1) or (2).

Clause 120 details what must be contained in Part 7 directions. It makes clear that in making a Part 7 direction, it is not necessary for the Director-General, Food Administration to give any person who may be affected by the direction a chance to be heard before the direction is given. Clause 120 also provides that if a person to whom the Part 7 direction is given fails or refuses to comply with it, the Director-General, Food Administration is allowed to carry out the direction, and the Agency may recover the costs and expenses reasonably incurred in carrying out the direction as a debt due from the person to whom the direction was given.

Clause 121 provides for how Part 7 directions are to be given and specifies when the direction has effect. In addition to the modes prescribed in clause 121(2) or (3) or 304, a Part 7 direction may be given, if the name and address of the addressee is unknown, by affixing the direction to the premises concerned.

For a direction addressed to a class of persons, clause 121 provides that it is sufficiently given if it is given to each of the persons in the class as earlier provided, or if it is published both in a daily newspaper circulating in Singapore or in any other news media that, in the opinion of the Director-General, Food Administration, will be most likely to bring the direction to the attention of the persons who belong to the class, as well as on the Agency's official website.

Clause 122 provides for when a Part 7 direction takes effect and ceases to have effect.

Certain Part 7 directions are not appealable to the Minister in the first instance. These are Part 7 directions given because the Director-General, Food Administration has reasonable grounds to believe that the direction is necessary or desirable to prevent or control a threat (actual or imminent) to public health or an imminent risk of death or serious illness, or a significant threat to supply sources of food for the general public.

These comprise a movement control direction that stops the sale or supply or other distribution of material further in the food supply chain or stops the movement or relocation of animals, and a recall direction affecting food (not animal feed). They are non-appealable as the directions are given to address urgent situations.

Any of these directions takes effect upon its giving but expires on (and including) the 10th day after that date it takes effect. The period is fixed and matches the general time needed for scientific tests to be properly done to verify the true hazard or source of contamination, and whether the situation requires other agencies to be involved in the interest of public health or public safety, such as the Ministry of Health where a zoonotic disease that can spread between animals and humans is detected.

A fresh Part 7 direction may be given at the end of the 10 days if the situation warrants it. This subsequent direction is appealable under Part 12.

Clause 123 is a Part 7 direction relating to food premises. This direction may be given where the Director-General, Food Administration is satisfied (whether or not from the report of an authorised officer or a food inspector) that —

- (a) any food premises is in an unclean or unsanitary condition or in a state of disrepair;
- (b) the slaughtering of animals to produce meat or meat products or the meat processing is carried on in any food premises in a manner that makes the meat or meat products unsafe or unsuitable, or likely to be unsafe or unsuitable;
- (c) primary production activity is undertaken in any food premises in a manner that makes the primary produce unsafe, or likely to be unsafe; or
- (d) any food is supplied or handled in the food premises in a manner that makes the food unsafe or unsuitable, or likely to be unsafe or unsuitable.

The direction is to be given to a proprietor of the food premises concerned and may —

- (a) require that certain things be done within a specified time in the direction e.g. to take steps to put the food premises (including any machinery or equipment in it) into a clean and sanitary condition, or to change equipment or take specified steps to ensure that any food supplied or handled in the food premises is not unsafe and not unsuitable; and
- (b) direct that until the steps abovementioned are complied with, the proprietor of the food premises concerned must stop using those premises, or a specified area of those premises, to carry out business or an activity specified in the direction, and must not remove, and must prevent and disallow the removal of, any food specified in the direction from those premises for any purpose except with the prior consent of an authorised officer or a food inspector.

A proprietor of a food business is defined in clause 3(1) to mean the person carrying on the food business, or if the latter person cannot be identified, the person in charge of the food business.

Clause 124 is a Part 7 direction concerning food vending machines and other equipment. The Director-General, Food Administration may give this direction if satisfied from the report of an authorised officer or a food inspector that —

- (a) a food vending machine is in such an unclean or unsanitary condition as to make any food obtained from the machine unsafe or unsuitable, or likely to be unsafe or unsuitable; or
- (b) an equipment used in any slaughter of animals to produce meat or meat products, any manufacturing of food, any primary production activity or the supply or handling of food, is in such an unclean or unsanitary condition or a state of disrepair, as to make the resulting meat or meat products, primary produce or food (as the case may be) unsafe or unsuitable, or likely to be unsafe or unsuitable.

The direction is to be given to the owner of the food vending machine or equipment concerned, and may require that certain things be done within a specified time in the direction. For example, to put the food vending machine or other equipment into a clean and sanitary condition, which may include disinfection and until that is done, to stop using, and to prevent and disallow the use of, the food vending machine or equipment.

Clause 125 provides for a direction by the Director-General, Food Administration to impose movement controls under clause 126, or an obligation to declare information under clause 127. The Director-General, Food Administration may give either direction whether or not there is a report from an authorised officer or a food inspector.

The Director-General, Food Administration may give a direction under this clause if he or she reasonably suspects —

- (a) the existence of a hazard or a source of contamination that may adversely affect any primary produce or food, any live food producing animal or other thing that may become food, or any regulated food contact article; and
- (b) that a movement control direction under clause 126 or a declaration direction under clause 127 is necessary to minimise, manage or eradicate, over a limited period or over an indefinite period, the risk to human health created by the suspected hazard or the suspected source of contamination.

Clause 126 relates to movement control directions, which may impose movement or related controls to determine, minimise, manage or eradicate the risk to human health created by the suspected non-compliance or suspected source of contamination.

For example, the controls may restrict or prohibit the transport, supply, sale, production, or processing and handling of food or any thing that may become food, or require the taking of specific actions (such as sampling and testing) to determine the risk (if any) to human health or to minimise, manage or eradicate the risk to human health.

This provision is similar to the present section 10E of the Sale of Food Act 1973.

Clause 127 imposes an obligation to the addressee of the direction to give information to the Director-General, Food Administration.

This direction under clause 127 will not be necessary where traceability requirements in Parts 3 and 4 enable the necessary information to be obtained. The declaration direction is needed where the information lies with persons who are not licensed importers or food business licensees.

The declaration direction is not a power of investigation for use in ascertaining if an offence has been committed or a regulatory breach has occurred. The information must be needed because of the suspected hazard or suspected source of contamination, such as (but not limited to) a thing or an activity, a particular premises (where, for example, there may be contamination from the land or the environment), or a particular person, or a particular food business or a specified class of food businesses (where, for example, the contamination may have been caused by a human act or omission).

Clause 128 provides for a direction by the Director-General, Food Administration to recall food or regulated food contact articles. The direction may be given for the purpose of examining, rectifying, controlling or disposing of food or a regulated food contact article, after taking into account any relevant information or warnings about the food or regulated food contact article that the Director-General, Food Administration has received from any authorised officer or food inspector, or any international organisation or any foreign food authority, or if the Director-General, Food Administration has reasonable grounds to believe that the direction is necessary to prevent or reduce the likelihood of physical harm being caused to humans or to mitigate the adverse consequences of that likelihood.

This provision is similar to the present section 10F of the Sale of Food Act 1973.

The types of directions under clause 128 are to recall food that is unsafe or unsuitable or is a defined food, or the safety or suitability of which is in doubt, to recall a regulated food contact article that has, when used with food, caused food to be no longer safe or suitable, to recall a regulated food contact article if there is doubt about whether it may contaminate food, to recall food or a regulated food contact article that is mislabelled or incorrectly identified, and to take food or a regulated food contact article recalled to a specified place.

If a person to whom the recall direction is given fails or refuses to comply with it, the Director-General, Food Administration may take any reasonable steps necessary to ensure control of the food or regulated food contact article, and the Agency may thereafter recover the costs and expenses reasonably incurred in ensuring control of the food or regulated food contact article as a debt due from the person to whom the direction was given.

Clause 129 provides for a direction by the Director-General, Food Administration to manage and control food or regulated food contact articles. A direction under this clause may be given where the Director-General, Food Administration reasonably believes that food or a regulated food contact article that is already the subject of a movement control direction under clause 126 is unsafe or unsuitable and further controls are required, or the Director-General, Food Administration has recalled food or a regulated food contact article under clause 128.

A direction under clause 129 may be about doing or not doing any of the following to the food or regulated food contact article, namely, condemning or destroying it, disposing of or re-exporting it, identifying it, processing and handling it or re-processing it, labelling or relabelling it, storing it, transporting it, examining, sampling or testing it, or advertising or selling it.

Clause 130 is a new direction aimed at the food worker, although it is currently applied in practice. The new direction is in lieu of imposing vocational controls on individuals who work as food workers. The direction only affects a food worker who works in a licensable food business. The provision seeks to improve over the present practice by targeting the individual food worker in default instead of affecting the entire licensable food business and every other food worker of the business in every instance.

Under clause 130, the direction can be given where the Director-General, Food Administration reasonably believes that there is or has been committed, in the course of the carrying on of a licensable food business, a contravention or non-compliance by an individual employed or engaged by a food business licensee as a food worker in the licensable food business of or with an applicable requirement of this Bill relating to the handling of food intended for supply.

The purpose of a direction under clause 130 is limited —

- (a) to ensure the continued competence of a particular individual or particular individuals employed or engaged as a food worker or food workers in a licensable food business in handling food in such a way that does not makes the food unsafe or unsuitable, or likely to be unsafe or unsuitable; and
- (b) to minimise or prevent the future personal conduct of a particular individual or particular individuals, when employed or engaged as a food worker or food workers in a licensable food business, that makes or is likely to make the food unsafe or unsuitable.

The direction may be given either to the food business licensee who is a proprietor of the licensable food business where the default by the food worker occurred, or to the defaulting individual or any other individual then employed or engaged as a food worker by the food business licensee, or to all.

A direction under clause 130 may require a particular individual or particular individuals to do one or more of the following within a period stated in the direction:

- (a) to stop handling food in the course of the licensable food business unless he or she is diagnosed by a medical practitioner as not suffering from a prescribed infectious disease or other condition that is liable to render food handled as unsafe or unsuitable, or unless he or she is immunised against a prescribed infectious disease;
- (b) to undergo specified training or retraining in food safety and food handling, and be assessed as competent in each subject of the training or retraining;
- (c) to alter or improve the method of handling of food by that individual while in the course of the licensee's licensable food business;
- (d) to engage in conduct, or to refrain from engaging in conduct, specified in a direction relating to his or her personal hygiene and health practices when handling food as a food worker employed or engaged in a licensable food business. For example, not spitting, or wearing an attire or accessory for the purpose of protecting food that he or she handles against contamination (like gloves or a spit-guard) or ensuring that the individual is, or his or her clothing is kept, in a clean and sanitary condition.

A direction under clause 130 may also require the food business licensee concerned to do one or more of the following within a period stated in the direction:

- (a) to take specified steps to change or improve the method of handling food by food workers in the course of carrying on the licensee's licensable food business;
- (b) to stop one or more individuals handling food in the course of the licensee's licensable food business unless the individual is diagnosed or immunised as described above.

Under clause 131, the Director-General, Food Administration is empowered to give a direction about publishing a statement to the general public, or to a class of persons specified in the direction, for the purpose of protecting the public or class of persons. This provision is similar to the present section 10H of the Sale of Food Act 1973.

Under clause 131, the Director-General, Food Administration may specify the content of the publication such as the nature of the problem (including the reasons why the food or regulated food contact article is considered to be unsafe or unsuitable), the remedy to the problem, and preventative steps to prevent the problem from arising in the future. Statements published under clause 131 are protected by absolute privilege.

Clause 132 empowers the Agency to publish in Singapore a statement for the purpose of protecting human health or informing the general public. The statement may be about all or any of the following:

- (a) the safety or suitability of food or a regulated food contact article;
- (b) anything contained or implied in advertisements about food or a regulated food contact article, generally or in a particular advertisement, or in a class or classes of advertisements;
- (c) the performance or non-performance of any function or duty imposed on any person by any provision of the Bill.

The statement is protected by qualified privilege.

Under clause 133, a general preventative or corrective action direction by the Director-General, Food Administration may be given. Such a direction is about the taking of preventative or corrective action in respect of primary produce, food or regulated food contact articles that the Director-General, Food Administration reasonably believes is necessary (whether or not from the report of an authorised analyst or authorised officer) to ensure compliance with an applicable requirement of this Bill with respect to primary produce, food or regulated food contact articles.

Division 3 of Part 7 contains the newer set of Part 7 directions which the Director-General, Food Administration may give to deal with biosecurity threats so as to ensure sustainable food production.

Clause 134 provides for a direction corresponding to any of the directions mentioned in clauses 123, 124 and 125 except that these are to be given in relation to an animal feed and animal feed production.

Clause 135 is a direction to recall animal feed similar to clause 128 relating to food. The direction under clause 135 is for the purpose of examining, rectifying, controlling or disposing of any animal feed, after taking into account any relevant information or warnings about the animal feed being not fit for purpose that the Director-General, Food Administration has received from any authorised officer or food inspector, any international organisation or any foreign food authority.

The recall direction for animal feed may be given only if the Director-General, Food Administration has reasonable grounds to believe that the direction is necessary to prevent or reduce the possibility of a serious danger to the health of any food producing animals or to mitigate the adverse consequences of a serious danger to the health of any food producing animals.

Clause 136 is a corresponding direction to that in clause 129.

Clause 137 is about biosecurity directions. The Director-General, Food Administration may give a biosecurity direction if —

- (a) an event has happened or is happening, and has had or is having an adverse effect on the production of primary produce in any part of Singapore, or the health of food producing animals or to their habitats in any part of Singapore;
- (b) the event was or is being caused by, or may be or may have been caused by a biosecurity matter; and
- (c) it is necessary to exercise powers under this clause to mitigate or prevent a significant threat or likely significant threat to securing or maintaining consumer confidence in supply sources of safe and suitable food for the general public.

A biosecurity direction may require the addressee to take certain actions at stated premises and within a stated period of time. This may include —

- (a) directing primary food producers to take measures to prevent spread of disease e.g. movement restrictions of animals, vaccination of animals, isolation of new stocks before introduction into the farm or of sick animals;
- (b) stipulating that primary food producers must implement the appropriate mitigation measures should the farm's impact on the environment be observed to be not acceptable e.g. improving feeding practices, reducing stocking density; and

- (c) requiring proper management of waste and the implementation of environmental monitoring and management actions to mitigate impact from sea-based farms.

If the addressee is a food business licensee undertaking any primary production activity, the biosecurity direction may order the licensee to revise the licensee's farm management plan to prevent or mitigate any significant hazard relating to the primary production activity, or to food producing animals or to their habitats, and to submit the revised farm management plan for acceptance by the Agency.

Clause 138 is a direction corresponding to that in clause 133, about the taking of preventative or corrective action in respect of primary production activity or the production of animal feed.

Division 4 of Part 7 contains offences connected with Part 7 directions.

Clause 139 makes it an offence if a person to whom a Part 7 direction is addressed, without reasonable excuse carries on an activity in contravention of the direction, or without reasonable excuse neglects or refuses to comply with the direction, or without reasonable excuse fails to comply with a condition specified in such a direction.

Clause 140 provides for an offence of removing a copy of any direction affixed to a food premises under clause 121, 123 or 124 while that direction remains in force.

Under clause 141, a person bound by a Part 7 direction who suffers loss as a result of the making of the direction may apply to the Agency for compensation if the person considers that there were insufficient grounds for the making of the direction. If there were insufficient grounds for the making of the direction, the Agency has to pay just and reasonable compensation to the applicant.

PART 8

OFFENCES RELATING TO FOOD SAFETY

Part 8 sets out various offences connected with food safety and various defences and presumptions related to these offences.

Food safety offences are presently distributed in several laws. These are the Sale of Food Act 1973 and the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999, the Food Regulations and the Environmental Public Health (Food Hygiene) Regulations. There are offences which are similar in substance, but the penalties differ markedly. There is uncertainty whether an offence is a strict liability offence or not.

Part 8 is a consolidation of many existing offences into a single piece of legislation and rationalises the different elements and penalties in the present law so as to ensure appropriate, proportionate and consistent enforcement.

The offences in Part 8 are also divided generally into those which have a mental element and attract a higher punishment upon conviction, and those offences which are “strict liability”, where the prosecution is only required to prove the physical elements of the offence in order for the defendant to be found guilty. The strict liability offences attract a lower punishment on conviction.

Part 8 therefore makes clear when an offence in food legislation is or is not a strict liability offence. Strict liability offences are necessary due to the strong public interest in managing food safety risks appropriately, and in preventing foodborne illness which is a serious and costly public health and safety issue. Strict liability offences have been retained also because it can be reasonably expected that the potential defendants for offences in Part 8 would be aware of their duties and obligations. Strict liability offences are not inconsistent with the presumption of innocence.

The penalties in Part 8 are further divided based on whether the offender is an individual or an entity, with a custodial punishment for individuals, and a higher maximum fine for offenders which are entities. There is also a stepping up of the maximum punishment for repeat offenders.

The differentiation adopted for offences in Part 8 is necessary to support a calibrated approach to contraventions.

The maximum penalties in Part 8 have also been revised upwards having regard to the trend in sentencing by the courts and so as to be consistent with the existing penalties in the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999, which is the highest among existing food legislation. This consistency is needed to maintain public confidence that comparable food safety offences and the penalties for offences which are often prosecuted today, are being reflected in the Bill.

In total, Part 8 contains 20 offences. There are another 7 offences in Part 10 connected with labelling and advertising.

Intervention via the criminal law is necessary because food safety lapses invariably occur in settings where those who may be adversely affected and thus require protection viz. the consumer, are typically unable to properly assess the safety of a food product or take control or other steps to protect themselves before consuming the food. The consumer is unlikely to sue in a civil action in most circumstances for falling ill as a result of consuming food, because of difficulties in identifying the source and cause of many illnesses (the food would already have been consumed with any pathogen or contaminant), and the often-low costs typically incurred by most consumers.

While Parts 3 and 4 do contain provisions which require traders and food business proprietors to take further responsibility for food safety, than what they take on today, by putting their own systems in place, there is a limit to the effectiveness of relying on self-regulation measures to protect the consumer. In Singapore, the food industry covers a broad range of business types with many small-to-medium enterprises. In the Singapore food service and retail sectors, the workforce employed is largely transient and also very varied in terms of background, education, knowledge and motivation in terms of food safety. The diverse nature of the local food industry makes it unlikely for industry-set standards to develop and be complied with. Legislative intervention by the Government is necessary.

Division 1 of Part 8 contains general provisions relating to the interpretation and application of Part 8. Division 2 contains the offences and Division 3 sets out the defences to offences in Part 8.

Clause 142 sets out the scope of application of Part 8. It does not matter in the Part that the food concerned in an offence was supplied or intended for supply outside Singapore.

Clause 143 defines “hazardous food contact article”. This is connected to an offence under clause 162 or 163.

Clause 144 makes it an offence for a person to handle any food intended for supply in a way that the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, makes, will make, or is likely to make, the food unsafe.

What constitutes “handling” of food is defined by clause 9 to include —

- (a) preparing or manufacturing the food;
- (b) processing the food;
- (c) storing, packing or labelling the food;
- (d) transporting or delivering the food;
- (e) displaying the food;
- (f) dishing up or plating the food;
- (g) serving the food; and
- (h) supervising the performance of any abovementioned activity by another individual.

The definition may be extended by regulations made by the Agency.

For example, preparing food on a contaminated or dirty surface, such as the floor, or handling ready-to-eat food using utensils which were used to contain raw food, without prior washing. These are well-known situations where there will be a failure of microbiological standards that can lead to food poisoning.

With respect to the offence in clause 144, the food handled must be food that is intended for supply, not just intended for sale. The expression “supply” has been defined in clause 8 to be wider. Food intended to be given away or for donation can come within the scope of clause 144.

Clause 145 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 144. It is an offence if a person handles any food intended for supply in a way that makes, will make, or is likely to make, the food unsafe. The strict liability offence attracts a lower penalty.

For example, a food handler is unaware that the thermometer of a cooking equipment is faulty, but uses it to prepare food for sale, causing the food to be unsafe for consumption.

Clause 146 makes it an offence if a person supplies food that the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, is unsafe.

Clause 147 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 146. It is an offence if a person supplies any food that is unsafe.

Clause 148 makes it an offence for a person who handles any food intended for supply in a way that the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, makes, will make, or is likely to make, the food unsuitable. It is immaterial whether the food concerned is safe.

Clause 149 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 148. It is an offence if the person handles any food intended for supply in a way that makes, will make, or is likely to make, the food unsuitable. It is immaterial whether the food concerned is safe.

Clause 149 is narrower in scope than clause 148 and does not cover some activities defined by clause 9 as constituting food handling. The offence in clause 149 does not cover transporting or delivering food, and supervising the transporting or delivering of food by another individual.

By the expanded meaning of “unsuitable” food in clause 12, food is unsuitable if the food is outdated or is in packaging that is damaged to the extent of affecting the food’s reasonable intended use. Clause 149 is made narrower so as not to criminalise the mere delivery of food that is outdated (for example, where the food would only have remained suitable to consume for a particular period of time after leaving the control of the food producer), or food in damaged packaging (for example, dented cans) due to rough handling during transport or its storage.

Clause 150 makes it an offence if a person supplies any food, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the food is unsuitable food.

Clause 151 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 150. It is an offence if a person supplies any food that is unsuitable food.

Clause 152 makes it an offence if a person handles any food intended for supply in a way that the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, makes, will make, or is likely to make, the food a defined food. It is immaterial whether the food concerned is safe.

For example, the intentional addition of a non-catalogued insect-like species as an ingredient in the preparation of food for sale, such as an insect which is gathered from the wild.

Clause 153 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 152. It is an offence if a person handles any food intended for supply in a way that makes, will make, or is likely to make, the food a defined food. It is immaterial whether the food concerned is safe.

Clause 154 makes it an offence if a person undertakes any primary production activity and the primary produce resulting from that activity is unsafe, and the person, when undertaking the primary production activity, knew, or ought reasonably to have known, that the primary produce resulting from that activity would or would likely be unsafe.

For example, the operator of a fish farm uses a banned veterinary drug or dye (such as malachite green) despite being informed by the Agency that the drug or dye is prohibited for fish farm use for safety reasons.

Another example is continuing to produce for sale eggs which have been detected to have Salmonella in the course of the farmer's own testing and monitoring processes.

Clause 155 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 154. It is an offence if a person undertakes any primary production activity resulting in primary produce that is unsafe.

An example of this can occur in oyster farming, where the oysters bred for sale are found by the Agency to have a norovirus but the farmer did not earlier detect the presence through self-testing.

Clause 156 makes it an offence if a person undertakes any primary production activity and the primary produce resulting from that activity is unsuitable food, and the person, when undertaking the primary production activity, knew, or ought reasonably to have known, that the primary produce resulting from that activity would or would likely be unsuitable food.

Clause 157 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 156. It is an offence if a person undertakes any primary production activity resulting in primary produce that is unsuitable food.

For example, producing eggs that are contaminated with faecal waste.

Clause 158 makes it an offence if a person undertakes any primary production activity and the primary produce resulting from that activity is a defined food, and the person, when undertaking the primary production activity, knew, or ought reasonably to have known, that the primary produce resulting from that activity would or would likely be a defined food. It is immaterial whether the defined food concerned is safe.

For example, knowingly cultivating fresh fruits or vegetables using genetically modified seeds, and the resulting fruits or vegetables are not approved by the Agency under Part 5.

However, it will not be an offence if the resulting defined food is not made available for consumption as food by the general public in Singapore, such as cultivation as part of research and development.

Clause 159 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 158. It is an offence if a person undertakes any primary production activity, resulting in primary produce that is a defined food. It is immaterial whether the defined food concerned is safe.

However, as in clause 158, it will not be an offence if the resulting defined food is not made available for consumption as food by the general public in Singapore, such as cultivation as part of research and development.

Clause 160 makes it an offence if a person supplies any imported food and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the food was imported on the basis that it was for private consumption only.

What is imported for private consumption is defined in clause 44.

The purpose of the offence in clause 160 is to prevent any person who made use of the private consumption exception and imported food without a licence and consignment permit, to then supply the food imported. These foods would not have been subject to inspection at the border or not have been imported in accordance with preventative controls throughout the supply chain to manage imported food safety risks.

The offence does not cover food which is a prohibited food or a food of higher regulatory concern mentioned in clause 44(4). This is because the import of these foods is either wholly prohibited or restricted to per consignment controls, and there are offences in Part 3 to address contraventions of these controls.

Clause 161 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 160. It is an offence if a person supplies any imported food that was imported on the basis that it was for private consumption only.

Clause 162 makes it an offence if a person supplies a hazardous food contact article in the course of a business, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the object is a hazardous food contact article.

Clause 163 is the strict liability equivalent of clause 162. It is an offence if a person supplies a hazardous food contact article in the course of a business. For example, the sale of bowls or pans containing hazardous phthalates or heavy metals, which will leach into food when the bowls or pans are used as hot food containers.

Division 3 of Part 8 has 8 clauses which set out various defences to offences in Part 8.

Clause 164 is a general defence applicable for all offences in Part 8 that involve a food or a regulated food contact article. The defence is additional to any other defence available to the defendant under the Good Samaritan Food Donation Act 2024.

The general defence in clause 164 is —

- (a) the commission of the offence was due to an act or omission of another person (but not an employee, agent or officer of the person charged), or an accident or some other cause outside the defendant’s control; and
- (b) the defendant took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to prevent the commission of the offence by the defendant, or by another person under the control of the person charged.

Clause 165 is a defence applicable to offences concerned with handling of food. The defence is that the defendant caused the food to which the offence relates to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of immediately after the food was handled in the manner that was likely to render it unsafe or unsuitable or a defined food.

Clause 166 is a defence applicable to offences involving the supply of unsafe or unsuitable food or hazardous food contact articles. The defence basically is reliance by the defendant when acquiring the food or food contact article, on a written statement (like a warranty) supplied by or on behalf of the person from whom the defendant bought the food or food contact article, and that when the defendant supplied the food or food contact article, it was in the same condition as it was when the defendant bought it.

Clause 166 is a re-enactment of the present defence in section 33 of the Sale of Food Act 1973 in modern language. However, the standard in clause 166(1)(d) is higher than section 33(1)(b) of the Sale of Food Act 1973, where “the accused had no reason to believe that the food or food contact article sold did not conform to such warranty or statement”. In clause 166(1)(d), the reasonable objective person serves as the test.

There is also the explicit requirement that the supplied food/food contact article is in the same state as of the time of its purchase.

For packaged food, there is an additional lower defence that the person charged could not reasonably have found out that the food would be unlawful.

There is no longer a distinction between foreign-origin warranties and those given locally. The information flow in the world is substantially borderless today, thanks in a large part to the internet. The differentiation presently in section 33(2) of the Sale of Food Act 1973 is dispensed with.

Procedurally, the defence under clause 166(1) is only available if the defendant, not later than 14 clear days before the date of the hearing, gives the prosecution written notice of the defendant's intention to rely on the written statement together with a copy of the written statement, and gives a copy of the written notice to the person from whom the defendant received the written statement, and informs the person that the defendant intends to rely on the written statement.

The defendant has more time to give notice to the prosecution, which is presently set at within 7 days after service of the summons.

Clause 167 is a defence applicable to offences involving the supply of unsafe or unsuitable food. The defence is that the food in question is to be exported to another country, and the food complies with the laws (if any) in force at the time of the alleged offence in the country to which the food is to be exported.

Clause 168 is a defence applicable to the offence in clause 162 or 163 relating to the supply of hazardous food contact articles. The defence is that the defendant reasonably believed that the food contact article concerned was not intended for use in connection with the handling of food.

Clause 169 is a re-enactment of section 27(b) of the Sale of Food Act 1973 in modern language.

If an employee commits an offence under Part 8, his or her employer is taken to have committed the same offence. But it is a defence for the employer who is charged to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that the employer could not, by the exercise of due diligence, have prevented the commission of the offence.

There is a change from the present law so that it works more fairly. This will be consistent with the general defence approach which applies to everyone else who is not an employee.

Clause 170 deals with the liability of employees and agents, and corresponds to section 27(a) of the Sale of Food Act 1973. The general rule is that it is no defence in proceedings for an offence under Part 8 that the person charged was, at the time of the commission of the offence, an employee or agent of another person. However, as an improvement over section 27(a) of the Sale of Food Act 1973, it is a defence for the employee or agent charged to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that he or she was under the personal supervision of the proprietor of the food business in relation to which the offence was committed, etc.

Clause 171 seeks to clarify the legal interplay between different criminal laws.

PART 9

FOOD AND HEALTH PROMOTION

Part 9 is administered by the Ministry of Health and consists of 5 clauses.

Clause 172 sets out definitions of terms used exclusively in Part 9. Of note are the definitions of “non-communicable disease of public health interest” and “target food”.

A “target food” must always relate to some non-communicable disease of public health interest. This is defined to mean one or more identifiable foods the consumption of which contributes, or might, based on the available scientific evidence, contribute, to the occurrence of a non-communicable disease of public health interest.

Clause 173 empowers the Minister for Health to make a determination that a disease is a non-communicable disease of public health interest. The determination is made only where the Minister is satisfied that one or more identifiable foods consumed contributes to the occurrence of that disease, and that the disease —

- (a) is likely to adversely affect the health of the population in Singapore over a period of time;
- (b) causes or is likely to cause significant chronic disease, disability or mortality in the population in Singapore;
- (c) interferes with or is inconsistent with the goals of public health; or
- (d) is associated with poor health outcomes in the population in Singapore.

Notice that such a determination has been made has to be published either in the Gazette or in some other way that will secure adequate publicity about the determination being made.

Clause 174 empowers the Minister for Health to make Part 9 Regulations to promote the general public’s health through better diet and nutrition. The requirements in the Part 9 Regulations will also be relevant to labelling and advertising offences in Part 10.

Part 9 Regulations may relate to —

- (a) one or more identifiable foods which are target foods related to the occurrence of a non-communicable disease of public health interest, for the purpose of preventing or reducing the occurrence of that disease in Singapore;
- (b) any identifiable foods, for the purpose of informing individuals adequately about the food, and influencing and assisting them, to make food choices affecting their health and wellbeing and that of their families. For example, requiring Nutri-Grade marks on food for supply; or

- (c) the advertising of identifiable food or how it is promoted for sale, for the purpose of promoting public health.

It is envisaged that Part 9 Regulations may prohibit the import of target foods or restrict the import of other foods, such as the ban on import and use of partially hydrogenated oils in the manufacture of food. If so prohibited, the target food then becomes a prohibited food as defined by clause 42. Consignments of such prohibited foods will be treated as failing and stopped at the border.

It is further envisaged that Part 9 Regulations may restrict or prohibit —

- (a) the manner in which target foods are manufactured, prepared, distributed or supplied, or used in the manufacture or preparation of other foods; and
- (b) the manner in which the general public, or certain members of the general public, may acquire or obtain access to target food.

Advertising and labelling restrictions may also be prescribed in Part 9 Regulations. The requirements may extend to —

- (a) restricting or prohibiting the content used in advertising or labelling of food for supply, such as advertising prohibitions for beverages rated as having high sugar and saturated fat content;
- (b) requiring warnings or dietary and nutritional information to be included in content used in advertising or labels;
- (c) prescribing the form of the content or warning required, such as its size and colour, or the size, colour and font type of the content or warning and how it is displayed; and
- (d) restricting or prohibiting the medium or way food is advertised or sponsored or is promoted for sale, including requiring or prohibiting advertising in relation to the food at specified times or at specified premises.

Clause 175 provides for the appointment of Part 9 enforcement officers by the Director-General of Health, to support the enforcement of any Part 9 Regulations or any provision in Part 10 involving any Part 9 Regulations.

Clause 176 empowers a Part 9 enforcement officer to give a remedial notice requiring a person to remedy a contravention which can be remedied, or have such a contravention remedied. A remedial notice may be given if the Part 9 enforcement officer reasonably believes that a person —

- (a) is contravening a provision of any Part 9 Regulations; or

- (b) has contravened a provision of any Part 9 Regulations in circumstances that make it likely the contravention will continue or be repeated.

It is an offence to fail to comply with the remedial notice unless the person has a reasonable excuse.

If the remedial notice is given in relation to a contravention by a person of a relevant provision and the contravention is an offence, the person cannot be prosecuted for that offence unless the person fails to comply with the remedial notice and does not have a reasonable excuse for the non-compliance.

A remedial notice can contain the reasonable steps that the Part 9 enforcement officer considers necessary to remedy the contravention, or to avoid further contravention, of the relevant provision. Examples of reasonable steps are withdrawing or rectifying advertisements of foods, or publishing in Singapore a rectification notice to inform the general public of non-compliant advertisements, or immediately suspending the sale or supply of a specific food.

PART 10

MISLEADING OR DECEPTIVE CONDUCT AND OTHER MARKETING OFFENCES

Part 10 has 12 clauses containing offences relating to labelling and advertising about food and regulated food contact articles, and various defences to these offences.

Consumers need accurate and adequate information on food packaging and labels in order to make an informed choice. Consumers cannot make properly informed decisions about the foods they are buying without the help of food businesses.

On the other hand, food businesses commonly devise claims and place information about their products on product packaging and labelling or in broader advertising strategies such as on the internet and broadcasting, so as to influence consumers' decision-making and improve sales. Consumers are known to have been more influenced by celebrity endorsements and novelty rather than nuanced advice or empirical data from medical practitioners and nutritionists, particularly where health or nutritional claims are made. Contemporary placentophagy is one emerging risk.

There is, however, information asymmetry which makes it difficult for any consumer to verify food claims. Food credence attributes like food safety, provenance, the manufacture or production method (e.g. "free-range" and if organic or genetically modified) and the food's standard, quality or value, are matters of quality that cannot be assessed by an ordinary food buyer simply by looking or examining the product at the point of sale.

Intervention via the criminal law is necessary because the consumer is typically unable to properly assess the safety of a food product he or she is buying or take control or other steps to protect himself or herself before consuming the food. The consumer is also unlikely to sue in a civil action in most circumstances for falling ill as a result of consuming labelled or advertised food, because of difficulties in identifying the source and cause of many illnesses (the food would already have been consumed with any pathogen or contaminant), and the often-low costs typically incurred by most consumers.

Part 10 is therefore directed at protecting consumers from misleading or deceptive food claims (intentional or unintentional) and at ensuring that information about food on product packaging and labelling or disseminated via advertising strategies, is accurate and can be substantiated. This is to ensure that even in an environment with increasing product differentiation and competition for the consumer's dollar, product marketing remains consistent with scientific advice, to ensure honest labelling which is aligned with the primary ingredients, and to restrict use of nutrition and implied health claims.

Clause 177 sets out definitions which are used mainly or exclusively in Part 10. The notable definitions are "relevant advertising regulations" and "relevant regulations". These 2 definitions reflect the division of responsibility between the Ministry of Health and the Ministry of Sustainability and the Environment regarding labelling and advertising relating to food.

There are definitions in clauses 3 and 7 which are also very relevant to Part 10, such as "content" and "advertisement".

Clause 178 sets out another important definition used in Part 10, namely, "falsely describe" food.

Clause 179 makes it an offence if a person, in the course of carrying on a food business, engages in conduct that is misleading or deceptive or is likely to mislead or deceive, in relation to the packaging or labelling of food intended for supply, or the supply of food. This is a general offence that does not limit the application of the other offences in Part 10.

For example, a manufacturer of multigrain biscuits sells its products which are made of gluten-free flour and other grains which contain gluten (e.g. barley, rye), with packaging bearing the words "gluten-free", implying that the whole product is gluten-free when only one of the ingredients is gluten-free.

A distributor of fruit juice sells the product with packaging bearing the words "zero sugar", implying that the product does not contain any sugar, when in fact it contains naturally occurring sugars.

Clause 179 does not apply to advertising as that is dealt with by clause 184.

Clause 180 makes it an offence if a person, in the course of carrying on a food business, supplies food that is packed or labelled in a way that falsely describes the food, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the packaging or labelling falsely describes the food.

There is also another offence where a person supplies in the course of carrying on a food business, any food to another person, and gives the other person a false warranty for the food, when he or she knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the warranty is false.

For example, a manufacturer of alternative protein patties sells its products in packaging bearing the words “100% plant-based” when the patties contain some ingredients of animal origin.

Clause 181 is the strict liability equivalent of the offence in clause 180. It is an offence if a person, in the course of carrying on a food business, supplies to another person food that is packed or labelled in a way that falsely describes the food, or supplies food to another person and gives that person a false warranty for the food.

For example, a provision shop sells a honey product with packaging bearing a label “Victoria Honey” when the product is in fact made up predominantly of sugars of corn and sugar cane, and its provenance is not Victoria, Australia but another country.

Clause 182 is a form of misleading or deceptive conduct relating to meat or meat products. It is an offence where a person, during the slaughter of animals to produce meat or meat products, or during meat processing, does something to the meat —

- (a) with the intention of deceiving someone else about the species of animal the meat is from; or
- (b) that the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, is likely to result in someone else being deceived about the species of animal the meat is from.

This is made a specific offence in recognition of the several food-based religious practices in Singapore’s society and the importance of religious harmony.

Clause 183 sets out offences connected with labelling.

It is an offence if a person labels, or causes to be labelled, any food in connection with the supply or possible supply of the food in the course of carrying on a food business, or the promotion of the supply or use of the food in the course of carrying on a food business, in a way that —

- (a) contains any content which is prohibited by any relevant regulations for that food;

- (b) does not contain any content which is required by any relevant regulations to be used in relation to that food; or
- (c) contains content in a form contrary to any relevant regulations as they apply in relation to that food.

Clause 183(2) also makes it an offence if a person supplies, in the course of carrying on a food business, any food that —

- (a) is labelled in a way that contains any content which is prohibited by any relevant regulations for that food, does not contain any content which is required by any relevant regulations to be used in relation to that food, or contains content in a form contrary to any relevant regulations as they apply in relation to that food; or
- (b) is not labelled in the manner which is required by any relevant regulations in relation to that food.

The offences in clause 183 are strict liability. The relevant regulations can either be the regulations made under Part 15 or the Part 9 Regulations.

A label is defined in clause 3 to include any tag, brand, stamp, mark, stencil or written statement, any representation or design, or any descriptive matter, that —

- (a) is attached to, annexed or affixed to the goods or any container or packaging of or thing used in connection with the goods;
- (b) is written, printed, stamped or located on the goods or any container or packaging of or thing used in connection with the goods;
- (c) is determined on the basis of anything encoded on or in relation to the goods;
- (d) is displayed or used in connection with, or is accompanying, the goods or anything on which the goods are mounted for display or exposed for supply; or
- (e) is otherwise applied to the goods or any container or packaging of or thing used in connection with the goods in a manner from which it may reasonably be inferred that it is applicable to those goods.

The definition of “label” extends to cover content accessible directly via hyperlinks and QR codes on labels; see clause 3(3). As the space on labels is valuable, it is increasingly common for labels to contain hyperlinks or QR codes which set out or link the consumer to content extrinsic to the label. The expanded definition is directed at addressing a situation where the physical label may be in full conformity with the relevant regulations but the extrinsic content may not.

To avoid overlapping laws, the linked content which is on a label is generally not an advertisement; see clause 7(5).

Clause 184 criminalises advertising that is non-compliant with advertising requirements prescribed in regulations made under the Bill. One set of requirements may be set out by the Minister for Health by way of Part 9 Regulations in connection with health promotion. The other set of requirements may be set out by the Agency in connection with food safety.

A person commits an offence if the person publishes, or causes or authorises to be published, in Singapore any advertisement about a food or a regulated food contact article, and the advertisement contains any content that —

- (a) contravenes any requirement of the relevant advertising regulations that are applicable to the food or regulated food contact article; or
- (b) is or contains a false description of the food, or is false as to the suitability of the regulated food contact article.

Clause 7(1) defines what it means to publish in Singapore. Publishing in Singapore has been defined to mean communicating, distributing, or making available or making known, the content to the general public.

Where content is made available or known, distributed or communicated in electronic or digital form using a social media service, telecommunication service (like SMS or MMS) or relevant electronic service (like an online instant messaging service or by email), the content is taken to be published in Singapore if it originates from a point in Singapore or is between a point and one or more other points, where the firstmentioned point is outside Singapore and at least one of the other points is inside Singapore.

However, no offence is committed if the advertising is not Singapore-linked. Clause 177(2) provides that an advertising is Singapore-linked only if the person who publishes, or causes or authorises the publishing, in Singapore of the advertisement concerned is, at the time of advertising —

- (a) an individual physically present in Singapore;
- (b) an entity which is registered in Singapore (even if incorporated outside Singapore), or is incorporated, under any written law; or
- (c) a corporation sole or corporation aggregate established under a private Act.

The offence in clause 184 therefore does not extend to any person outside Singapore publishing a non-compliant advertisement, even if the content is accessible to people physically present in Singapore.

For example, an individual proprietor of a food business outside Singapore may post an advertisement on the internet about the food product, which contains a food production substance that is not an approved food production substance for that food, under the regulations made under the Bill. Alternatively, the advertisement may be one that does not contain the required nutritional grading or health warning for the food product, which is mandatory content for health promotion reasons. That advertisement originating outside Singapore can be viewed by anyone in Singapore and offers online purchases and delivery of the food product, with a price list in Singapore dollars as well as other foreign currencies. The advertisement when posted is not Singapore-linked. However, as the advertisement's content continues to be made known and published in Singapore while it remains online and accessible to anyone in Singapore (see clause 7 definition of "publish in Singapore"), the offence under clause 184 may be made out when that individual proprietor enters Singapore and the advertisement has not been taken down.

The offence in clause 184 is strict liability, no different than section 16A of the Sale of Food Act 1973 today. It is not necessary for the prosecution to prove that a person charged knew or had reason to believe that the advertisement in question contains any content that —

- (a) contravenes any requirement of the relevant advertising regulations that are applicable to the food or regulated food contact article; or
- (b) is or contains a false description of the food, or is false as to the suitability of the regulated food contact article.

Like section 16A of the Sale of Food Act 1973, clause 184(5) and (6) also places an evidentiary burden on the defendant who is alleged to have published an advertisement which is false as to age, composition, etc., of the food or the safety or suitability of the food or a regulated food contact article. Failing to adduce evidence to the contrary when it is alleged that a person has published a false advertisement, will result in the advertisement being found to be false. However, the provisions do not place a legal burden on the defendant to prove that the advertisement is not false.

The purpose for placing the evidentiary burden on the defendant remains necessary to protect the consumer. Food businesses commonly devise claims and place information about their products on product packaging and labelling or in broader advertising strategies such as on the internet and broadcasting, so as to influence consumers' decision-making and thus improve sales.

There is, however, information asymmetry which makes it difficult for any consumer to verify food claims. Whether or not a food claim is true, or a testimonial is used in a genuine manner is only likely to be in the knowledge of the defendant. As such, an evidentiary onus on the defendant would ensure that all relevant information will be put before the court.

In the absence of a reverse onus, the prosecution would have difficulty ascertaining whether a claim is real and/or accurate. The Agency would then need to invoke the use of extensive information gathering powers, which would impose compliance costs on businesses.

On the other hand, a food business making a genuine representation about food it is supplying should easily be able to adduce evidence that the food claim/testimonial is real/accurate by producing relevant evidence.

Clause 185 sets out the offence of advertising defined food. A person commits an offence if the person advertises a food and the food is a defined food at the time of the publication or communication, and the advertising is Singapore-linked. It is immaterial whether the defined food concerned is safe.

Clause 186 sets out a defence with respect to an offence under Part 10 (except clauses 184 and 185), under which the defendant has to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that —

- (a) the commission of the offence was due to an act or omission of another person (who is not an employee, agent or officer of the defendant), or an accident or some other cause outside the defendant's control; and
- (b) the defendant took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to prevent the commission of the offence by the defendant, or by another person under the defendant's control.

The general defence in section 26H(4) of the Penal Code 1871 is disapplied so as to avoid legal confusion.

Clause 187 sets out a defence to a charge for an offence under clause 183 involving labelling of food. It is a defence for the person charged to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that the food in question is to be exported to another country, and the food complies with the laws (if any) in force at the time of the alleged offence, of the country to which the food is to be exported, being laws that deal with the same subject matter as the provision of the Bill is concerned.

Clause 188 sets out various defences for a person charged with an offence under clause 184 or 185 in relation to advertising any food or regulated food contact article.

The first defence is where the person charged can prove, on a balance of probabilities, that the person was acting in the course of a business of delivering, transmitting or broadcasting information or material (in whatever form or by whatever means) or making data available, and the nature of the business is such that persons undertaking it have no control over the nature or content of the information or material or data. This is akin to but does not affect the general immunity of network service providers under section 26 of the Electronic Transactions Act 2010.

The second defence is where the person charged proves, on a balance of probabilities, that —

- (a) the advertisement about the food or regulated food contact article was so published as an accidental or incidental accompaniment to the publication of any other matter not forming part of any promotion of the food or regulated food contact article in question; and

- (b) the person does not receive any direct or indirect benefit (whether financial or not) for publishing that advertisement, in addition to any direct or indirect benefit that the person receives for publishing that other matter.

For example, the broadcaster includes images of a non-compliant food advertisement shown on a football pitch which is the subject of a live broadcast receivable in Singapore.

The third defence is where the person charged proves, on a balance of probabilities, that the person —

- (a) is a person whose business is to publish or arrange for the publication of advertisements and that the person received the advertisement for publication in the ordinary course of business; and
- (b) has no financial interest in the food or regulated food contact article featured in the advertisement.

However, none of the defences are available if the person charged for an offence under clause 184 or 185 in relation to advertising any food or regulated food contact article —

- (a) had previously been informed in writing by the Agency or a Part 9 enforcement officer that publishing in Singapore of the advertisement about the food or regulated food contact article, or a similar advertisement, would constitute an offence under Part 10;
- (b) ought reasonably to have known that the publishing in Singapore of the advertisement about the food or regulated food contact article was an offence under Part 10; or
- (c) is the proprietor of a food business or is otherwise engaged in the conduct of a food business for which the advertisements concerned were published.

PART 11

CERTAIN AGRI-FOOD PRODUCTION INPUTS

Part 11 relates to only 2 agri-food production inputs viz. animal feed and plant pesticides used in the cultivation of plants for human consumption as food. Part 11 has 3 Divisions.

Animal feed (as defined in clause 16) can present a major risk to the health of humans because of the potential of animal feed, if not fit for purpose, to transfer harmful organisms and other contaminants to humans when people consume animal products from food producing animals. Animal feed that is not fit for purpose can also present a risk to food producing animals and a reduction in yields of food derived from these animals.

Likewise for plant pesticides, which is defined in clause 3(1) as a substance or a mixture of substances that is represented, imported, supplied or prepared, or used in the course of cultivating plants, as a means of directly —

- (a) destroying, repelling, inhibiting the feeding of, or preventing infestation by or attacks of, any pest in relation to a plant;
- (b) destroying a plant;
- (c) modifying the physiology of a plant or pest so as to alter its natural development, productivity, quality or reproductive capacity; or
- (d) attracting a plant pest for the purpose of destroying it.

However, the Minister may, by order in the Gazette, exclude from the definition of “plant pesticide” certain substances. It is envisaged that an order in the Gazette may be made to exclude a plant pesticide that is manufactured or prepared from or using food exclusively, and to exclude organisms from the definition so as not to apply the Bill to predatory insects, predatory mites, parasitoids and nematodes which are used as alternatives to chemical pesticides in the control of plant pests.

Part 11 recognises that the health and safety of human beings is a priority when regulating chemicals like plant pesticides. There is the potential of a plant pesticide, if its quality, safety or efficacy for the purposes for which it is to be used, has not been satisfactorily established, to transfer harmful chemical residues and other contaminants to humans when people consume plants cultivated using the plant pesticide.

Division 1 of Part 11 contains interpretive provisions for terms used only or mainly in Part 11, and outlines the scope of application.

Division 2 of Part 11 seeks to minimise and manage risks to human health from consuming animal products which may arise from the animal feed fed to food producing animals. To that end, this Division establishes a licensing regime to ensure, so far as is practicable, that all animal feed produced for food producing animals is fit for purpose.

The scheme in Division 2 replaces the scheme in the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965 so far as that Act affects manufacturing of animal feed intended for food producing animals. However, Division 2 is wider than the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965 as it goes beyond licensing the manufacture of animal feed. Division 2 extends to regulating the rearing of animals as animal feed, such as breeding frogs for fish farming. Division 2 will not regulate the sale of such animal feed.

Division 3 of Part 11 prohibits using in the growing of food a plant pesticide product that is not registered by the Agency. To minimise and manage risks to human health arising from the use of plant pesticides in the growing of food, a registration regime for plant pesticide products is established in Division 3. The object is to ensure that, so far as is practicable, plant pesticide products used in the growing of food are safe, by continuing with vocational control over individuals who carry out prescribed pesticide work.

The scheme in Division 3 replaces the scheme in the Control of Plants Act 1993 so far as that Act affects cultivation of plants for human consumption as food. The Control of Plants Act 1993 as amended in Part 17 will continue to regulate the use of pesticides in horticulture and the cultivation of plants not intended for human consumption as food.

Clause 189 contains definitions of terms used only or mainly in Part 11.

An important term defined is the “feed control plan” which, like that for food businesses, is a regulatory tool to enable moving away from prescriptive regulation enforced primarily by end-point inspection of the finished product, to placing responsibility on licensed animal feed producers to put in place preventative measures to minimise risks and assure fitness of the animal feed in their respective production processes. The term “feed control plan” is relevant in clause 191 (applications for or to renew an animal feed production licence) and in clause 196 where non-compliance with a feed control plan accepted by the Agency may be a ground for regulatory action.

Clause 190(1) disapplies Division 2 of Part 11 to animal feed production —

- (a) in the course of any research and development activity undertaken directly by the person; or
- (b) for feeding directly to any food producing animal that the person keeps as a pet.

Clause 190(3) disapplies Division 3 of Part 11 to the use of any plant pesticide in the cultivation of —

- (a) any plant which is not an edible plant;
- (b) any edible plant which is not for supply, such as for domestic and home gardening; or
- (c) any edible plant for the primary purpose of the retail sale of the whole edible plant in a pot, such as herbs or the tangerine kumquat tree widely available during Chinese New Year period.

An “edible plant” has been defined in clause 3(1) to mean a species of plant that is capable of being consumed as food. Besides vegetables and fruits, the definition extends to the pomegranate plant which is also often sold for “feng shui” reasons.

However, a cannabis plant would not be an edible plant because its leaves contain a psychoactive substance, which clause 4(3) excludes from the scope of the Bill.

Clause 190(3) also disapplies Division 3 of Part 11 to the use of any plant pesticide in the raising or producing of an animal.

Division 2 of Part 11 is divided into 3 Subdivisions.

Subdivision (1) provides for the licensing of animal feed production. Subdivision (2) imposes record-keeping obligations on licensees for traceability of animal feed, similar to that imposed on licensed importers of food and proprietors of licensable food businesses. Subdivision (3) contains the offences relating to unlawful animal feed production.

Clause 191 incorporates the general licensing procedures in Division 4 of Part 14 for the purposes of an application for an animal feed production licence that may be granted under this Part.

Clause 192 outlines the criteria for the grant and renewal of any animal feed production licence or for imposing conditions on or modifying a condition of an animal feed production licence.

Among the factors the Agency is empowered to have regard to is whether the applicant for the licence or licence renewal, or animal feed production licensee, or an associate of the applicant or animal feed production licensee, is or was disqualified by clause 298 from holding the animal feed production licence applied for.

A person is disqualified from holding an animal feed production licence when the person's previous animal feed production licence is revoked. An "associate" is defined in clause 17.

Another criterion is whether the licence applicant or animal feed production licensee has, and will keep and maintain, a feed control plan relating to the applicant's or animal feed production licensee's production of animal feed which is accepted by the Agency.

Clause 193 outlines conditions which may be imposed on an animal feed production licence.

Clause 194 deals with how long an animal feed production licence may be in force. The maximum validity of such a licence is 5 years.

Clause 195 provides the Agency with power to unilaterally modify licence conditions. The steps in doing so are set out in the general licensing procedures in Division 4 of Part 14 and these are incorporated in clause 195.

Clause 196 sets out the grounds that the Agency can rely on to take regulatory action concerning a holder of an animal feed production licence granted under Part 11. The procedure that must be followed when taking regulatory action is set out in Division 4 of Part 14.

Regulatory action is not a criminal proceeding for an offence committed. Regulatory action is by the Agency, from whom the privilege to hold the licence is granted, and encompasses, at the most extreme, the revocation of the licence granted. The Agency may respond to a licensee's defaults in other less extreme ways instead of licence revocation, such as —

- (a) suspend (in whole or in part) the licence for not more than 6 months;
- (b) direct the animal feed production licensee to do, or to refrain from doing, any thing that is specified in a direction to rectify any contravention or non-compliance that constitutes the ground for regulatory action;
- (c) modify any condition of the animal feed production licence; or
- (d) direct the animal feed production licensee to pay, within a period specified in a direction, a financial penalty of an amount that the Agency thinks fit, but not exceeding $5,000 for each contravention of or failure to comply with any specified matter or for each other ground of regulatory action.

Clause 197 deals with the effect of revocation of an animal feed production licence.

Clause 198 provides that the obligations in this Subdivision bind only every animal feed production licensee in respect of the production of animal feed by the animal feed production licensee. The obligation may be imposed on an animal feed production licensee even for making animal feed for the animal feed production licensee's own farm animals to consume. It is immaterial that the animal feed is not supplied or is for export or exported.

Clause 199 outlines the information that an animal feed production licensee must keep or have ready access to and for how long.

The information that an animal feed production licensee is required to keep or have ready access to, is information which will enable the licensee to trace the animal feed one step backwards and one step forwards. The information relating to the animal feed must also be retained for a period prescribed in the animal feed regulations.

Contravention of any requirement in clause 199 is a strict liability offence.

Clause 200 provides that an animal feed production licensee must have procedures and accurate information for identifying and locating animal feed produced by the animal feed production licensee, and for tracing the animal feed so that the animal feed can be traced one step backwards and one step forwards.

The information must also be sufficient to allow an effective recall to be carried out under a direction given under Part 7.

Under clause 200, an animal feed production licensee has to conduct simulations or other tests of those procedures if required by the Agency.

An animal feed production licensee must also establish and use the procedures for recalling of animal feed supplied in Singapore by the animal feed production licensee and that the licensee considers to be not fit for purpose or whose fitness for purpose is in doubt.

If an animal feed production licensee decides to recall any animal feed on the ground that the animal feed is or might be not fit for purpose, the animal feed production licensee has to notify the Agency as soon as practicable, but no later than 24 hours after making the decision, about the animal feed affected by the recall, and the reason for the recall.

Clause 201 makes it an offence for failing to provide information or failing to provide information within a specified time when requested to do so by an authorised officer or a food inspector about the matters in clause 199(1). An animal feed production licensee is bound to state truly what the animal feed production licensee is requested, and must give information in a readily accessible format, and within 24 hours after the request, or within any reasonable shorter period specified by the authorised officer or food inspector, as the case may be.

It may be vital that the Agency can quickly obtain information from animal feed production licensees in order to prevent animal feed which is not fit for purpose from being further supplied or fed to food producing animals, and thereby entering the food supply chain and endangering human health. The offence in clause 201 is intended to deter persons refusing or failing to provide information needed to prevent this potentially serious risk to human health. For this reason, an individual would not be able to rely on the privilege against self-incrimination to not disclose the required information. See clause 259.

Clause 202(1) makes it an offence for a person to produce in Singapore, in the course of a business, any animal feed, when the person is not a holder of a current animal feed production licence, or is not exempt under clause 320 or 321 in relation to producing animal feed.

Clause 202(2) also makes it an offence for a person to produce in Singapore, in the course of a business, any animal feed at or on any premises that is not specified in an animal feed production licence granted to the person.

Clause 203 makes it an offence for a person to produce any animal feed in Singapore that is not fit for purpose where the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the animal feed is not fit for purpose.

Clause 204 is the strict liability equivalent offence of the offence in clause 203.

Division 3 of Part 11 also has 3 Subdivisions.

Subdivision (1) provides for the registration of plant pesticide products. Subdivision (2) provides for the vocational control over certified pesticide operators. Subdivision (3) contains the offences relating to unlawful plant pesticide use, defences to those offences and presumptions.

Clause 205 deals with the registration of plant pesticide products on an application to register. Registration is on a product basis and not according to chemical constituents. When registering a plant pesticide product, the Agency must also approve a label for the plant pesticide product. The label may be approved only if the label meets all applicable labelling criteria covered by clause 207.

Clause 206 describes the criteria and procedure in evaluating a plant pesticide product for registration.

Clause 207 describes the criteria and procedure in evaluating a label for containers of a plant pesticide product for approval, after registering the product. The applicable labelling criteria for a label is whether the label contains adequate instructions relating to such of the following as are appropriate:

- (a) the circumstances in which the plant pesticide product should be used;
- (b) how the plant pesticide product should be used;
- (c) the frequency of the use of the plant pesticide product;
- (d) the withholding period after the use of the plant pesticide product;
- (e) the re-entry period after the use of the plant pesticide product;
- (f) the disposal of the plant pesticide product when it is no longer required;
- (g) the disposal of containers of the plant pesticide product;
- (h) the safe handling of the plant pesticide product and first aid in the event of an accident caused by the handling of the plant pesticide product.

Other matters may be set out in the pesticide control regulations made by the Agency.

Clause 208 provides that the registration of a plant pesticide product remains in force for the period prescribed in the pesticide control regulations and for so long as the registration is not cancelled or suspended under clause 209.

A label for a registered plant pesticide product ceases to be an approved label when the registration of the registered plant pesticide product is cancelled or whenever that registration is suspended under clause 209.

Clause 209 sets out the grounds upon which a regulatory sanction against a person who applied to register the registered plant pesticide product (called the registrant) may be taken.

Regulatory sanction refers to cancelling or suspending the registration of a plant pesticide product on a variety of grounds. In clause 209, these are —

- (a) the registrant applies for the registration of the plant pesticide product to be cancelled;
- (b) the registrant is convicted of an offence under clause 220 (intentionally removing, altering, defacing or destroying an approved label on a container of a registered plant pesticide product);
- (c) the Agency is reasonably satisfied that it is necessary to stop the use of the plant pesticide product in the interest of public health, or because of or to prevent any physical harm or further physical harm, or any risk or further risk of physical harm, to the environment;
- (d) the Agency becomes aware of a circumstance that would have required or permitted the Agency to refuse to register the plant pesticide product, had the Agency been aware of the circumstance immediately before registering the plant pesticide product;
- (e) the supply or use in Singapore of the plant pesticide product has stopped for a continuous period exceeding 12 months; or
- (f) the use of the plant pesticide product is being or has been advertised in Singapore by a registrant in a manner that is false, misleading or deceptive.

The procedure that must be followed when taking regulatory action is set out in Division 4 of Part 14.

The Agency's decision to take regulatory action under clause 209 is an appealable decision. See Part 12.

Clause 210 incorporates the general licensing procedures in Division 4 of Part 14 for the purposes of any application to be appointed as a certified pesticide operator.

A certified pesticide operator is an individual who carries out prescribed pesticide work, which clause 189 defines to mean the carrying out of any of the following kinds of work as may be prescribed (if any) by the pesticide control regulations:

- (a) the supply or use of plant pesticides for a fee or reward;
- (b) the piloting or use of aircraft in connection with the supply or use of plant pesticides (whether or not for a fee or reward);

- (c) the carrying on of a business involving any of the activities referred to in paragraph (a) or (b), including the employment or engagement of individuals to carry out any of those activities for that business.

Clause 211 outlines the criteria the Agency considers before appointing an individual as a certified pesticide operator or for imposing appointment conditions or modifying a condition of the appointment.

Clause 212 deals with how long an appointment as a certified pesticide operator may be in force. The maximum validity of any such appointment is 3 years.

Clause 213 sets out the grounds upon which the Agency may take regulatory action against a certified pesticide operator. The procedure that must be followed when taking regulatory action is set out in Division 4 of Part 14.

The regulatory action covers cancelling the appointment of the certified pesticide operator, directing the certified pesticide operator to do, or to refrain from doing, any thing that is specified in a direction (which may include completing any course, training, assessment, examination or test), suspending the appointment for not more than 6 months, or modifying any condition of the appointment.

The Agency's decision to take regulatory action against a certified pesticide operator is an appealable decision. The certified pesticide operator concerned may appeal to the Minister against that decision. See Part 12.

Subdivision (3) contains offences involving plant pesticides and sets out defences and presumptions connected with prosecuting the offences.

Clause 214 makes it an offence for an individual to carry on, or cause or permit to be carried on, any prescribed pesticide work for reward, when he or she is not a certified pesticide operator authorised to carry out that kind of prescribed pesticide work, or he or she is not doing so under the direction or supervision of a certified pesticide operator authorised to carry out that kind of prescribed pesticide work.

An individual who is exempt under clause 320 or 321 from this clause will not be guilty of an offence.

Unlike clause 215, the offence in clause 214 may be committed only by an individual, and not an entity.

Clause 215 makes it an offence for a person to intentionally use, or cause or permit the use of, a plant pesticide that is an unregistered plant pesticide product in either —

- (a) the cultivation of any edible plant; or
- (b) any place where any primary production activity is undertaken, and where the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the pesticide used is an unregistered plant pesticide product.

Clause 216 is the strict liability offence involving the intentional use, or causing or permitting the use of, a plant pesticide that is an unregistered plant pesticide product in either —

- (a) the cultivation of any edible plant; or
- (b) any place where any primary production activity is undertaken.

Knowledge that the plant pesticide used is an unregistered plant pesticide product is not an element of the offence.

Clause 217 makes it an offence for a person to intentionally use, or cause or permit the use of, a registered plant pesticide product in the cultivation of any edible plant, in a way that contravenes or does not comply with any relevant instruction on an approved label for the plant pesticide product and where the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the use is in contravention of, or is not in compliance with, the relevant instruction.

Clause 218 is the strict liability offence involving the intentional use, or causing or permitting the use, of a registered plant pesticide product in the cultivation of any edible plant, in a way that contravenes or does not comply with any relevant instruction on an approved label for the plant pesticide product. Knowledge that the plant pesticide is a registered plant pesticide product, and that the use is in contravention of, or is not in compliance with, any relevant instruction on an approved label for the plant pesticide product are not elements of the offence.

Clause 219 makes it an offence for a person who, without reasonable excuse, keeps a registered plant pesticide product in a container that does not bear a label that is identical to the approved label for that product.

It is a strict liability offence. The prosecution does not need to prove that the person charged knew or had reason to believe that the container of the registered plant pesticide product did not bear a label that is identical to the approved label for that product.

However, it is a defence for the person charged to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that the person charged did not know, and could not reasonably have been expected to know, that the plant pesticide product was in the container.

Clause 220 makes it an offence for a person who, without reasonable excuse intentionally removes, alters, defaces or destroys, or causes or allows to be intentionally removed, altered, defaced or destroyed, an approved label on a container of a registered plant pesticide product, except in certain described circumstances in clause 220(2).

The exceptional circumstances are removing, altering, defacing or destroying a label on a container of a registered plant pesticide product —

- (a) in the course of disposing of the container which is empty; or
- (b) for the purpose of altering or replacing a label attached to the container containing the registered plant pesticide product in order to meet an applicable requirement of this Bill relating to information on approved labels for that plant pesticide product.

Clause 221 sets out a defence to an offence under clause 215(1) or 216(1). It is a defence for the person charged to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that —

- (a) the person did not cultivate the edible plant as food, or for the purpose of supplying it as food;
- (b) the person had, in the course of supplying or offering or exposing for supply by retail, any edible plant, displayed or caused to be displayed, conspicuously within the premises or place where the plant was supplied or offered or exposed for supply, such number of warning notices stating that the edible plant is not cultivated or supplied as food as will give any customer in the premises or place adequate notice of that fact;
- (c) the person cultivated the edible plant in the course of, or for the purpose of, that plant being exported; or
- (d) a contract or arrangement has been entered into, or an understanding has been arrived at, for the edible plant to be exported, whether or not the person charged is a party to that contract, arrangement or understanding.

The clear elements of the defence are intended to benefit those engaged in commercial cultivation of plants and increase business certainty and confidence in how to come within the safe harbour that is clause 221.

The defence in clause 221 does not affect the defence in section 26H(4) of the Penal Code 1871 which applies to any strict liability offence, and to any other exception in Chapter 4 of the Penal Code 1871 if applicable.

Clause 222 contains defences to an offence in clause 217(1) or 218(1).

The first defence is if the person charged proves, on a balance of probabilities, that the person complied with the relevant instructions on an approved label for a registered plant pesticide product (being an approved label that was, at the time of the alleged offence, affixed or attached to, or appeared on, the container of the plant pesticide that was used).

The second defence is if the person charged —

- (a) used a registered plant pesticide product at a concentration or rate lower than that specified in the relevant instructions on an approved label for the plant pesticide product (provided that the lower concentration or rate was not prohibited by the relevant instructions); and
- (b) otherwise complied with the relevant instructions on the approved label.

The defences in clause 222 do not affect the defence in section 26H(4) of the Penal Code 1871 which applies to any strict liability offence, and to any other exception in Chapter 4 of the Penal Code 1871 if applicable.

Clause 223 contains a presumption as to the use of a plant pesticide, which is relevant to proving an offence in this Subdivision.

If a police officer or an authorised officer, after lawfully entering certain premises, finds at that time —

- (a) any container of plant pesticide on the premises containing at least 10 grams (or 10 millilitres) of plant pesticide; or
- (b) any individual in those premises intentionally concealing, intentionally removing or intentionally destroying any container on the premises containing at least 10 grams (or 10 millilitres) of plant pesticide, every adult occupier of those premises at that particular time is to be presumed, until the contrary is proved, to have intended to keep the plant pesticide to apply, spray, spread or disperse the plant pesticide by any means.

The presumption is a rebuttable one. It also applies only if the premises entered are premises used (in whole or in part) by any person to undertake any primary production activity involving the cultivation of any edible plant.

PART 12

APPEALS

Clause 224 sets out the decisions under the Bill (except in Part 9) which are appealable to the Minister.

Clause 224 sets out in a table the list of appealable decisions and provides for the persons aggrieved by an appealable decision who may appeal to the Minister against the decision. The appeal has to be in accordance with the clause in order for it to be considered. This includes observing a time limit to make the appeal.

Clause 225 relates to the appeal procedure, which includes making the appeal within a prescribed period after the date of receipt of the appealable decision that is appealed against. The period will be prescribed in rules made by the Minister under clause 229.

Clause 226 states that it is the function and duty of the Minister to consider and determine an appeal made to the Minister under clause 224. However, the Minister is not under any duty to hear, consider or determine any appeal if it appears that the bringing of the appeal is, or the proceedings of the appeal are, frivolous or vexatious.

The Minister may determine an appeal made under clause 224 by —

- (a) dismissing the appeal and confirming the decision appealed against;
- (b) allowing the appeal and referring the matter back to the initial decision-maker to reconsider the case, thereby revoking the decision appealed against; or
- (c) allowing the appeal and substituting or varying the decision appealed against.

However, where the appealable decision appealed against is a Part 7 direction or a written direction under clause 116, the Minister cannot substitute or vary the decision appealed against.

The Minister's decision on appeal is final; there is no further appeal or reconsideration against the Minister's decision, even if the Minister substitutes his or her decision.

Clause 227 makes it clear that for an appealable decision, the making of an appeal against it does not affect the operation of the decision appealed against or prevent the taking of any action to implement the decision, and unless otherwise directed by the Minister under this clause, the decision appealed against must be complied with until the determination of the appeal.

Clause 228 enables the Minister to designate other political office-holders in his or her Ministry to hear and determine, in the Minister's place, any appeal made under clause 224.

PART 13

MONITORING AND ENFORCEMENT

Part 13 sets out the monitoring and investigating powers that food security officers, authorised officers, food inspectors and Part 9 enforcement officers may exercise in the administration and enforcement of the provisions of the Bill.

The Part sets out 2 groups of powers. The first are called monitoring powers and these are more limited and are exercisable against regulated persons as part of monitoring to ensure their compliance with the respective regulatory requirements. The second group of powers are investigating powers into offences under the Bill, which may be committed by regulated persons as well as those who are not regulated by some licence or permit.

There are no powers of arrest in Part 13.

Division 1 of Part 13 contains 2 clauses of general application.

Clause 230 contains definitions of terms used exclusively in Part 13. A notable definition is “relevant material”, which lists things which regulated activities under the Bill will relate to or involve, viz., any primary produce, any food, any animal feed, any regulated food contact article, any plant pesticide, any non-packaged drinking water, and any MSR product that is none of the above. The term “relevant material” is integral to the exercise of monitoring powers.

The other notable definition is “evidential material”, which is a term integral to the exercise of investigating powers.

Clause 231 makes it clear that Part 13 does not affect a police officer’s powers or duties under any provision of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010 or other written law. The Part also does not affect any other power specially vested in a food security officer, an authorised officer, a food inspector or a Part 9 enforcement officer under any other provision of the Bill.

Division 2 of Part 13 contains 12 clauses about monitoring powers.

Clause 232 sets out who may exercise monitoring powers. They are a food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector, who is appointed under the Bill as a food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector (as the case may be) for the purposes of that provision.

In other words, a mere appointment as such an officer or inspector is not enough to be vested with monitoring powers. The appointment must relate to the specific monitoring power in a provision in this Division.

Clause 233 delimits the purposes for monitoring powers. Monitoring powers in this Division cannot be exercised for purposes outside of clause 233.

For a food security officer, the purposes are any of the following:

- (a) to determine whether the holding of an MSR product by an entity that is subject to a minimum stockholding requirement in relation to the MSR product, has been, or is being, complied with;
- (b) to determine for the purposes of clause 27 whether a divesting entity’s minimum stockholding requirement in relation to an MSR product is being assumed by, or divided with, another receiving entity or entities;

- (c) to determine whether information given in compliance, or purported compliance, with a provision in Part 2 (such as a clause 32 requirement) or any Part 2 Rules is correct.

For an authorised officer or a food inspector, a monitoring power may be exercised for one or more of the following purposes, only:

- (a) to determine whether to grant a licence or permit or other authorisation under the Bill;
- (b) to determine whether there is any ground to take regulatory action;
- (c) to determine whether information given in compliance, or purported compliance, with a provision in the Bill (other than Part 2 or any Part 2 Rules) is correct.

Clause 234 lists what the monitoring powers are. They are the power in clause 236 to enter premises, the post-entry powers in clause 237, and the different powers detailed in clauses 238, 239, 240, 241, 242 and 243, respectively.

Clause 235 sets out where monitoring powers may be exercised. Monitoring powers are not exercisable at large. In general, the premises are those occupied by regulated persons to conduct the activities authorised by their respective licences, permits or other authorisations.

Clause 236 details the power of entry into premises in clause 235 for the purposes of monitoring. Where the premises involved is a conveyance, there are additional details in clause 243. There is no need for a warrant to enter but there is no power of forcible entry.

Clause 237 details what next can be done after entering those premises. These include power —

- (a) to observe any activity conducted in the premises;
- (b) to examine any animal, object or thing in the premises;
- (c) to inspect and examine the premises;
- (d) to make or direct the making of a sketch, photograph or film, or an audio or a video recording, of any part of the premises, and the immediate vicinity of those premises unless the immediate vicinity is or consists of a private residence and any activity conducted in or on the premises;
- (e) to open or require to be opened any door, window, lock, fastener, cupboard, compartment, box, container or any other thing;
- (f) to interrupt any regulated activity being carried out in the premises;
- (g) to search any part of the premises; and

- (h) to request to inspect, and to inspect, free of charge any document found on the premises.

Clause 238 details the power to obtain information and documents. A food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector may require a person who is required under any provision of the Bill to keep records —

- (a) to provide for inspection any document or information within the period and in the manner specified by the officer or inspector; and
- (b) to allow an inspection and taking of extracts from, or making copies of, any such document or information, free of charge.

Clause 238 also empowers a food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector (as the case may be) to access data in computers as part of monitoring powers. This extends to requiring any person having charge of, or otherwise concerned with the operation of, the computer or equipment to provide assistance in gaining such access, such as providing a password or authentication code.

This can extend to the food security officer, authorised officer or food inspector taking possession of the document or any thing containing the information (but not a mobile phone or wearable device like a smart watch) if, in the opinion of a food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector concerned, the inspection or copying of or extraction from the document or thing cannot reasonably be performed without taking possession, the document or thing may be interfered with or destroyed unless possession is taken, or it may be evidential material or be required as evidence in any regulatory action instituted or commenced under the Bill.

Clause 239 details a post-entry power which is particularly relevant when there is a need to inspect, examine or test relevant material.

If, after entering any premises, a food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector reasonably believes that any compartment, box, container or other thing in the premises contains any relevant material, the food security officer, authorised officer or food inspector (as the case may be) may identify the relevant material (by marking or sealing or locking any door or opening containing or affording access to the relevant material). Alternatively, the owner or any individual who appears to be in charge of the relevant material may be required to hold it at the premises where it is or to move it to, and hold it at, any other reasonable place that the officer or inspector specifies.

Clause 240 is a post-entry power peculiar to animals which are found on premises mentioned in clause 236. The power is basically that of examining a live food producing animal. A food security officer therefore does not have this power.

Under clause 240, the owner or a person in control of a live food producing animal in those premises can be required to present the animal in a manner suitable for examination and identification, and to hold, isolate, separate it, or to treat all or any of those live food producing animals, for the purpose of the examination. The owner or a person in control of a live food producing animal in those premises may also be required to move or bring the animal to a convenient place within a reasonable distance of those premises, to allow the authorised officer or food inspector to exercise monitoring powers in relation to the animal.

The presentation or movement of any live food producing animal required is at the cost of the owner or person in control of the animal.

If the owner or person in control of a live food producing animal fails to present or to move the animal as required, an authorised officer or a food inspector may proceed to capture, collect, muster, extract, harvest, or pen the animal for the relevant purpose, and the Agency can then recover the expenses reasonably incurred by the authorised officer or food inspector from the owner or person in control of the animal to whom the requirement or direction was addressed.

Clause 240 provides that no compensation is payable in respect of any animal which is damaged or otherwise destroyed by virtue of any examination or identification under the clause unless the damage or destruction is directly attributable to the negligence or default of the authorised officer or food inspector.

Clause 242 details the power to test samples taken under clause 241.

Clause 243 deals with the peculiarities where any premises to be entered under clause 235 are a conveyance. The power includes requesting or directing the individual in control of the conveyance to stop and detaining the conveyance for as long as is reasonably necessary for the food security officer, authorised officer or food inspector (as the case may be) to exercise his or her monitoring powers in relation to the conveyance.

Division 3 of Part 13 contains 9 clauses relating to investigating powers.

Clause 244 provides that an investigating power is exercisable by a food security officer, an authorised officer, a food inspector or a Part 9 enforcement officer, provided that he or she is so appointed in relation to that power.

Clause 245 delimits the purposes for investigating powers. Investigating powers in this Division cannot be exercised for purposes outside of clause 245.

For a food security officer, an investigating power is exercisable only —

- (a) to inquire into anything where the food security officer suspects on reasonable grounds that —
 - (i) an offence under clause 28(3), 31(1), 35(3) or 36(1) or any Part 2 Rules has been or is being committed;

- (ii) an offence under clause 253, 254, 255, 256 or 257 involving a food security officer has been or is being committed; or
 - (iii) a civil penalty provision (the MSR obligation in clause 20) has been or is being contravened; or
- (b) to gather evidential material that relates to such an offence abovementioned or a civil penalty provision, that the food security officer suspects on reasonable grounds has been or is being committed.

For an authorised officer or a food inspector, an investigating power is exercisable for one or more of the following purposes, only:

- (a) to inquire into anything where the authorised officer or food inspector suspects on reasonable grounds that any offence under the Bill has been or is being committed, excluding offences under Part 2 or those connected with health promotion;
- (b) to gather evidential material that relates to any offence under the Bill (excluding offences under Part 2 or those connected with health promotion) that the authorised officer or food inspector suspects on reasonable grounds has been or is being committed;
- (c) to determine whether there is any ground to give a section 116 direction or a Part 7 direction to any person;
- (d) to determine whether —
 - (i) any food is unsafe food, unsuitable food or a defined food;
 - (ii) any controlled item is failing;
 - (iii) any animal feed is not fit for purpose; or
 - (iv) any non-packaged drinking water is unwholesome.

A Part 9 enforcement officer may exercise an investigating power for one or more of the following purposes, only:

- (a) to inquire into anything where the Part 9 enforcement officer suspects on reasonable grounds that a Part 9 offence or an offence under Part 10 involving any Part 9 Regulations has been or is being committed;
- (b) to gather evidential material that relates to any offence abovementioned that the Part 9 enforcement officer suspects on reasonable grounds that has been or is being committed.

Clause 246 lists what investigating powers are. Basically, they are monitoring powers plus the special powers in Division 3. A Part 9 enforcement officer has a reduced scope of investigating powers, because of the nature of offences they enforce under Parts 9 and 10.

Clause 247 provides where investigating powers may be exercised. They are not confined to premises occupied by regulated persons but subject to the purposes in clause 245.

The premises in relation to which a food security officer may exercise an investigating power are in clause 247(1).

The premises in relation to which an authorised officer or a food inspector may exercise an investigating power are in clause 247(2) and (3).

The premises in relation to which a Part 9 enforcement officer may exercise an investigating power are in clause 247(4) viz. any food premises, and any other premises where food is supplied or to be supplied or from which food is supplied or to be supplied. None of these can be a private residence.

Clause 248 describes the special powers of entry without warrant, which includes forcible entry. In all cases, the food security officer, authorised officer, food inspector or a Part 9 enforcement officer must be first unable to enter, or be refused entry to, the premises concerned. However, clause 248 does not confer any power of forcible entry in relation to a private residence.

For a food security officer, he or she has all the powers of entry in clause 236 to enter and remain at any of the premises mentioned in clause 247(1) without a warrant. In addition, a food security officer may make a forcible entry into any of those premises if all the following circumstances are met:

- (a) the food security officer suspects on reasonable grounds that —
 - (i) an offence under clause 28(3), 31(1), 35(3) or 36(1) or any Part 2 Rules has been or is being committed;
 - (ii) an offence under clause 253, 254, 255, 256 or 257 involving a food security officer has been or is being committed; or
 - (iii) a civil penalty provision (the MSR in clause 20) has been or is being contravened, and there is evidential material in those premises relevant to such an offence or contravention of a civil penalty provision;
- (b) the food security officer is reasonably satisfied that it is necessary to secure the evidential material in order to prevent the material from being concealed, lost or destroyed.

For an authorised officer or a food inspector, he or she has all the powers of entry in clause 236 to enter and remain at any of the premises mentioned in clause 247(2) or (3) without a warrant. In addition, an authorised officer or a food inspector may make a forcible entry into any of those premises if all the following circumstances are met:

- (a) the authorised officer or food inspector (as the case may be) suspects on reasonable grounds that any offence under the Bill (except an offence connected with Part 2 or 9) has been or is being committed and there is evidential material in those premises relevant to such an offence;
- (b) the authorised officer or food inspector is reasonably satisfied that it is necessary to secure the evidential material in order to prevent the material from being concealed, lost or destroyed.

Clause 248 also confers additional powers on an authorised officer or a food inspector to make a forcible entry into premises if —

- (a) he or she suspects on reasonable grounds that there is in the premises any of the following relevant material:
 - (i) any food which is unsafe food, unsuitable food or a defined food;
 - (ii) any primary produce which is unsafe;
 - (iii) any controlled item which is failing;
 - (iv) any animal feed which is not fit for purpose;
 - (v) any non-packaged drinking water for supply which is unwholesome;
 - (vi) any unregistered plant pesticide; and
- (b) he or she is reasonably satisfied that it is necessary to make a forcible entry to prevent or reduce a serious danger, or an imminent risk, of death or serious illness of any person from any of those relevant material being handled, used or supplied in connection with any regulated activity which has been or is being undertaken at those premises.

For a Part 9 enforcement officer, he or she has all the powers of entry in clause 236 to enter and remain at any of the premises mentioned in clause 247(4) without a warrant. In addition, a Part 9 enforcement officer may make a forcible entry into any of those premises if all the following circumstances are met:

- (a) the Part 9 enforcement officer suspects on reasonable grounds that a Part 9 offence, or an offence under Part 10 involving any Part 9 Regulations, has been or is being committed and there is evidential material in those premises relevant to such an offence;
- (b) the Part 9 enforcement officer is reasonably satisfied that it is necessary to secure the evidential material in order to prevent the material from being concealed, lost or destroyed.

Clause 249 contains enhanced powers of gathering information.

A food security officer, an authorised officer, a food inspector or a Part 9 enforcement officer may, by written order, require any individual whom the investigator reasonably believes to be acquainted with any fact or circumstance relevant to the offence concerned or contravention of a civil penalty provision, to attend before the same or another similar investigator to answer any question (to the best of that individual's knowledge, information and belief), to provide information, or to provide for inspection any document.

Clause 250 provides for a power to seize without warrant.

Clause 251 provides for the detention of food, food contact articles, and other evidential material seized and the handling thereafter.

Clause 252 is a scoped power conferred only on an authorised officer or a food inspector to obtain identity particulars from an individual. The power is exercisable only vis-à-vis an individual in a public place who is transporting or delivering food, or is handling or otherwise in possession of food for sale. An authorised officer or a food inspector may detain the individual only for so long as is reasonably necessary.

Division 4 of Part 13 contains 5 clauses which are offences connected with enforcement and administration of the Bill.

Clause 253 contains various offences of obstructing the course of investigations or exercise of monitoring powers. First, the offence of wilfully preventing, obstructing or delaying an investigator or outsourced enforcement officer from entering or re-entering premises.

There is also an offence of intentionally altering, suppressing or destroying any document or any information or material which the person has been required to provide.

It is also an offence if the person, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with any request, requirement or direction which is made or given by an investigator or an outsourced enforcement officer to that person.

Clause 254 deals with the offence of intentionally interfering with any seals or markings of an investigator.

Clause 255 deals with impersonation of a food security officer, an authorised officer, a food inspector, a Part 9 enforcement officer or an outsourced enforcement officer.

Clause 256 makes it an offence if a person forges certain documents, or applies, knowing it to be forged, a certain document. These documents are any of the following:

- (a) an inspection advice;

- (b) a recognised foreign government certificate;
- (c) an FSSA authorisation;
- (d) a registration mark for a plant pesticide;
- (e) an authorised analyst's certificate under clause 288.

Clause 257 is about the offence of providing false documents, information or materials in or in connection with —

- (a) an application (whether for that person or for another) for an FSSA authorisation like a licence or permit;
- (b) an appeal under Part 12; or
- (c) a requirement or direction of an investigator, and the person knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the document, information, material or statement is false or misleading or omits any matter or thing without which the document, information, material or statement is misleading.

Division 5 of Part 13 contains 16 clauses, which is a collection of provisions on evidential and ancillary matters.

Clause 258 provides that a person is not excused for not complying with a requirement imposed under certain provisions to give any information on the ground that the person is subject to a duty of confidentiality or privacy under any prescribed written law, any rule of law, any contract or any rule of professional conduct, that prevents or restricts the person from complying with the requirement.

Clause 258(2) and (3) affords protection to such a person under an obligation as to secrecy or other restriction upon the disclosure of information imposed by law, provided that the breach is attributable, or occasioned by, the person in good faith complying with a requirement imposed under the relevant provision of the Bill to provide information.

However, clause 258 does not relieve the person from the obligation not to disclose any information subject to legal privilege.

Clause 259 provides that a person is not excused for not complying with a requirement imposed under certain provisions of the Bill to give any information on the ground that the disclosure of the information would tend to expose the person to a criminal charge for an offence under the Bill, a repealed law or other written law.

Clause 259 also makes clear that by merely informing the investigated person that he or she is not so excused from disclosing the information does not constitute an inducement, threat or promise under section 258(3) of the Criminal Procedure

Code 2010, for the purposes of any proceedings for an offence under each provision of the Bill. An advocate and solicitor, or a legal counsel is not compelled to disclose or produce privileged communications for the purposes of investigations under the Bill.

Clauses 260 to 263 are rebuttable presumptions designed to facilitate proceedings for offences under the Bill. Many of these are existing under the Sale of Food Act 1973.

Clause 260 contains a presumption as to contents of a package of food vis-à-vis any label on the package of food. There is also a presumption as to the identity of the person who imported, produced, sold, or manufactured the food in the package, based on the information on the outside or inside of the package of food, or on any label of the package of food.

Clause 261 contains a presumption as to the supply or offer for supply of food or food contact article, when any food or food contact article is supplied or displayed or offered for supply. This is a re-enactment of section 28 of the Sale of Food Act 1973.

Clause 262 contains a presumption as to samples of food, primary produce or animal feed taken. The sample is presumed to be representative of the quantity of food, primary produce or animal feed from which the sample was taken until the contrary is proved. The sample is also presumed to be representative of the lot, or production run from which the identified quantity was taken until the contrary is proved.

Clause 263 contains a presumption that the import of any food or prepacked food additive in a quantity that is more than that which is imported for private consumption under clause 44 must be treated as an import of the food or prepacked food additive for the purpose of supply.

Clause 264 provides that the onus of proving that —

- (a) at the time of the alleged offence a person was exempted from a provision of the Bill; or
- (b) anything was done or omitted to be done with lawful excuse or authority or reasonable excuse, lies upon the person making that assertion.

Clause 265 is a re-enactment of section 36 of the Sale of Food Act 1973, with an improvement.

A witness for the prosecution is not compelled to disclose the fact that the witness received information, the nature of the information received or the name of the person from whom the information was received.

An authorised officer, a food inspector or a Part 9 enforcement officer appearing as a witness in any criminal proceedings is not compelled to produce any document containing any confidential matter made or received in his or her capacity as an authorised officer, a food inspector or a Part 9 enforcement officer, as the case may be.

However, a court hearing proceedings for an offence under the Bill may order the disclosure of any matter, or the production of a document, referred to in those subsections if the court considers that it is necessary in the interests of justice.

Clause 266 empowers a court to order a person found guilty of an offence involving advertising to undertake corrective advertising activities.

Clause 267 is a re-enactment of section 37 of the Sale of Food Act 1973. A person who is convicted of an offence under the Bill may be ordered by the court to pay all fees and other expenses for or incidental to the analysis of any food or thing in respect of which the conviction is obtained, and any other reasonable expenses incurred by the prosecution.

Clause 268 provides for all seized items to be liable to forfeiture by a court, except in the exceptional instances in clause 269. Sections 370, 371 and 372 of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010 relating to the handling of property seized by a police officer apply, with the necessary modifications, to any seized item under the Bill.

Certain large conveyances are excluded from clauses 268 and 269.

Clause 269 empowers the court, in any criminal proceeding against a person for an offence under the Bill, to order that any item seized in connection with the offence be forfeited under certain conditions.

Clause 270 provides for immediate forfeiture of seized items by the Agency in exceptional circumstances. The forfeiture can take place ahead of any finding of guilt in a criminal proceeding involving the seized item.

Immediate forfeiture by the Agency is allowed where the seized item is unfit for human consumption or not fit for purpose as an animal feed, or it is a biosecurity matter or any thing else which is a suspected hazard or the suspected source of contamination giving rise to a risk to human health, and the seized item is perishable or may rapidly depreciate in value, is injurious to health or is hazardous, is decayed or putrefied, or for any other reason is desirable to dispose without delay.

A complaint of the seizure to a Magistrate's Court can be made within 48 hours after the seizure. If no such complaint has been made with respect to the item seized, the Agency may proceed to destroy or otherwise dispose of the item. If the item is a living thing, the Agency may instead detain and treat it if not incurably diseased or injured, and then dispose of it at once in any manner that the Agency thinks fit.

Clauses 271 and 272 are standard provisions providing for the liability of officers of offenders who are corporations or unincorporated associations or partnerships.

Clause 273 empowers an authorised officer specially authorised by the Chief Executive of the Agency to compound any offence under the Bill which is prescribed as a compoundable offence. All composition sums must be paid into the Consolidated Fund.

PART 14

ADMINISTRATION

Part 14 is a general Part dealing with administrative matters.

Divisions 1, 2 and 3 concern the personnel necessary to administer the Bill. Division 4 contains the provisions of general application to all licensing schemes in the Bill. Division 5 deals with more administrative issues.

Clause 274 provides for the appointment by the Minister of a Director-General, Food Security to administer Part 2. The Director-General, Food Security is empowered to delegate the exercise of all or any of the powers conferred or duties imposed upon him or her by the Bill (save some exceptions) to any food security officer.

Clause 275 provides for the appointment by the Minister of food security officers for the purposes of Part 2 or 13 or the Part 2 Rules.

Clause 276 states that the Agency is to administer the Bill except —

- (a) Part 2 or the Part 2 Rules;
- (b) Part 9 and any Part 9 Regulations; or
- (c) Part 10 if involving any Part 9 Regulations.

Clause 277 provides for the appointment of the Director-General, Food Administration from among suitable officers of the Agency.

Clause 278 provides for the appointment of authorised officers from among suitable officers of the Agency or auxiliary police officers.

Clause 279 provides for the appointment by the Agency of food inspectors from civil servants or employees or officers of a public authority other than the Agency.

Clause 280 provides the Agency with power to further limit authorised officers and food inspectors in the exercise of powers conferred on them by the Bill. This may be done via a written authorisation given to the authorised officer or food inspector, as the case may be. The written authorisation can set any of the following limits:

- (a) limit when, and where in Singapore, the authorised officer or food inspector may exercise those powers or any of them;
- (b) limit the circumstances in which the authorised officer or food inspector may exercise those powers or any of them.

Clause 281 requires the Director-General, Food Security to issue identification cards and necessary equipment to food security officers. The identification card must be carried at all times by the food security officer when exercising powers under the Bill.

Clause 282 requires the Agency to issue identification cards and necessary equipment to each authorised officer and each food inspector. The identification card must be carried at all times by the authorised officer or food inspector (as the case may be) when exercising powers under the Bill.

Clause 283 provides that if asked to do so, a food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector must produce his or her identification card for inspection before exercising any power conferred on him or her.

There is also an offence of a food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector using any identification card issued under clause 281(1) or 282(1) otherwise than in the course of, or for the purpose of, performing the functions of a food security officer, an authorised officer or a food inspector.

Clause 284 is a standard provision in many Acts. Every food security officer, authorised officer or food inspector is taken to be a public servant for the purposes of the Penal Code 1871.

Division 2 of Part 14 comprises 2 clauses concerning another class of enforcement personnel called outsourced enforcement officers. Their role is to assist the Director-General, Food Security or the Agency in the administration of any provision of the Bill in any particular area in Singapore, except any provisions which the Ministry of Health administers.

Under clause 285, the Agency is empowered to appoint an individual who is at least 18 years of age, is not its employee or officer and is not a civil servant, to be an outsourced enforcement officer. The Agency has to issue to each outsourced enforcement officer an identification card, which must be carried at all times by an outsourced enforcement officer when exercising powers under any provision of the Bill.

Clause 286 sets out the powers of outsourced enforcement officers. These are less extensive than that conferred on any food security officer, authorised officer or food inspector. These powers are confined to regulated premises mentioned in clause 235, and none of those can be a private residence.

Division 3 of Part 14 consists of 4 clauses on authorised analysts, who are individuals appointed to carry out analysis of samples taken in the exercise of a monitoring power or investigating power, and whose certificate of analysis is sufficient evidence of the facts stated in the certificate.

Clause 287 empowers the Agency to appoint an individual, whom the Agency considers to be appropriately qualified, to be an authorised analyst.

Clause 288 provides that only an authorised analyst may supply a certificate of analysis.

Clause 289 describes the effect of an authorised analyst's certificate of analysis. This is no different from what is in section 34 of the Sale of Food Act 1973.

The production by the prosecution of a certificate of analysis in the prescribed form and purporting to be signed by an authorised analyst is sufficient evidence of the facts stated in the certificate, unless the person charged requires the authorised analyst to be called as a witness. If a person charged intends to require an authorised analyst to be called as a witness in any proceedings for an offence under the Bill, the person charged must give notice of the person's intention to the prosecution not less than 3 clear days before the day on which the summons is returnable.

Clause 290 makes it clear that an analysis by an authorised analyst is not always required for a conviction, if it appears to the court that the offence is sufficiently proved without an analysis.

Division 4 of Part 14 sets out the provisions of universal application to all activity-based regulatory schemes in Parts 3, 4, 5 and 11. The provisions in this Division need to be read together with those specific Parts, where applicable.

Clause 291 contains definitions of terms used mainly or exclusively in Part 14. In this Part, "FSSA authorisation" excludes registration of a plant pesticide product as the procedure for that is detailed in Part 11 to address the peculiar requirements of regulating a product, unlike the other FSSA authorisations.

Clause 292 sets out the general procedure for applications for the different FSSA authorisations under the Bill.

Clause 293 empowers the granting by the Agency of applications made under the Bill for an FSSA authorisation with or without modifying the conditions of the authorisation. The specific criteria that must be met before the authorisation may be granted are set out in Parts 3, 4, 5 and 11, respectively.

Clause 294 is the general power to impose conditions upon the grant of an FSSA authorisation. The specific conditions that must be imposed are set out in Parts 3, 4, 5 and 11, respectively.

Clause 295 sets out the due process which the Agency must observe when modifying conditions of an FSSA authorisation or in carrying out regulatory action against a holder of an FSSA authorisation.

Clause 296 provides that every FSSA authorisation (other than a pre-market approval), and any rights, benefits or privileges under the authorisation, are not transferable or assignable to any other person.

Clause 297 provides that in taking any regulatory action against a holder of an FSSA authorisation because of the conviction of any person of a criminal offence, the Agency may accept the person's conviction as final. This is a common provision in many licensing schemes.

There is an extended meaning in the Bill of "convicted" for the purposes of regulatory actions only. Clause 297(3) provides that a person is taken to have been convicted of an alleged offence if —

- (a) the person has not been found guilty of the offence but asks for the offence to be taken into account when being sentenced for another offence; or
- (b) the person has been found guilty of the offence but is discharged without conviction.

Clause 298 establishes a debarment scheme to deal with former holders of certain FSSA authorisations following regulatory action against them. The FSSA authorisations are import or export licences, food business licences or animal feed production licences, only.

Where such an FSSA authorisation has been wholly revoked under the Bill following regulatory action against the holder thereof under clause 83, 96 or 196, the person who was the former holder of that invalidated authorisation will be disqualified, for such period as may be specified by the Agency, from holding the same authorisation. The period of disqualification is up to 3 years.

In addition, the person who was the former holder of that authorisation may also be disqualified, for up to 3 years, from holding such other FSSA authorisations as the Agency may specify. The Agency is only allowed to specify authorisations that are associated with the invalidated authorisation. The Minister will make rules in the Gazette that group different authorisations together where the nature of the licensable activities covered by the respective authorisations are similar.

Where the invalidated authorisation was a food business licence for a type of licensable food business, the former licensee may also be disqualified, for up to 3 years, from being an executive staffer of the same type of licensable food business at any premises.

There is a right of appeal to the Minister for a former holder of an FSSA authorisation who is aggrieved by any debarment decision of the Agency under this clause.

Clause 299 deals with financial penalties which the Agency may impose following regulatory action. All financial penalties must be paid into the Consolidated Fund.

Clause 300 makes it an offence if a holder of an FSSA authorisation refuses or fails to show the holder's FSSA authorisation without delay when requested to do so by any police officer, or a food security officer, an authorised officer, a food inspector, a Part 9 enforcement officer or an outsourced enforcement officer who is duly authorised to do so.

As FSSA authorisations may be issued in digital form, there are special provisions that deal with the production of digital FSSA authorisations, similar to what has been enacted in 2020 in amendments to the Active Mobility Act 2017 for digital competency test certificates in respect of test-needed-to-drive vehicles, and in 2021 in amendments to the Road Traffic Act 1976 for digital competency test certificates in respect of test-needed-to-ride-on-road vehicles.

Clause 300 deals with how these are to be treated as produced, namely, by producing a mobile communication device or other electronic device on which the digital FSSA authorisation is displayed, to the police officer, authorised officer, food inspector, Part 9 enforcement officer or outsourced enforcement officer concerned.

Clause 301 requires the surrender or return of an FSSA authorisation where an FSSA authorisation is revoked or cancelled or expires and is not renewed. There are special provisions to deal with an FSSA authorisation granted in digital form, namely, to remove the digital FSSA authorisation from each mobile communication device or other electronic device on which the digital FSSA authorisation is capable of being displayed.

Division 5 of Part 14 consists of 7 clauses.

Clause 302 provides that if any provision in the Bill requires an authorised officer or a food inspector to reasonably believe something before exercising a power, it is sufficient if the Director-General, Food Administration or a more highly ranked authorised officer or food inspector reasonably believes it and directs the authorised officer or food inspector (as the case may be) to exercise the power. A similar provision is provided for food security officers.

Clause 303 is a re-enactment of sections 15 and 16 of the Control of Plants Act 1993 and is to enable Singapore to comply with its international obligations in regard to the Agreement on Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS). The provision provides for the protection by the Agency of certain confidential information received by the Agency in relation to an application for registration of a plant pesticide product that utilises a new ingredient.

Clause 304 deals with the service of documents permitted or required by the Bill to be given to a person. It is a standard provision in many Acts. Clause 304 does not deal with service of court documents like summonses, as these are regulated by the Rules of Court or other written laws.

Clause 305 is another standard provision in many Acts. It protects from personal liability any food security officer, authorised officer, food inspector, Part 9 enforcement officer or any member, officer or employee of the Agency, or any other person acting under the direction of the Agency, for anything done or omitted to be done in the execution or purported execution of any provision of the Bill, provided that it is done or omitted in good faith and with reasonable care.

Clause 306 confers on a District Court or a Magistrate's Court jurisdiction to try any offence under the Bill and to punish accordingly despite any limits set under other written law like the Criminal Procedure Code 2010.

PART 15

REGULATIONS AND CODES

Part 15 sets out powers to make subsidiary legislation.

Clause 307 contains the general power of the Agency to make regulations. The power to make regulations is subject to the approval of the Minister, and the Agency may prescribe anything that is required or permitted to be prescribed, or is otherwise necessary or convenient for carrying out or giving effect to, under any provision of the Bill. The power to make regulations does not extend to giving effect to provisions in Part 2, 9 or 12 since these are specially provided for in the respective Parts.

Clause 308 contains the power for the Agency to prescribe fees and charges.

Clause 309 provides for regulations which set out standards regarding food and agri-food production inputs, and labelling requirements.

Clause 310 provides for regulation making to establish one or more food safety schemes for the purposes of Part 4. A food safety scheme has to apply to an identified licensable food business and state the aspects of the licensable food business to which the scheme applies.

Clause 311 provides power to make other regulations, such as controls over content of advertising about food or regulated food contact articles.

Clause 312 deals with Part 6 Regulations. It empowers the Agency, with the approval of the Minister, to make regulations (called Part 6 Regulations) prescribing anything that is required or permitted to be prescribed under Part 6 or is otherwise necessary or convenient for carrying out or giving effect to Part 6.

Clause 313 deals with animal feed regulations. It empowers the Agency, with the approval of the Minister, to make regulations (called animal feed regulations) prescribing anything that is required or permitted to be prescribed by Division 2 of Part 11 or is otherwise necessary or convenient for carrying out or giving effect to Division 2 of Part 11.

Clause 314 deals with pesticide control regulations. It empowers the Agency, with the approval of the Minister, to make regulations (called pesticide control regulations) which are required or permitted to be prescribed by Division 3 of Part 11 or are necessary or convenient to be prescribed for carrying out or giving effect to Division 3 of Part 11.

Clause 315 allows the Agency, when making regulations under the Bill, to refer to external documents made either by itself or by other agencies and incorporating the contents thereof as if the contents formed part of those regulations. Modern food safety standards, procedures and practices are developed nowadays by expert technical bodies and other authorities, and may change quickly and frequently in response to important safety-related factors. In order to ensure that the regulations under the Bill reflect the most current safety standards, procedures and practices, clause 315 seeks to facilitate the process by which these materials can be lawfully and effectively incorporated, adopted or applied in a timely way.

Clause 316 requires all subsidiary legislation made under the Bill to be presented to Parliament as soon as possible after their publication in the Gazette. The provision applies to Part 2 Rules, Part 9 Regulations, the inspection scheme regulations made under Part 3 and the various regulations made under provisions in Part 15.

Clause 317 empowers the Agency to issue one or more codes of practice applicable to licensees generally or particular types of licensees or to approve as a code of practice applicable to licensees or particular types of licensees any document prepared by a person other than the Agency if the Agency considers the document as suitable for this purpose.

The subject matter that a code of practice may deal with are —

- (a) the management and operations of a food business or a type of food premises or generally;
- (b) the benchmarks of good practice in the operations of food businesses generally or of a particular type of food business or at particular food premises; and
- (c) the duties and obligations of any food business licensee in relation to the operation of the food business.

Every food business licensee must comply with the relevant codes of practice applicable to the licensee. There can be regulatory action following from a failure to comply with a binding code of practice.

However, a code of practice issued or approved under this clause does not have legislative effect.

Instead, clause 318 provides that a code of practice is admissible in evidence in any proceedings under the Bill where a person is alleged to have committed an offence under the Bill and the matter to which the alleged contravention or failure relates is also one to which, in the opinion of the court in the criminal proceedings, a code of practice relates. It provides that the observance or failure to observe any provision in such codes of practice may serve as a basis for determining whether criminal liability has arisen or whether administrative action should be taken by the Agency under the Bill.

MISCELLANEOUS

Clause 319 is a standard provision in modern Acts. It expressly states that the Bill binds the Government, with the usual exception that the Government is not liable to prosecution. While the Government cannot be liable to be prosecuted for an offence, there is no immunity from prosecution for a person employed or contractor engaged by the Government.

However, there may be a need to partially disapply or modify the application of the Bill to any regulated activity undertaken by any part of the Government —

- (a) in the interest of ensuring the efficiency or effectiveness of policies, programme management or service planning and delivery by that part of the Government; or
- (b) in the public interest of Singapore.

In these situations, the Bill will apply in relation to every regulated activity undertaken by the Government, with the modifications, and subject to the restrictions, specified in rules made by the Minister.

Clause 320 confers a legislative power on the Minister to disapply all or any provisions of the Bill (except those in Part 9 or any Part 9 Regulations, any provision in Part 10 involving any Part 9 Regulations and Part 12) to any class of persons, food businesses, premises, food or activities. The Minister is to do this by an exemption order in the Gazette.

Clause 321 confers on the Director-General, Food Administration an administrative power to exempt except in relation to Parts 2 and 9 or the Part 9 Regulations, or any provision in Part 10 involving any Part 9 Regulations. This is an extension of existing section 55 of the Sale of Food Act 1973.

As is the case under section 55 of the Sale of Food Act 1973, the administrative power of exemption in clause 321 is narrower than the Minister's legislative power of exemption.

The administrative exemption may be granted only where the Director-General, Food Administration is personally satisfied that the criteria in clause 321(2) are satisfied in the particular case. The power of exemption under clause 321 can only be for a period specified, a particular person, food business, premises, food or activity, and from the operation of any (not all) of the provisions of the Bill.

For traceability obligations in clause 87, 88, 89, 99, 100 or 101, a licensed importer or a proprietor of a licensed food business may be exempt from all or any of those obligations only where the Director-General, Food Administration is personally satisfied that the criteria in clause 321(3) and (4) are satisfied in the particular case.

The exemption by the Director-General, Food Administration must be in writing, time-limited and given to the particular person concerned. The exemption under clause 321 need not be published in the Gazette as it is an administrative act.

PART 17

AMENDMENTS TO OTHER ACTS AND FINAL PROVISIONS

Part 17 contains amendments to other Acts which are consequential on or related to amendments in other Parts of the Bill.

Division 1 of Part 17 contains amendments to the Animals and Birds Act 1965.

The amendments are mostly directed at demarcating the regulatory coverage under the Animals and Birds Act 1965 and that under the Bill, to avoid duplicative regulatory requirements for and enforcement against importing and primary production activities which involve live food producing animals.

The import of live animals remains subject to regulation under the Animals and Birds Act 1965. Importers of live food producing animals will continue to apply for a single licence under the Animals and Birds Act 1965 and do not need an additional licence and permit under the Bill. However, the regulation of the import of eggs for the purpose of sale or handling as food for human consumption will cease to be regulated under the Animals and Birds Act 1965 but will be regulated as food under Part 3.

The power to make subsidiary legislation under section 59 of the Animals and Birds Act 1965 for the purpose of regulating and controlling the keeping, breeding or feeding of animals and birds is delimited by the amendments, and will cease to extend to prohibiting or regulating the keeping, breeding or feeding of any animal or bird for human consumption.

Likewise, the subsidiary legislation making power under section 80(2)(k) of the Animals and Birds Act 1965 is limited to regulating methods of production except animal or bird production for human consumption.

A new section 8A is introduced to the Animals and Birds Act 1965, which is connected to clause 70 under which the Agency is empowered to give a directive banning the import of any live food producing animal of a particular kind from a particular country or place outside Singapore for a period.

That period cannot exceed 90 days in the first instance but may be renewed once by the Agency for a further period not exceeding 30 days (called the freeze period).

The new section 8A is introduced prohibiting the Director-General, Animal Health and Welfare from granting, during the freeze period, under section 8 of the Animals and Birds Act 1965 any licence that is for the import of any living animal or bird if the licence authorises an import that would be inconsistent with the Agency's directive under clause 70. The new section 8A also empowers the Director-General, Animal Health and Welfare, during that freeze period, to revoke or suspend any licence granted under section 8 of the Animals and Birds Act 1965 for the import during the freeze period of any living animal or bird inconsistent with the directive.

Before revoking or suspending any licence granted, the Director-General, Animal Health and Welfare must give notice to the licensee concerned of the intention to revoke or suspend the licence and give the affected licensee an opportunity to make representations. The Director-General, Animal Health and Welfare may reject the representations or may suspend the licence instead of revoking it.

There is no right of appeal against the decision of the Director-General, Animal Health and Welfare under this new section 8A, unlike decisions under section 62 of the Animals and Birds Act 1965.

The last related amendment is to section 41 of the Animals and Birds Act 1965, concerning animal welfare. The present definition of an "animal-related business" excludes "any business in respect of animals intended for consumption". The amendment removes this exclusion.

With this amendment, a food business proprietor will no longer be liable to lower penalties for breaching animal welfare requirements as an animal owner but will be put in the same position as all other animal-related businesses.

Division 2 of Part 17 contains a consequential amendment to the Third Schedule to the Central Provident Fund Act 1953. Clause 328 replaces the reference to the Sale of Food Act 1973 with the Food Safety and Security Act 2024.

Division 3 of Part 17 contains a consequential amendment to the Schedule to the Consumer Protection (Trade Descriptions and Safety Requirements) Act 1975, which carves out certain subject matter from the application of that Act. Clause 329 carves out the Food Safety and Security Act 2024. Any trade description relating to food, regulated food contact articles, animal feed and plant pesticide products is not covered by the Consumer Protection (Trade Descriptions and Safety Requirements) Act 1975.

Division 4 of Part 17 contains consequential and related amendments to the Control of Plants Act 1993.

The amendments reflect the proposed division of responsibility between the Agency and the National Parks Board, over regulating cultivation of plants in Singapore, which can be edible as well as purely ornamental and therefore have different risk profiles. The National Parks Board will continue with responsibility for the administration of the Control of Plants Act 1993 after the Bill is enacted, but without need for the Agency's officers administering some provisions of that Act under delegated authority because those plants are food.

As a result, the focus of the Control of Plants Act 1993 as amended by the Bill is sharpened to what is required in the interest of better regulation. The scope of the Control of Plants Act 1993 is restricted by the amendments in the Bill as follows:

- (a) only the cultivation of plants not as food or not to produce food will be licensed under the Control of Plants Act 1993; see the amendments to the long title and section 9 of the Control of Plants Act 1993 in clauses 330 and 334. Farming of edible plants will be regulated under Part 4 as a food business;
- (b) the registration of and other controls over the use of plant pesticide products and the vocational control of individuals who apply plant pesticides on non-edible plants, are abolished; see the deletion of sections 11 to 16 in clause 335;
- (c) the regulation of the export of plants is made clear that this is for phytosanitary reasons; see the amendment to section 28 in clause 336.

The regulation of importing, exporting and transshipping of fresh fruits and vegetables will cease under the Control of Plants Act 1993, as that is replaced by Part 3 administered by the Agency. See clause 330.

The Control of Plants Act 1993 retains its objects of protecting plants and plant products in Singapore against pests and diseases and of controlling of the introduction of pests into Singapore. As insects (even edible insects) can be pests, power is given to the Minister for National Development to make rules to support the Agency's directive under clause 70 banning the import of any live food producing animal of a particular kind from a particular country or place outside Singapore for a period. It is envisaged that rules similar to the new section 8A of the Animals and Birds Act 1965 will be made.

Division 5 of Part 17 contains 17 amendments to the Environmental Public Health Act 1987.

Clause 341 amends section 2 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 by removing definitions made redundant by the deletion of significant parts of Part 4 (on retail food establishments) and the deletion of the whole of Part 9 (relating to non-packaged drinking water) of that Act.

Clause 342 replaces the heading of Part 4 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 since it will have a reduced scope, dealing with temporary fairs and non-food hawking only after the amendments in clauses 344, 345, 346, 347 and 348 have taken effect.

Clause 343 replaces section 31W of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 so that the Agency is charged with the administration of Part 4 of that Act.

Clause 344 deletes section 32 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 on the licensing of retail food establishments. The latter are licensable food businesses and are to be regulated under Part 4 of the Bill.

Clause 345 replaces section 33 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 so that the licensing of hawkers is confined to those who hawk, sell or expose for sale any goods of any kind but not any food. Those who hawk, sell or expose for sale any food are licensable food businesses regulated under Part 4 of the Bill.

Clause 346 deletes section 34 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 on itinerant hawkers.

Clause 347 replaces section 35 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987, and inserts new sections 35A and 35B, in connection with licensing the promoting, organising or staging of any temporary fair.

Under the new section 35, a person cannot promote, organise or stage any temporary fair on any premises without a permit from the Agency. The trade fair may or may not have food stalls.

The new section 35A provides for a debarment scheme for a person who was the holder of a trade fair permit. Like clause 298, the former permit holder is disqualified from holding another trade fair permit, for a period (not exceeding 3 years) that the Agency specifies. The former permit holder may appeal to the Minister against the period of disqualification specified by the Agency.

The Minister may determine the appeal either by dismissing the appeal and confirming the decision of the Agency appealed against, or shortening the period of disqualification.

The new section 35B is directed at associates of disqualified persons. It operates in addition to section 99 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 which contains the general provisions on the granting of licences and permits under that Act. The new section 35B provides that the Agency, in deciding whether an applicant should be granted a trade fair permit or to impose conditions on a trade fair permit or whether to modify any condition of such a permit, the Agency must have regard to whether the applicant for or a holder of such a permit, or an associate of an applicant for or a holder of such a permit, is or was disqualified by the new section 35A from holding the trade fair permit.

The new section 35B(3) defines an associate in the same manner as clause 17.

Sections 36, 37, 38, 39, 40 and 41 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 are deleted by clause 348.

Consequential amendments to sections 41A, 42 and 42A of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 are made by clauses 349, 350 and 351, respectively, because of the reduced scope of Part 4 of that Act.

Clause 352 deletes Part 9 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 relating to non-packaged drinking water.

Clauses 355, 358 and 359 make amendments to sections 91, 110 and 111, respectively, of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 as a consequence of the deletion of Part 9 of that Act.

Clauses 353, 354, 356 and 357 make amendments to sections 82, 84A, 99 and 108A, respectively, of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 as a consequence of vesting in the Agency the function of administering Part 4 of that Act.

Clause 360 deletes the First Schedule to the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 as a consequence of the deletion of section 32 of that Act.

Division 6 of Part 17 contains related amendments to the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965. The amendments are organised according to the stages envisaged for bringing the different Parts of the Bill into force.

Most amendments have the primary effect of limiting the scope of the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965. The scope is limited in 2 stages. One stage will confine the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965 to regulating import of feeding stuff for food producing animals, and the manufacture or processing for sale, of feeding stuff for non-food producing animals. Sale per se will cease to be regulated. The final stage will confine the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965 to feeding stuff which are not for consumption by food producing animals, such as pet food and food for wild animals exhibited in a zoo or an aquarium.

The Feeding Stuffs Act 1965 will in the final stage be renamed the “Feeding Stuffs (Pets and Non-food Producing Animals) Act 1965”.

Another amendment is to transfer in the final stage of the administration of the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965, once renamed, from the Director-General, Food Administration to the Agency and then to the National Parks Board.

The last stage will also involve amendments to sections 4 and 8 of the Feeding Stuffs Act 1965 to abolish regulation under that Act of the import and sale of feeding stuffs which are not for consumption by food producing animals.

Division 7 of Part 17 contains amendments to the Fisheries Act 1966.

Clause 372 amends section 2 to remove references in the Fisheries Act 1966 to fish culturists because these persons will be regulated as food businesses engaged in primary production activities viz. aquaculture. The definition of “fish pond” is also deleted as it is a definition relevant to aquaculture only.

Clause 373 amends section 23(1) of the Fisheries Act 1966 to remove the power to search, examine and investigate the operation of any fish ponds.

Clause 374 amends the rule-making power in section 27(2) of the Fisheries Act 1966 to delete rules to provide for the licensing, control, supervision and protection of the cultivation of fish or any particular species of fish and to regulate or prohibit any method of cultivation of fish.

Division 8 of Part 17 contains a consequential amendment in clause 375 to section 2 of the Good Samaritan Food Donation Act 2024, replacing the references in that Act to the Sale of Food Act 1973 with the Bill.

Division 9 of Part 17 contains a list of related amendments to section 2 of the Infectious Diseases Act 1976, by removing the Director-General, Food Administration from exercising powers under that Act. Clause 382 also deletes sections 38 and 39 of the Infectious Diseases Act 1976 because the fitness for consumption of food and water supplied to vessels will be covered by the Bill.

Division 10 of Part 17 contains an amendment to section 2 of the National Parks Board Act 1996.

The amendment in clause 390 replaces the definition of “animal-related services”, the promotion of which is among the functions of the National Parks Board. The new definition expressly excludes services like bathing, grooming, boarding, training treatment, vaccination or inoculation of animals, trapping or restraining of animals, or exhibiting (whether or not for sale) of animals, where those services involve a food producing animal within the meaning of the Bill.

The amendment is to clearly demarcate the statutory responsibilities of the National Parks Board and the Agency and avoid duplicative regulatory requirements for and enforcement against activities which involve live animals.

Division 11 of Part 17 contains amendments to the Sale of Food Act 1973. The amendments in clauses 391 to 394 are grouped according to the staging that is planned to bring the different provisions in the Bill into force. Clause 395 repeals the Sale of Food Act 1973 after all those amendments have taken effect.

Division 12 of Part 17 contains amendments to the Singapore Food Agency Act 2019.

Under clause 396, the definitions in section 2 of the Singapore Food Agency Act 2019 are amended to ensure consistency in expressions between that Act and the Bill, which is to be administered by the Agency.

Under clause 397, section 5 of the Singapore Food Agency Act 2019, which sets out the functions of the Agency, is amended for 2 main reasons. The first is the change in the Agency's function from supporting the Director-General, Food Administration in whom all statutory powers for food safety regulation are presently vested, to being the principal responsible to regulate the primary production activities and the production of animal feed to ensure the safety and resilience of food supply.

Consistent with Part 2, the Agency has the new function to support the Director-General, Food Security in the administration of Part 2 and the minimum stockholding requirement for the holding in Singapore of a minimum quantity of stocks of certain foods and agri-food production inputs in Singapore.

The Agency is also conferred the function of, acting as an agent of the Government, in the procurement, holding, distribution and disposal of stockpiles of certain foods and agri-food production inputs in Singapore, and to act as agent of the Government in the collection and recovery of any MSR charge payable under Part 2.

Clause 398 amends section 6 of the Singapore Food Agency Act 2019, as a consequence of the new function of acting as an agent of the Government in order for the Government to maintain a minimum quantity of stocks of certain foods and agri-food production inputs in Singapore or to otherwise ensure food security in Singapore. The powers are expanded to allow for entering into contracts by and on behalf of the Government in this case.

Division 13 of Part 17 contains a consequential amendment to the Weights and Measures Act 1975.

Clause 399 makes an amendment to section 2(1) of the Weights and Measures Act 1975 by updating the cross-reference from the Sale of Food Act 1973 to the Bill.

Division 14 of Part 17 contains amendments to the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999. The amendments in clauses 400 and 401 are grouped according to the staging that is planned to bring the different provisions in the Bill into force. Clause 403 repeals the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999 after all those amendments have taken effect.

Clause 402 validates various amounts purportedly collected as fees by the Agency or Director-General, Food Administration on certain licences and permits under the Wholesome Meat and Fish Act 1999 and the Sale of Food Act 1973.

Division 15 of Part 17 contains an amendment in clause 404 to the Wildlife Act 1965, which is connected to clause 70 under which the Agency is empowered to give a directive banning the import of any live food producing animal of a particular kind from a particular country or place outside Singapore for a period.

That period cannot exceed 90 days in the first instance but may be renewed once by the Agency for a further period not exceeding 30 days (called the freeze period).

Some live insects or invertebrates imported for food production would be wildlife covered by the import controls in the Wildlife Act 1965.

A new section 9A is introduced by clause 404, prohibiting the Director-General, Wildlife Management from granting, during the freeze period, under section 9 of the Wildlife Act 1965 any written approval that is for the import of any living wildlife if the written approval authorises an import that would be inconsistent with the Agency's directive under clause 70. The new section 9A also empowers the Director-General, Wildlife Management, during that freeze period, to cancel or suspend any written approval granted under section 9 of the Wildlife Act 1965 for the import during the freeze period of any living wildlife inconsistent with the directive.

Before cancelling or suspending any written approval granted, the Director-General, Wildlife Management must give notice to the holder of the written approval concerned of the intention to cancel or suspend the written approval and give the affected holder an opportunity to make representations. The Director-General, Wildlife Management may reject the representations or may suspend the written approval instead of cancelling it.

There is no right of appeal against the decision of the Director-General, Wildlife Management.

Clause 405 and the Second Schedule set out saving and transitional provisions necessary to ensure the migration of existing licences and permits to the new regimes under the Bill, and to provide time for existing businesses to adapt to the new requirements in the Bill.

Clause 405 also empowers the Minister charged with the responsibility for the Bill to amend the Second Schedule by prescribing additional provisions of a saving or transitional nature consequent on the enactment of any provision in the Bill.

The Minister has power to make such regulations only within 2 years after the operative date of the provision concerned.

EXPENDITURE OF PUBLIC MONEY

This Bill will involve the Government in extra financial expenditure, the exact amount of which cannot at present be ascertained.
