

Goh Hanyan 吴函燕

- A working mother with a dedication to service rooted in her upbringing. Inspired by her father who is an active life-long grassroots volunteer and her mother who was a teacher and caregiver, she followed in her parents' footsteps, committing to a career in the public service after graduation.
- Spent over a decade at the Economic Development Board (EDB), where she worked in the Energy and Chemicals and Consumer sectors. She was also posted overseas in the United States, where she represented EDB to engage American businesses to expand their presence in Singapore.
- Following her tenure at the EDB, she worked in the Prime Minister's Office Strategy Group within the Socio-Economic Policy and Economy and Sustainability directorates. She was engaged in whole-of-government policy development, including strengthening protections of gig economy workers.
- She was most recently the Director at the Smart Nation Strategy Office in the Ministry of Digital Development and Information (MDDI), where she refreshed Singapore's Smart Nation vision to create a thriving digital future for all. She was concurrently the Director at the National Artificial Intelligence Group in the MDDI, where she was responsible for implementing Singapore's National Artificial Intelligence Strategy 2.0.
- She is committed to ensuring that national policies translate into meaningful impact in everyday lives. She is also passionate about fostering a society where families flourish, seniors age with dignity, and every child has a chance to succeed.
- She is a proud mother of three young children.
