Amendment of Eighth Schedule

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

This Bill seeks to amend the Goods and Services Tax Act (Cap. 117A).

Clause 1 relates to the short title and commencement.

Clause 2 amends section 2(1) to insert new definitions of “accountant” and “advocate and solicitor”.

Clause 3 inserts a new section 2A to provide for what is a digital payment token for the purposes of the Act.

Clause 4(a), (c) and (d) makes technical amendments to section 14(1).

Clause 4(b) deletes and substitutes sub-paragraph (i) of section 14(1)(a) to provide that reverse charge supplies arise in relation to all recipients belonging in Singapore who are registered or liable to be registered under paragraph 1 or 1B of the First Schedule, except where the supply is to the recipient as an individual in the individual’s private or personal capacity.

Clause 4(e) inserts a new subsection (1A) in section 14 to clarify that the reference in section 14(1)(b) to input tax for which a recipient is not entitled to any credit under section 19, does not include input tax that is excluded from any credit under section 19.

Clause 4(f) makes a consequential amendment to section 14(2) in light of the new section 14(1)(a)(i), and further clarifies that the fiction created by section 14(2) applies only in relation to the reverse charge supply.

Clause 4(g) deletes and substitutes subsections (5) and (6) of section 14 to clarify that a supply of services is treated as a supply of services under section 14(2), where the recipient makes the relevant election to treat himself or herself as a recipient under section 14(1)(a) or to disregard the exclusions in the Eighth Schedule.

Clause 5 amends section 15(7) to clarify that the matters provided for in the regulations are intended only for use by the person supplying Seventh Schedule supplies in determining whether the customer of the person belongs in Singapore.

Clause 6 makes various amendments to section 17 to clarify the intent that the value of a reverse charge supply is the consideration for the supply in fact made that gives rise to the reverse charge supply, with the special cases for determining this value in the new section 17(3AA) and amended section 17(3B).

Clause 7 deletes and substitutes paragraph (b) of section 28A(1) to allow group registration for registered (Seventh Schedule — pay-only) persons.

Clause 8 amends section 30(4)(d) to empower the Comptroller of Goods and Services Tax (the Comptroller) to impose, for purposes of group registration, a condition prohibiting any claim for credit for any input tax of the representative member of the group (including any amount treated as such under section 30).

Clause 9 makes various amendments to section 33 in relation to the appointment of agents by persons who do not have their usual place of residence in Singapore. The new subsection (1) inserted by clause 9(a) clarifies that an overseas registrant must appoint a section 33(1) agent, unless the overseas registrant is a registered (Seventh Schedule — pay-only) person. In the latter case, the appointment of such agent is optional. The new subsections (1A) to (1D) provide for the consequences of the appointment, and the powers of the Comptroller, in connection with the appointment.

Clause 10 amends section 44(1) and (1A) to extend the existing requirements relating to the issuance of receipts to consideration received in digital payment tokens.

Clause 11 makes various amendments to section 56 to remove the requirement for appeals before the Supreme Court to be heard in camera, and to align the section with section 83 of the Income Tax Act (Cap. 134).

Clause 12 inserts new sections 62A and 62B to provide for new offences on the part of a customer of a Seventh Schedule supply who belongs in Singapore under section 15 and is not a registered person.

The new section 62A provides for a strict liability offence where false information is given concerning whether the person belongs in Singapore under section 15, or whether the person is a registered person.

For the offence under the new section 62B, the person (X) must have wilfully provided information for the purposes of the supply with the intent of inducing the person making the supply into determining (in accordance with any regulations made under section 15(7) for the purposes of the person making the supply) that X does not belong in Singapore or is a registered person. For this offence, if X uses a device to make the purchase and there is a mobile country code, an IP address or other information used in connection with the device that identifies the physical location of the device for the purposes of the purchase, then X is taken to have provided information as to that physical location of the device for the purposes of the supply.

Under the new section 62B, the information provided by X need not be false. For example, X commits an offence if X purchases an online service using a computer whilst in a foreign country and pays for the purchase with a credit card issued to X in that foreign country, if X does so wilfully with intent to induce the supplier into making a determination that X belongs in the foreign country and not in Singapore.

Clause 13 makes a technical amendment to section 64A(2).

Clause 14 amends section 84 to extend the power of the Comptroller to require information to be provided to the Comptroller, to transactions that are not made in the course of or in furtherance of a person's business.

Clause 15 repeals and re-enacts sections 92 and 93. The new sections 92 and 93 follow the intent of the existing sections 92 and 93 to provide for transitional matters relating to the charging of tax on overseas services, but allow for the fact that services have been performed under the relevant supplies to be factored in in determining the amount of tax chargeable on the supplies. The new sections 92 and 93 only deal with the extent to which supplies to which the sections apply are chargeable to tax, and when the tax must be accounted for. The values of such supplies remain relevant for determining whether a person is liable to be registered in accordance with the First Schedule.

Clause 16(a) and (e) amends various provisions in the First Schedule to remove the need to take into account the value of exempt supplies in determining whether the threshold of $100,000 in value of Seventh Schedule supplies is exceeded.

Clause 16(b) makes consequential amendments to paragraph 1B(1)(a) and (b) and (2)(a) and (b) of the First Schedule in light of the amendment to section 14(1)(b) and the new section 14(1A).

Clause 16(c) and (d) amends paragraph 8(1)(a)(ii) of the First Schedule to apply the same treatment to supplies of digital payment tokens that are supplies of international services under section 21(3), as is applied to exempt supplies that may be zero-rated.

Clause 16(f) makes a consequential amendment to paragraph 18(1) of the First Schedule in light of the new section 14(1)(a)(i).

Clause 17(a) amends paragraph 1(1)(c) of the Third Schedule to clarify that the provision does not apply if the tax on the supply to the person is excluded from the credit for input tax by regulations made under section 19.

Clause 17(b) inserts a new sub-paragraph (1A) in paragraph 1 of the Third Schedule to extend the power of the Comptroller in directing the value of a supply to be taken to be its open market value, to supplies giving rise to reverse charge supplies.

Clause 17(c) amends paragraph 11(1) and (1A) of the Third Schedule to extend the existing foreign exchange reporting requirements to any sum relevant for determining value, that is expressed in digital payment tokens.

Clause 17(d) inserts a new paragraph 15 in the Third Schedule to provide for the value of a supply in fact made by an overseas supplier (that gives rise to a reverse charge supply), where the supply in fact made was previously made by a taxable person in Singapore to the overseas supplier, and the previous supply is not treated as a supply of international services under section 21(3).

Clause 18 inserts a new paragraph 1B in Part I of the Fourth Schedule to exempt from tax the exchange of digital payment tokens for currency or other digital payment tokens, and the provision of loans, advances and credits of digital payment tokens.

Clause 19(a) amends paragraph 2(1)(b)(i) of the Seventh Schedule to limit telecommunication services referred to in that provision to those the supply of which would be treated as a supply of international services under section 21(3)(q) if the supply had been made in Singapore.

Clause 19(b) and (c) amends the Seventh Schedule to allow an operator of a local electronic marketplace to account for and pay tax on supplies of digital services made through the marketplace to registered persons. Unlike the election under paragraph 5 of the Seventh Schedule, approval of the Comptroller is required.

Clause 20 deletes paragraph 2 of the Eighth Schedule so that section 14 applies to services in fact supplied by an overseas supplier to a recipient, which had been previously supplied to the overseas supplier by a supplier in Singapore. Where the previous supply was a taxable supply not treated as a supply of international services under section 21(3), the new paragraph 15 of the Third Schedule (inserted by clause 17(d)), provides for a concession on the value of the reverse charge supply.
