25 “consignee”, in relation to any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract, means the person entitled under the multimodal transport contract to receive the goods from the multimodal transport operator of the contract;

“consignor”, in relation to any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract, means the person who concluded the contract with another person under which the other person is to be the multimodal transport operator;

30 “deliver”, in relation to any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract, means —

(a) the handing over of the goods to the consignee of the goods;

- (b) the placing of the goods at the disposal of the consignee of the goods in accordance with the multimodal transport contract or with the law or usage of the particular trade applicable at the place specified in the multimodal transport contract for the delivery of the goods; or 5
- (c) the handing over of the goods to an authority or any other party to whom, in accordance with the laws applicable at the place specified in the multimodal transport contract for the delivery of the goods, the goods must be handed over; 10

“goods” means any property (including any container, pallet or similar article of transport or packaging not supplied by a multimodal transport operator), whether such property is or is to be carried on or under the deck of a conveyance; 15

“international multimodal transport” means the carriage of goods on the basis of a multimodal transport contract by at least 2 different modes of transport —

- (a) from a place in a country at which the goods are taken in charge by the multimodal transport operator of the contract; 20
- (b) to a place designated for the delivery of the goods situated in a different country;

“mandatory law” means any law of Singapore, or any international convention forming part of the law of Singapore, relating to the carriage of goods, the provisions of which cannot be departed from by contractual stipulations detrimental to the consignor or consignee; 25

“mode of transport” means transport by road, rail, inland waterways, sea or air; 30

(3) In this Act, where a container, pallet or similar article of transport is loaded with more than one package or shipping unit, each of the packages or shipping units enumerated in a multimodal transport document as packed in such article of transport is considered a separate package or shipping unit; otherwise such article of transport is considered the package or shipping unit.

Application of Parts 3 to 6

3.—(1) Parts 3 to 6 apply in relation to any civil claim relating to the carriage of goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract but only if either or both of the following are satisfied:

and the Minister's decision is final.

5 (7) A decision of the Singapore competent national body to cancel a registration certificate takes effect despite an appeal against that decision being made to the Minister under subsection (6), unless the Minister otherwise specifies.

Minister may designate others to hear appeals

PART 3

MULTIMODAL TRANSPORT DOCUMENT

Issue of multimodal transport document

9.—(1) When goods are taken in charge in Singapore by a multimodal transport operator pursuant to a multimodal transport contract, the multimodal transport operator must issue to the consignor of the goods a multimodal transport document. 5

(2) The multimodal transport document must, at the option of the consignor of the goods, either be in negotiable or non-negotiable form. 10

(3) The multimodal transport document must be signed by the multimodal transport operator or by a person authorised by the multimodal transport operator.

(4) A multimodal transport document issued to bearer is negotiable by delivery. 15

(5) A multimodal transport document issued to order is negotiable by the endorsement of the holder completed by delivery.

(6) A consignee of goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract as evidenced by a multimodal transport document has and is vested with all rights of action and is subject to all liabilities in respect of those goods as if the consignee were a party to the contract. 20

(7) The rights and liabilities are vested in the consignee under subsection (6) subject to —

(a) the provisions of this Act; and 25

(b) the stipulations in the multimodal transport document, except that the duties and liabilities of the consignor in Part 5 do not apply to the consignee.

Contents of multimodal transport document

10.—(1) A multimodal transport document must contain such particulars as may be prescribed. 30

(2) A document is a multimodal transport document despite the absence of any of the prescribed particulars if there is evidence to establish that it is a multimodal transport document within the definition of that term in section 2(1).

5 Multimodal transport document as prima facie evidence

11.—(1) A multimodal transport document issued by a multimodal transport operator is prima facie evidence that the multimodal transport operator has taken in charge the goods as described in that document, unless a contrary indication, such as “shipper’s weight, load and count”, “shipper-packed container” or a similar expression, has been made in the printed text of or superimposed on the document.

(2) Proof to the contrary is not admissible when the multimodal transport document has been transferred, or transmitted by electronic data interchange to the consignor of the goods who —

(a) has acknowledged the receipt of the document; and

(b) has in good faith relied on and acted upon the document.

(3) In this section, “electronic data interchange” means an electronic transmission of data from one computer to another computer, using an internationally recognised standard for secure electronic transfer of data that is agreed on by the multimodal transport operator, the consignor of the goods, and any other party involved in the international multimodal transport of the goods.

PART 4

25 LIABILITIES OF MULTIMODAL TRANSPORT OPERATOR

Period of responsibility of multimodal transport operator

12. For the purposes of this Part, the period of responsibility of a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract starts at the time the multimodal transport operator takes in charge the goods that are the subject of the contract and ends at the time that the goods are delivered.

Multimodal transport operator liable for acts of servants or agents

13.—(1) A multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract is liable for any act or omission described in subsection (2), of —

- (a) any servant or agent of the multimodal transport operator, when acting within the scope of the servant's or agent's employment relating to the carriage of the goods that are the subject of the contract; and
- (b) any other person whose services the multimodal transport operator makes use of for the performance of the contract.

(2) The act or omission is one that —

- (a) takes place during the period of responsibility of the multimodal transport operator; and
- (b) causes loss of, damage to, or delay in the delivery of, the goods.

Multimodal transport operator to ensure delivery of goods

14. A multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract for the international multimodal transport of any goods is taken to have given an undertaking to the following persons to perform, or to procure the performance of, all acts necessary to ensure the delivery of the goods:

- (a) where the multimodal transport document relating to the contract is issued in a negotiable form to bearer — to the person who surrenders to the multimodal transport operator one original of the document;
- (b) where the multimodal transport document relating to the contract is issued in a negotiable form to order — to the person who surrenders to the multimodal transport operator one original of the document duly endorsed;
- (c) where the multimodal transport document relating to the contract is issued in a negotiable form to a named person — to the person (upon proof of the person's identity) who surrenders to the multimodal transport operator one original of the document;

5 (d) where the multimodal transport document relating to the contract is issued in a negotiable form to a named person and has been transferred to order or in blank — to the person if that person surrenders to the multimodal transport operator one original of the document duly endorsed;

10 (e) where the multimodal transport document relating to the contract is issued in a non-negotiable form — to the person named as the consignee of the goods in the document upon proof of the person's identity;

15 (f) where no document is issued — to a person as instructed by the consignor of the goods or by a person who has acquired the consignor's or consignee's rights under the multimodal transport contract to give such instructions.

Multimodal transport operator liable for loss resulting from loss of or damage to goods, etc.

20 15.—(1) Subject to subsections (2), (3) and (4), a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract is liable for loss resulting from the loss of, damage to, or delay in the delivery of, any goods that are the subject of the contract if the occurrence which caused the loss, damage or delay took place during the period of responsibility of the multimodal transport operator.

25 (2) The multimodal transport operator is not liable under subsection (1) if the multimodal transport operator proves that —

30 (a) the multimodal transport operator, or the servant or agent or other person for whose act or omission the multimodal transport operator is liable under section 13, took all reasonable measures to avoid the occurrence and the loss, damage or delay; or

(b) the occurrence which caused such loss, damage or delay is the result of one or more of the following:

(i) force majeure;

- (ii) any act or neglect of the consignor or consignee, or the consignor's or consignee's representative or agent;
- (iii) insufficient or defective packaging, marking or numbering of the goods; 5
- (iv) the handling, loading, unloading or stowage of the goods that is effected by the consignor or consignee, or the consignor's or consignee's representative or agent;
- (v) any inherent or latent defect in the goods; 10
- (vi) any strike, lockout or stoppage or restraint of labour from whatever cause, whether partial or general;
- (vii) where the goods are carried by sea or inland waterways —
 - (A) any act, neglect or default of the master, mariner, pilot or the servant of the carrier of the goods in the navigation or in the management of the ship; or 15
 - (B) any fire unless caused by the actual fault or privity of the carrier of the goods. 20

(3) The multimodal transport operator is not liable under subsection (1) for loss resulting from delay in the delivery of the goods unless the consignor has made a declaration of interest in timely delivery which has been accepted by the multimodal transport operator. 25

(4) If any loss of or damage to the goods is the result of the unseaworthiness of the ship in which the goods are carried, the multimodal transport operator is not liable under subsection (1) if the multimodal transport operator proves that due diligence has been exercised to make the ship seaworthy at the commencement of the voyage. 30

(5) For the purpose of this Part, delay in delivery occurs when the goods have not been delivered within the time expressly agreed upon by the parties to the multimodal transport contract or, in the absence of such agreement, within the time which it would be reasonable for a diligent multimodal transport operator to deliver the goods, having regard to the circumstances of the case.

5 (6) If the goods have not been delivered within 90 consecutive days after the date determined in accordance with subsection (5), any person entitled to claim the goods may, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, treat the goods as lost.

Assessment of compensation

10 16.—(1) An assessment of compensation by a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract for the loss of or damage to the goods that are the subject of the contract, and for which the multimodal transport operator is liable under section 15, is to be made by reference to the value of such goods —

15 (a) at the place and time that the goods are delivered to the consignee of the goods; or

(b) at the place and time when, in accordance with the multimodal transport contract, the goods should have been so delivered.

(2) The value of the goods is to be determined according to —

20 (a) their current commodity exchange price;

(b) if there is no current commodity exchange price, their current market price; or

25 (c) if there is no current commodity exchange price or current market price, the normal value of goods of the same kind and quality based on other sale transactions relating to the goods.

Limit on liability of multimodal transport operator

30 17.—(1) Subject to subsection (2) and sections 18, 19, 21 and 22, a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract is not liable under section 15 for any loss of or damage to the goods that are the subject of the contract, in an amount exceeding the higher of the following:

- (a) the equivalent of 666.67 SDR per package or shipping unit of the goods lost or damaged;
- (b) 2.00 SDR per kilogram of gross weight of the goods lost or damaged.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply if the nature and value of the goods have been declared by the consignor of the goods before the goods are taken in charge by the multimodal transport operator, and inserted in the multimodal transport document.

Liability of multimodal transport operator if no carriage of goods by sea, etc.

10

18. If a multimodal transport contract does not provide for the carriage of goods by sea or inland waterways, the liability of the multimodal transport operator under section 15 for the loss of or damage to the goods is limited to an amount not exceeding 8.33 SDR per kilogram of gross weight of the goods lost or damaged.

Liability to be determined in accordance with other conventions or law

19. If the loss of or damage to the goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract occurred during a particular stage of the international multimodal transport of the goods, in respect of which a mandatory law would have provided another limit of liability if a separate contract of carriage had been made for that particular stage of transport, then the limit of the multimodal transport operator's liability under section 15 for such loss or damage is to be determined by reference to such mandatory law.

Liability of multimodal transport operator other than for loss of or damage to goods

20. Subject to sections 19, 21 and 22, the liability of a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract under section 15 for loss resulting from delay in the delivery of the goods that are the subject of the contract, or any consequential loss or damage (other than loss of or damage to the goods), is limited to an amount equivalent to the freight under the contract.

Aggregate liability of multimodal transport operator

21. The aggregate liability of a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract under this Part must not exceed the limits of liability for the total loss of the goods that are the subject of the contract calculated in accordance with sections 17 and 18.

Aggregate liability of multimodal transport operator and servant, agent, etc.

22. The aggregate liability of —

- (a) a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract; and
- (b) any servant or agent of the multimodal transport operator, or other person whose services the multimodal transport operator has used in order to perform the contract, must not exceed the limits in sections 17 to 21.

Multimodal transport operator and servant, agent, etc., not entitled to limitation of liability if loss, etc., resulted from personal act or omission

23.—(1) The multimodal transport operator is not entitled to the benefit of the limitation of liability under this Part for the loss of, damage to, or delay in the delivery of the goods if it is proved that the loss, damage or delay resulted from an act or omission of the multimodal transport operator that is done —

- (a) with the intention to cause such loss, damage or delay; or
- (b) recklessly and with knowledge that such loss, damage or delay would probably result.

(2) A servant or an agent of a multimodal transport operator or other person whose services a multimodal transport operator makes use of for the carriage of goods is not entitled to the benefit of the limitation of liability under this Part if it is proved that the loss, damage or delay resulted from an act or omission of such servant, agent or other person that is done —

- (a) with the intention to cause such loss, damage or delay; or

- (b) recklessly and with knowledge that such loss, damage or delay would probably result.

PART 5

DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF CONSIGNOR

Responsibilities of consignor

24.—(1) The consignor of any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract is deemed to have guaranteed to the multimodal transport operator of the contract that, at the time the goods were taken in charge by the multimodal transport operator, all of the following particulars specified in the multimodal transport document are accurate:

10

- (a) the general nature of the goods;
- (b) the marks, number, weight, volume and quantity of the goods;
- (c) if applicable, the dangerous character of the goods as furnished by the consignor or on the consignor's behalf for insertion in the multimodal transport document relating to the contract.

15

(2) The consignor of any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract must mark or label dangerous goods in accordance with any international conventions or laws applicable in the country in which the goods are taken in charge by the multimodal transport operator of the contract.

20

(3) Where the consignor of any dangerous goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract hands over those goods to the multimodal transport operator of the contract, or any servant or agent of the multimodal transport operator, or other person acting on behalf of the multimodal transport operator, the consignor must inform the multimodal transport operator, servant, agent or person (as the case may be) of the dangerous character of the goods and, if necessary, the precautions to be taken.

25

(4) If the consignor fails to so inform the multimodal transport operator, servant, agent or person, and the multimodal transport operator does not otherwise have knowledge of the dangerous character of the goods —

5 (a) the consignor is liable to the multimodal transport operator for any loss incurred by the multimodal transport operator in the course of the shipment of such goods and that is related to the dangerous character of the goods; and

10 (b) despite section 15, the goods may at any time during the international multimodal transport be unloaded, destroyed or rendered innocuous, as the circumstances may require, without payment of compensation to the consignor or any person to whom the multimodal transport operator is taken to have given an undertaking under section 14.

15 (5) Subsection (4) does not apply if, during the international multimodal transport of the goods, the multimodal transport operator has taken in charge the goods with knowledge of the dangerous character of the goods.

20 (6) If, in a case where subsection (4)(b) does not apply, the dangerous goods become an actual danger to life or property, they may (despite section 15) be unloaded, destroyed or rendered innocuous at any time during the international multimodal transport, as the circumstances may require, without payment of compensation to the consignor or any person to whom the multimodal transport operator is taken to have given an undertaking under section 14, except where —

25 (a) there is an obligation on the multimodal transport operator to contribute in general average; or

30 (b) the multimodal transport operator or the servant, agent or person for whose act or omission the multimodal transport operator is liable under section 13, failed to take all reasonable measures to prevent the dangerous goods becoming an actual danger.

35 (7) The consignor of any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract must indemnify the multimodal transport operator of the contract against any loss incurred by the multimodal transport operator resulting from any inadequacy or inaccuracy of any particulars or information provided by the consignor under subsection (1), (2) or (3), as the case may be.

(8) The consignor of any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract remains liable to indemnify the multimodal transport operator of the contract under subsection (7) even if the multimodal transport document relating to the contract has been transferred by the consignor.

(9) The right of the multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract to indemnity under subsection (7) does not limit the multimodal transport operator's liability under the multimodal transport contract to any person other than the consignor of the goods.

10

MISCELLANEOUS

Handing over of goods prima facie evidence of delivery

25.—(1) Unless written notice of loss of or damage to any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract, specifying the general nature of such loss or damage, is given by the consignee of the goods to the multimodal transport operator of the contract when the goods were handed over to the consignee, such handing-over is prima facie evidence of the delivery by the multimodal transport operator of the goods as described in the multimodal transport document relating to the contract.

(2) Where the loss of or damage to the goods is not apparent, subsection (1) applies if the notice in that subsection is not given within 6 consecutive days after the day when the goods were handed over to the consignee of the goods.

25

Time bar

26. Unless otherwise expressly agreed by the parties to a multimodal transport contract, no action in a court or arbitral proceedings relating to the international multimodal transport of any goods that are the subject of the contract may be brought unless the action or proceedings is or are instituted —

30

- (a) within a period of 9 months after the delivery of the goods that are the subject of the contract; or
- (b) if the goods have not been delivered, within a period of 9 months —
 - 5 (i) after the date on which the goods should have been delivered; or
 - (ii) after the date on which, in accordance with section 15(6), failure to deliver the goods would give the consignee of the goods the right to treat the goods as lost.

Dispute may be referred to arbitration

27.—(1) Any dispute relating to the international multimodal transport of any goods is capable of settlement by arbitration in Singapore between parties to the multimodal transport contract relating to the goods but only if —

- (a) the principal place of business of the respondent or, in the absence of such a place, the habitual residence of the respondent is in Singapore;
- (b) the place where the multimodal transport contract was made is in Singapore, but only if the respondent has in Singapore a place of business, branch or an agency through which the contract was made;
- (c) the place the multimodal transport operator takes in charge the goods, or the place of delivery of the goods, is in Singapore; or
- (d) Singapore is the designated place for arbitration in the arbitration clause of the contract or in an arbitration agreement between the parties.

(2) The arbitrator, or arbitration tribunal, in Singapore is to apply the provisions of this Act for any arbitration instituted in Singapore pursuant to subsection (1).

Multimodal transport document void if it departs from provisions of Act

28.—(1) Any stipulation in a multimodal transport document relating to any goods is void and of no effect to the extent —

(a) it is inconsistent with the provisions of this Act; and 5

(b) it is prejudicial to the consignor or consignee of the goods.

(2) To avoid doubt, subsection (1) does not affect any other stipulations contained in the multimodal transport document.

(3) Subsection (1) does not prevent the parties to a multimodal transport contract from agreeing that the multimodal transport operator of the contract should bear a greater liability than that imposed on the multimodal transport operator under this Act. 10

Rules of general average

29. Nothing in this Act prevents the application of any rules pertaining to general average adjustment — 15

(b) under any law,

to the extent they are applicable.

Act does not affect certain written laws

30.—(1) This Act does not affect any rights or obligations of a multimodal transport operator, carrier, consignor or consignee provided under — 20

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

The purpose of this Bill is to give effect to the ASEAN Framework Agreement on Multimodal Transport, signed at Vientiane, Lao People's Democratic Republic, on 17 November 2005, which provides for the regulation of international multimodal transport of goods to and from any ASEAN member country, on the basis of a multimodal transport contract. Besides providing for the registration of persons under the register of the Singapore competent national body, the Bill also imposes certain duties and liabilities on the parties to a multimodal transport contract.

PART 1

PRELIMINARY

Clause 1 relates to the short title and commencement.

Clause 2 is an interpretation provision that defines certain terms used in the Bill, such as “international multimodal transport”, “multimodal transport contract”, “multimodal transport document” and “multimodal transport operator”.

Clause 3 provides that Parts 3 to 6 apply in relation to any civil claim relating to the carriage of goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract, but only if either or both of the following are satisfied:

- (a) the place for the taking in charge of the goods by the multimodal transport operator of the contract as specified in the contract is located in Singapore or an ASEAN member country;
- (b) the place for delivery of the goods by the multimodal transport operator of the contract as specified in the contract is located in Singapore or an ASEAN member country.

The civil claim is any civil claim whether founded in contract or tort, and whether made against the multimodal transport operator or certain other persons.

PART 2

REGISTRATION UNDER REGISTER OF
SINGAPORE COMPETENT NATIONAL BODY

Clause 4 sets out the registration regime for a person who desires to be under the register of the Singapore competent national body. The applicant must apply to the Singapore competent national body (defined in clause 2 to mean the person or authority authorised by the Minister as the competent national body of Singapore) for a registration certificate. The registration certificate is valid for one year (unless earlier cancelled under clause 6) and may be issued with or without conditions. There are certain conditions that the applicant must satisfy before the Singapore competent national body can issue a registration certificate to the applicant. If the Singapore competent national body refuses to issue a registration certificate, it must state in writing the reasons for refusal if requested to do so by the applicant. There is also an appeal process for an applicant who is aggrieved by the refusal of the Singapore competent national body to issue a registration certificate.

Clause 5 provides for the renewal of a registration certificate. An application for renewal must be made to the Singapore competent national body at least 3 months before the date the registration certificate expires. Each renewal is for a further period of one year, and the Singapore competent national body may impose conditions. If the Singapore competent national body refuses to renew an applicant's registration certificate, it must state in writing the reasons for refusal if requested to do so by the applicant. An appeal process is similarly provided for an applicant who is aggrieved by the refusal of the Singapore competent national body to renew a registration certificate.

Clause 6 relates to the cancellation of a registration certificate. A registration certificate may be cancelled on a few grounds. However, before the Singapore competent national body cancels a registration certificate, it must give notice to the holder of the registration certificate stating that it intends to do so and specifying the time (not being less than 28 days after the date of the notice) within which written representations may be made to it. If the Singapore competent national body cancels the registration certificate, it must furnish the holder of the registration certificate with the grounds of cancellation if so required by the holder. An appeal process to the Minister is provided for a person who is aggrieved by the decision of the Singapore competent national body to cancel the registration certificate. A decision of the Singapore competent national body to cancel the registration certificate takes effect despite an appeal against the decision made to the Minister unless the Minister otherwise specifies.

Clause 7 empowers the Minister to designate certain persons to hear and determine any appeal made under clause 4, 5 or 6.

Clause 8 relates to the register to be kept and maintained by the Singapore competent national body.

PART 3

MULTIMODAL TRANSPORT DOCUMENT

Clause 9 relates to the issue of a multimodal transport document. When goods are taken in charge in Singapore by a multimodal transport operator pursuant to a multimodal transport contract, the multimodal transport operator must issue to the consignor of the goods a multimodal transport document. Such a document must be signed by the multimodal transport operator or a person authorised by the multimodal transport operator. A consignee of goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract as evidenced by a multimodal transport document has and is vested with all rights of action and is subject to all liabilities in respect of those goods as if the consignee were a party to the contract. However, such rights and liabilities are subject to the provisions of the Bill and the stipulations in the multimodal transport document.

Clause 10 states that a multimodal transport document must contain such particulars as may be prescribed. However, a document is a multimodal transport document despite the absence of any of the prescribed particulars if there is evidence to establish that it is a multimodal transport document within the definition of that term in clause 2(1).

Clause 11 provides that a multimodal transport document issued by a multimodal transport operator is prima facie evidence that the multimodal transport operator has taken in charge the goods as described in that document unless a contrary indication has been made in the printed text of or superimposed on the document. This may happen, for instance, where the words “shipper’s weight, load and count” and “shipper-packed container” are printed on the document, as this indicates that the goods have been weighed, loaded, counted or packed by the shipper instead of by the multimodal transport operator. Proof to the contrary (that the multimodal transport operator had not taken in charge the goods) is not admissible when the multimodal transport document relating to the goods has been transferred, or transmitted by electronic data interchange, to the consignor of the goods who has acknowledged the receipt of the document and in good faith relied on and acted upon the document.

PART 4

LIABILITIES OF MULTIMODAL TRANSPORT OPERATOR

Clause 12 specifies the period of responsibility of a multimodal transport operator under Part 4.

Clause 13 provides that a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract is liable for any act or omission of certain persons if such act or omission —

- (a) takes place during the period of responsibility of the multimodal transport operator; and
- (b) causes loss of, damage to, or delay in the delivery of, the goods.

Clause 14 states that a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract for the international multimodal transport of any goods is taken to have given an undertaking to perform, or to procure the performance of, all acts necessary to ensure the delivery of the goods to certain persons specified in the clause. The undertaking operates as an implied term of the multimodal transport contract.

Clause 15 states that a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract is liable for loss resulting from the loss of, damage to, or delay in the delivery of, the goods that are the subject of the contract if the occurrence which caused the loss, damage or delay took place during the period of responsibility of the multimodal transport operator. However, a multimodal transport operator will not be liable in certain circumstances specified in the clause.

Clause 16 relates to the assessment of compensation for loss of, or damage to, the goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract under clause 15. This is based primarily on the value of the goods (calculated using certain prices) at the place and time that the goods are delivered to the consignee of the goods or at the place and time when, in accordance with the multimodal transport contract, the goods should have been so delivered.

Clause 17 specifies certain limits on the liability of a multimodal transport operator.

Clause 18 provides for the limitation of the liability of a multimodal transport operator under clause 15 if the multimodal transport contract does not provide for the carriage of the goods by sea or inland waterways.

Clause 19 provides that when the loss of or damage to the goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract occurred during a particular stage of the international multimodal transport of the goods, in respect of which a mandatory law would have provided another limit of liability if a separate contract of carriage had been made for that particular stage of transport, then the multimodal transport operator's liability for such loss or damage will be determined by reference to the provisions of such mandatory law.

Clause 20 provides for the limitation of the liability of a multimodal transport operator other than for the loss of or damage to the goods.

Clause 21 provides that the aggregate liability of a multimodal transport operator of a multimodal transport contract under Part 4 must not exceed the limits of liability for the total loss of the goods that are the subject of the contract calculated in accordance with clauses 17 and 18.

Clause 22 relates to the aggregate liability of a multimodal transport operator and the servant, agent, etc., of the multimodal transport operator.

Clause 23 states that the multimodal transport operator and certain other persons are not entitled to the limitation of liability under Part 4 for the loss, damage or delay in the delivery of the goods under certain circumstances.

PART 5

DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF CONSIGNOR

Clause 24 states that the consignor of any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract is deemed to have guaranteed to the multimodal transport operator of the contract that, at the time the goods were taken in charge by the multimodal transport operator, certain particulars specified in the multimodal transport document are accurate. The consignor must also mark or label dangerous goods in accordance with any international conventions or laws applicable in the country in which the goods are taken in charge by the multimodal transport operator.

Clause 24 further requires the consignor of any dangerous goods who hands over those goods to the multimodal transport operator, or any servant or agent of the multimodal transport operator, or other person acting on behalf of the multimodal transport operator, to inform the multimodal transport operator, servant, agent or person (as the case may be) of the dangerous character of the goods. Certain consequences follow if the consignor fails to comply with this obligation.

Clause 24 also provides for the situations when dangerous goods may be unloaded, destroyed or rendered innocuous without payment of compensation. The consignor of any goods must further indemnify the multimodal transport operator against any loss incurred by the multimodal transport operator resulting from any inaccuracy or inadequacy of any particulars or information provided by the consignor under clause 24(1), (2) or (3).

PART 6

MISCELLANEOUS

Clause 25 provides that unless certain written notice is given by the consignee of the goods to the multimodal transport operator of the multimodal transport contract, the handing-over of the goods from the multimodal transport operator to the consignee is prima facie evidence of the delivery by the multimodal transport operator as described in the multimodal transport document relating to the contract.

Clause 26 provides for a time bar for court proceedings or arbitration proceedings relating to the international multimodal transport of any goods that are the subject of a multimodal transport contract.

Clause 27 provides that any dispute relating to the international multimodal transport of any goods is capable of settlement by arbitration between the parties to the multimodal transport contract relating to the goods under certain circumstances.

Clause 28 provides that any stipulation in a multimodal transport document is void and of no effect if it is inconsistent with the provisions of the Bill and it is prejudicial to the consignor or consignee of the goods. However, this does not prevent the parties to a multimodal transport contract from agreeing that the multimodal transport operator of the contract should bear a greater liability than that imposed on the multimodal transport operator under the Bill.

Clause 29 states that the Bill does not prevent the application of any rules pertaining to general average adjustment contained in a multimodal transport contract or under any law, to the extent they are applicable.

Clause 30 states that the Bill does not affect certain written laws.

Clause 31 empowers the Minister to make regulations necessary or convenient for carrying out or giving effect to the Bill, and for prescribing anything which under the Bill is to be or may be prescribed.

EXPENDITURE OF PUBLIC MONEY

This Bill will not involve the Government in any extra financial expenditure.
