Saving and transitional provisions

10.—(1) Any order made before the date of commencement of this Act (called in this section the appointed date) under section 3 of the principal Act as in force immediately before that date, which —

- 5 (a) extends Part I of the principal Act to a foreign country; and
 (b) deems a specified court of the foreign country as a superior court of that country for the purposes of Part I of the principal Act,

10 has effect beginning on the appointed date as an order made under section 3 of the principal Act as if —

- (c) the order directed that that court is a recognised court of that foreign country for those purposes; and
 (d) the order directed that final money judgments of that court that are within section 3(2) of the principal Act are 15 judgments to which Part I of the principal Act applies.

(2) In determining, for the purposes of Part I of the principal Act, whether a judgment mentioned in subsection (1)(d) is one to which that Part applies, section 3(2)(b) of the principal Act is omitted.

20 (3) In the application of the principal Act to a judgment of a court mentioned in subsection (1) that was registered before the appointed date, a reference to “judgment” —

 30 manner as a judgment given by a court in that place.

(4) For a period of 2 years after the appointed date, the Minister may, by regulations, prescribe such additional provisions of a saving or transitional nature consequent on the enactment of any provision of this Act as the Minister may consider necessary or expedient.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

This Bill seeks to expand the types of judgments from a foreign country which may be registered and enforced under the Reciprocal Enforcement of Foreign Judgments Act (Cap. 265), to enable judgments from any court of a foreign country to be so registered and enforced, and to make other amendments to the Act.

Clause 1 relates to the short title and commencement.

Clause 2 amends section 2 —

- (a) to insert a definition for “Family Justice Rules” as the term is used several times in the Act;
- (b) to amend the definition of “foreign country” so that it includes a Commonwealth country, as an order under section 3 may be made to apply Part I to any foreign country, including one from the Commonwealth; and
- (c) to extend the definition of “judgment” to include a non-money judgment, an interlocutory judgment, a judicial settlement, a consent judgment and a consent order, and to make other amendments relating to this.

Clause 3 repeals and re-enacts section 3. The re-enacted section 3 enables the Minister to extend Part I to a particular description of judgments (and not just a money judgment) given in a particular court or description of courts (and not just a superior court) of a foreign country, if substantial reciprocal treatment will be assured for the enforcement in that foreign country of similar judgments given in a similar court or similar courts (and not just the High Court) of Singapore.

The new section 3(4) provides that certain judgments are not judgments to which Part I applies. The purpose of this is to prevent litigants from a country which does not provide reciprocity to Singapore judgments, from circumventing section 3 by making an appeal to or enforcing their judgments in a court of a country that gives such reciprocity.

Clause 4 amends section 4 —

- (a) to provide that a foreign judgment is not registrable if it is discharged (e.g. in the event of a bankruptcy);

- (b) to provide that a non-money judgment may only be registered if the registering court is satisfied that it would be just and convenient to enforce the judgment, and if not the court may order it to be registered for an amount which it considers to be the monetary equivalent of the relief; and
- (c) to provide that a judgment for damages that include non-compensatory damages may only be registered for the amount of the compensation.

Clause 5 amends section 5 —

- (a) to include an additional ground for setting aside the registration of a judgment, viz. the notice of registration had not been served on the judgment debtor or is defective; and
- (b) to provide additionally that the original court is not deemed to have jurisdiction (a ground for setting aside registration) merely because the judgment debtor appeared in the proceedings for the purpose of inviting the court not to exercise its jurisdiction in the proceedings.

Clause 6 repeals and re-enacts section 9. The existing section 9(1) and (2), which allows the Minister to make an order applying Part I to the Commonwealth other than to those parts of the Commonwealth which the Reciprocal Enforcement of Commonwealth Judgments Act (Cap. 264) (called the RECJA) applies as at the date of the order, is no longer necessary.

Clause 7 amends section 10 so that, where an order is made extending Part I to a country to which the RECJA applies (called the RECJA country), the extension of the Act to an arbitration award from a RECJA country under that section only applies if the arbitration award is registered under the RECJA before the operative date of the order.

Clause 8 deletes and substitutes section 12(1) to be consistent with the re-enacted section 3.

Clause 9 amends section 13 to enable the judgment creditor of a judgment (and not just a money judgment) obtained in a court of Singapore (and not just the High Court) to apply for certified copies of the pleadings, order of court and written grounds of decision, together with a certificate that contains prescribed particulars.

Clause 10 contains saving and transitional provisions for the amendments in the Bill. Sub-clauses (1), (2) and (3) save orders made under the existing section 3 with modifications. Sub-clause (4) enables other saving and transitional provisions to be made.

EXPENDITURE OF PUBLIC MONEY

This Bill will not involve the Government in any extra financial expenditure.
